PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 104th CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION

Vol. 142 WASHINGTON, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1996 No. 134

House of Representatives

The House met at 10 a.m.

The Chaplain, Rev. James David Ford, D.D., offered the following prayer:

Oh gracious God, as we seek to do the works of justice in our land, we know that You have called us to be messengers of reconciliation and understanding in all we do. May we build bridges of respect between people and sense the unity that we share by Your hand. Help us to recognize that though we differ on how we will achieve the goals to which we strive, we can honor each person, respect the differences that are ever with us, and seek to strengthen the unity and the bonds of trust that can knit us together as one people. In Your name, we pray. Amen.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

The SPEAKER. The Chair will recognize ten 1-minutes on each side.

A SAD STATE OF AFFAIRS

(Mr. DELAY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, the Democratic Party finds itself in a very sad state of affairs. Instead of engaging the Republican Party on issues of importance to the American people, liberal Democrats come to the floor of the House engaged in a campaign to destroy the reputation of one man.

But I say to my colleagues, tearing down one man will not elevate the lives of the American people. Engaging in a smear campaign will not ease the worries of working Americans. The voters do not care about the personal insults we hurl at one another on this floor. They care about their children and the future we leave them. They care about the sad state of education in this country. They worry about crime and drugs, and they struggle under the burden of an insane Tax Code.

I ask my colleagues this one question:

Does that venom with which you speak to the C–SPAN cameras reflect well on the House of Representatives?

I urge my colleagues to think first about this Nation and the reputation of this House and leave the personal attacks in the gutter where they belong.

RELEASE THE SPECIAL COUNSEL'S REPORT ON NEWT GINGRICH

(Mr. VOLKMER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. VOLKMER. Mr. Speaker, I am not going to call the Speaker a liar. But it is a fact that the Speaker has not been telling the media the whole truth about the findings of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct. The Committee on Standards of Official Conduct has found him guilty of six charges.

And I am not going to call the Speaker a law violator even though it appears that the Speaker participated in a scheme to use nonprofit corporation's tax-free contributions for political purposes. That is against the law.

It is quite clear that the Speaker has instructed ''Stonewall'' not to release the special counsel's report. Why not? Because the report will show that the Speaker——

POINT OF ORDER

Mr LINDER. Point of order, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CAMP). The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. LINDER. The gentleman from Missouri is referring to matters before the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, which is explicitly against the House rules.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair sustains the point of order, and the gentleman must proceed in order.

Mr. VOLKMER. Because the report will show that the Speaker is not the lily-white angel his supporters say he is, let us remove this dark cloud that hangs over these Chambers.

NANCY ''Stonewall'' JOHNSON, release the special counsel's report on NEWT GINGRICH.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. LINDER. Point of order, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, at what point does the Chair decide that these scurrilous attacks on personalities and this abuse of the House rules becomes so out of order that people are asked to take their seat?

Mr. VOLKMER. Release the report.

The SPEAKER pro tempore As stated on September 8 by the Chair, at some point the Chair will put it to the entire House to determine whether Members who continually violate the rules will continue to proceed in order.

□ 1015

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CAMP). The gentlewoman will state the parliamentary inquiry.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Speaker, is there not a way that the gentleman from Georgia could test the gentleman from Missouri's words if he wished to?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will answer that question if that situation arises.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker. Is there not a customary way that this procedure is normally done, rather than asking the Chair to enforce that?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is proceeding under announced established practices at this point.

INTRODUCTION OF THE JACKIE ROBINSON COMMEMORATIVE COIN ACT

(Mr. FRANKS of New Jersey asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FRANKS of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, yesterday I was joined by Congressman FLOYD FLAKE in introducing legislation entitled the Jackie Robinson Commemorative Coin Act. Our bill authorizes the minting of one-dollar coins to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the breaking of the color barrier in major league baseball by Jackie Robinson.

Jackie Robinson was, in all respects, a great American. If all Jackie Robinson had done was to integrate baseball, that alone would have ensured his place in history. But Jackie Robinson also made baseball truly the national pastime through his outstanding accomplishments on and off the field.

Mr. Speaker, Jackie Robinson is still admired by millions of Americans today, I ask my colleagues to join me in paying tribute to this great athlete and humanitarian by supporting this legislation.

JACKIE ROBINSON COMMEMORATIVE COIN

(Mr. FLAKE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Speaker, I rise this morning, along with Mr. BOB FRANKS, to honor the late Jackie Robinson, one of our Nation's greatest historical treasures. We do this by introducing legislation to mint a commemorative coin honoring the 50th anniversary of Jackie Robinson breaking the color barrier in major league baseball.

As we all observe the remarkable pennant and wild card races this week, we should take time out to remember that America's pastime was once not the diverse sport that most Americans enjoy today. Through segregation, African Americans were relegated to the Negro leagues. Although these leagues were considered second rate, the baseball played was of the highest quality. This athletic segregation was the standard for most organized sports, and was a sad reflection of American society in general.

Jackie Robinson, however, became the trailblazer of professional athletic integration. He was the first of many Negro league stars to play in the big leagues, and he suffered the strains of racism throughout major league ball parks. By successfully bearing this burden, he in fact became a symbol of victory for African Americans, and he carried the torch of equality that lit the flame of equality in America.

Mr. FRANKS and I urge our colleagues to rekindle this flame by cosponsoring the Jackie Robinson Commemorative Coin Act. Join us and our colleagues in the other body in remembering Jackie Robinson's baseball legacy, and honoring him as a great American.

ADMINISTRATION POLICY IS ''JUST SAY NOTHING'' ON DRUGS

(Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, why since 1993 have we experienced such a dramatic increase in the use of drugs among our Nation's children, when just a decade ago we were winning that fight? The answer is simple. We now have an administration that has replaced ''Just say no'' with ''Just say nothing.''

The facts speak for themselves. Since 1993, marijuana use among 12- to 13-year-olds has increased 137 percent. This should not be surprising when we look at this administration's priorities.

Do Members know that they have over 110,000 IRS agents collecting taxes? That is enough to audit almost every person in the State of Texas. Compare that to 12,000 total drug enforcement and border patrol agents that protect our borders. That is taxes over drugs, 10 to 1. This administration must take responsibility for its failed drug policies and stop this epidemic before it destroys our children's future.

IN SOME SCHOOLS RAPISTS GET COUNSELING WHILE 6-YEAR-OLDS GO TO THE SLAMMER

(Mr. TRAFICANT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, it is common sense, schools are under attack. Guns, drugs, rape, even murder. Some schools are so bad they hire police to monitor the hallways and to combat this growing phenomenon.

Schools have clamped down all over the country, as evidenced by an action in Lexington, NC, where the schools suspended 6-year-old Johnathan Prevette for kissing a 6-year-old on the cheek. That is right, Johnathan was cited for sexual harassment.

Think about it. In some schools where rapists get counseling, 6-year-olds are getting busted. Mr. Speaker, it does not take a rocket scientist to figure out what is going wrong in our schools, when murderers and rapists are getting probation and counseling and 6-year-olds are going to the slammer. Johnathan, make sure you do not hug anybody.

I yield back the balance of my friendship that might come out of our schools.

BOB DOLE AND JACK KEMP SHOULD NOT BE COUNTED OUT OF THE PRESIDENTIAL RACE

(Mr. SALMON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SALMON. Mr. Speaker, last Saturday my alma mater, the Arizona State Sun Devils, took on the No. 1 ranked, two-time defending national champion cornhuskers of Nebraska. The result should be a lesson to all the pundits who have already written off Bob Dole.

The pundits and so-called experts said A.S.U. had no chance against Nebraska. They pointed out that Nebraska had a 37 game winning streak, and that Nebraska had not been shut out in a regular season game since 1973. The point spread, looking a lot like some of the recent presidential polls, predicted that Nebraska would win by 23 points.

Yet Arizona State managed to shut out Nebraska 19–0.

The experts said Arizona State could not beat Nebraska, but the experts were wrong. The experts also tell us that Bob Dole and Jack Kemp do not have a chance to beat a certain liberal currently living in the White House. We Sun Devils know better.

RELEASE THE ETHICS REPORT AND THE WOMEN FROM THE BASEMENT

(Mrs. MALONEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, we are appealing to you to release the ethics report and to release the women from the basement.

As a New Yorker, I am anguished that the statute of our State's most distinguished leaders—Susan B. Anthony, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, and Lucretia Mott—have remained in the basement of the Capitol for the past 76 years.

Mr. Speaker, almost every great struggle throughout American history is represented in the Capitol's rotunda, including the leaders of those revolutions, Lincoln, Washington, and King.

Exactly 76 years ago American women gained the right to vote, but our great leaders still are not allowed in the living room to stand beside the great male leaders.

Mr. Speaker, American women ask the same question they asked President Wilson: how long must we wait?

PRESIDENT CLINTON'S NEW REPUBLICAN AGENDA

(Mr. KNOLLENBERG asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, I guess we should be happy. After weeks of distortions and millions of dollars of AFL–CIO deceptions, and some downright crazy claims about the 104th Congress, the President has finally come clean. His acceptance speech at the Democratic National Convention and his recent campaign speeches trumpeting his support for our agenda and our outstanding successes kind of amazes me.

In fact, the President took credit for 14 different initiatives that Republicans promised. How is that for extreme? Is he stealing Republican ideas, or, as Jay Leno says, maybe he is just borrowing them until after the election. It seems as if the only extremism is the extreme way the President wants to be reelected.

Now his own party must not even know where he stands. As some of my friends on the other side of the aisle say, if you do not like where the President is, just wait a while. I guess they hope he will come around, just like in 1992. I yield back the balance of the President's Republican agenda.

REPUBLICAN LAWMAKERS ATTEMPT TO STIFLE QUESTIONS BY SENIOR CITIZENS AND DEMOCRATS

(Mr. KLINK asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KLINK. Mr. Speaker, today marks the 1-year anniversary of what I would consider the darkest day of this 104th Congress. Let me set the scene. The Republicans were attempting to cut $270 billion from Medicare, so they could afford to give tax breaks to the wealthiest individuals and corporations in this entire Nation.

One week earlier, a group of senior citizens who purported to be in favor of that plan came into the Committee on Commerce and they dumped letters on the floor in a show of support. It proved out that many of those letters were from people who were deceased, or they were children, or they were nonexistent.

This time senior citizens arrived in the Committee on Commerce to say they were against what was happening and they wanted to simply know why were there no hearings. Our Republicans, fearing the debate, fearing that question, ordered that those senior citizens, some in wheelchairs, some in walkers, some with canes, be arrested, arrested and hauled away by the Capitol Hill police, photographed, and fingerprinted.

Today it is 1 year later. Many of those seniors will be here again. As that occurs, we should also recognize that the Republicans want to stop the debate from the Democrats, who ask, where is the ethics report on Speaker GINGRICH?

PRESIDENT CLINTON SHOULD DROP CONSIDERATION OF PARDONS FOR WHITEWATER FRIENDS

(Mr. BACHUS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BACHUS. Mr. Speaker, this May, a Little Rock jury returned guilty verdicts on a total of 24 felony counts against President and Mrs. Clinton's Whitewater business partners, James and Susan McDougal, and the President's successor as Governor of Arkansas, Jim Guy Tucker.

It must have come as great comfort to Susan McDougal and her codefendants earlier this week when, in a televised interview, the President refused to rule out the possibility of pardons for them if he is reelected.

Accordingly, Mr. Speaker, I am introducing today a resolution that would declare that it is the sense of this House that President Clinton should specifically, categorically, and immediately disavow any Presidential pardons for his former Whitewater business partners and to former Governor Tucker. By passing this resolution before we adjourn to go home and face our constituents, we can send the right signal—that in this country, no one is above the law, and convicted criminals do not walk free by virtue of having friends in positions of power.

YOU CAN RUN BUT YOU CAN'T HIDE

(Mr. LEWIS of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LEWIS of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, last week the Ethics Committee concluded for the third time that the gentleman from Georgia, NEWT GINGRICH, violated House rules in his use of a political adviser for official business. The committee concludes——

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. CHRYSLER. Point of order, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. CHRYSLER. Mr. Speaker, referring to matters before the Ethics Committee, which is specifically forbidden in the House rules, is my point of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will reiterate the principle in this matter. The Chair will repeat the admonitions of the Chair from June 26, 1996, September 12, September 17, and September 24.

It is an essential rule of decorum in debate that Members should refrain from references in debate to the conduct of other Members, where such conduct is not the question actually pending before the House, by way of a report from the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct or by way of another question of the privileges of the House.

This principle is documented on pages 168 and 526 of the House Rules and Manual, and reflects the consistent rulings of the Chair in this and in prior Congresses and applies to 1-minute and special order speeches.

The fact that a resolution has been noticed pursuant to rule IX does not permit such references where that resolution is not actually pending.

Neither the filing of a complaint before the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, nor the publication in another forum of charges that are personally critical of another Member, justify the references to such charges on the floor of the House. This includes references to the motivations of Members who file complaints and to members of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct.

As cited on page 526 of the Manual, this also includes references to concluded investigations of sitting Members by the Standards Committee. (July 24, 1970). Clause 1 of rule XIV is a prohibition against engaging in personality in debate. It derives from article 1, section 5 of the Constitution, which authorizes each House to make its own rules, and to punish its Members for disorderly behavior, and has been part of the rules of the House in some relevant form since 1789. This rule supersedes any claim of a Member to be free from questioning in any other place.

On January 27, 1909, the House adopted a report that stated the following: ''It is the duty of the House to require its Members, in speech or debate, to preserve that proper restraint which will permit the House to conduct its business in an orderly manner and without unnecessarily and unduly exciting animosity among its Members,'' from Cannon's Precedents, Volume VIII. at Section 2497. This report was in response to improper references in debate to the President, but clearly reiterated a principle that all occupants of the Chair in this and in prior Congresses have held to be equally applicable to Members' remarks in debate toward the Speaker and each other.

The Chair asks and expects the cooperation of all Members in maintaining a level of decorum that properly dignifies the proceedings of the House.

The gentleman from Georgia may proceed in order.

Mr. LEWIS of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, quote, the committee concludes that your conduct of allowing the routine presence in your office of Mr. Jones demonstrates a continuing pattern of lax administration and poor judgment that has concerned this committee in the past, unquote.

NEWT GINGRICH has repeatedly shown his willingness to break House rules to suit his needs. The charges being investigated by the outside counsel, James Cole, are far more serious and involve violations of the law, including tax fraud.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. CHRYSLER. Point of order, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CAMP). The gentleman will suspend. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. CHRYSLER. Mr. Speaker, he is referring to matters that are before the House Ethics Committee which are specifically forbidden in the House rules, is my point of order.

Mr. LEWIS of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, may I be heard on the point of order?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will hear the gentleman.

Mr. LEWIS of Georgia. Let me say to the gentleman from the other side, there comes a time when an injustice is so great, when you must even challenge the rule to demonstrate that injustice. I know the gentleman from the other side and the Members from the other side would not like for this report to come out.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will suspend. The Chair again sustains the point of order, and the gentleman will proceed in order.

Mr. LEWIS of Georgia. There now exists a $500,000 report from the outside counsel. Later today or tomorrow, the House will once again consider a privileged resolution I have offered calling for the release of the outside counsel's report. The public deserves the right to see that report. I encourage all of my colleagues to vote for the release of the secret Gingrich ethics report.

ISSUES OF ETHICS

(Mr. KINGSTON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate that, and I certainly hope that the Democrats who are so hung up on bringing down NEWT GINGRICH to the extent of breaking House rules in terms of issues in front of the Ethics Committee, will show equal compassion and curiosity when we review the Gephardt ethics allegations and a lot of other ethics allegations on some of their Members. If we are going to bring this House down to such partisan fervency, then maybe my colleagues want to consider that.

Why does the Democrat Party not concern themselves with why the President will not reveal his health care records? Why Susan McDougal will not talk but would rather go to jail even if, as the President has publicly said, a pardon is out there? Why do my colleagues not have any curiosity of who hired Craig Livingstone?

Let us just admit, this is politicking on taxpayer time, with taxpayer equipment, in a taxpayer-paid facility. I hope my colleagues will also wonder why they do not have drug testing at the White House. If we are going to get into this, Mr. Speaker, this is a double-edged sword and I hope the House does not fall for this.

HOLDING THE LINE ON INTEREST RATES

(Mr. NADLER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, it is not often that I have occasion to rise and commend the Federal Reserve Board, but the decision yesterday to hold the line on interest rates certainly merits commendation.

We all know the Federal Reserve Board is allergic to good economic news. If too many Americans find jobs, the Fed ominously warns of runaway inflation when there is no evidence of inflation, and cranks up interest rates to slow the economy down. The Fed has seemed determined to maintain an unemployment rate, to guarantee an unemployment rate of at least 5.6 percent or more. To keep this in perspective, every percentage point of unemployment represents 1.3 million Americans.

That should be a cause for concern to anyone in this Chamber who has been conscientiously cutting the deficit or scrapping the Nation's social safety net in the belief that their efforts will lower interest rates and put people to work.

So my congratulations to the Federal Reserve for enduring the economic good news with restraint. Hopefully this is a sign that in the future we may be able to begin to count on the Fed to help, not hinder, the effort to improve the lives of all Americans.

And as a consequence of this, Mr. Speaker, I again ask and I join my colleagues in asking that the Ethics Committee stop covering up and release the Gingrich report.

MAJORITY OF CONTRACT WITH AMERICA NOW LAW

(Mrs. SEASTRAND asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. SEASTRAND. Mr. Speaker, our friends on the other side would like the American people to believe that this 104th Congress has been a failure and that Republicans are running from the Contract With America. Well, they are wrong, and here is why.

In this Congress, the Republican majority has given the American people tax cuts for small businesses, an adoption tax credit, the Congressional Accountability Act, the line-item veto, unfunded mandate reform, the Personal Responsibility Act, health insurance reform, lobbying reform, the gift ban, welfare-to-work tax credits, food safety reform, et cetera, et cetera, et cetera, and they are now all law. In fact, fully 65 percent of the Contract With America has been signed into law, but some of the most popular measures, like tax cuts for working families, have been vetoed by Bill Clinton.

Mr. Speaker, the Republicans are delivering on our promise to change the spending culture here in Washington DC. In fact, just yesterday when reporters pressed a Member of the Democrat leadership to name another Congress as productive, he could not name one, and he said ''I know there have been several. I will get back to you.''

CAN THE PEOPLE TRUST THIS CONGRESS?

(Ms. DELAURO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, in these final days of the 104th Congress, the American people need to remember what this Congress has been all about.

Time and again Members of Congress who have tried to speak out on issues of concern to the American people in fact have been silenced. We have seen it today when Members of Congress attempted to discuss the very serious charges of Federal tax fraud documented in an independent counsel's report which the Ethics Committee refuses to release to the public.

A year ago, Republican zeal——

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. CHRYSLER. Point of order, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentlewoman will suspend. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. CHRYSLER. Mr. Speaker, the gentlewoman is violating House rules by referring to matters before the Ethics Committee which are specifically forbidden by House rules.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will sustain the point of order, and asks the gentlewoman to proceed in order.

Ms. DELAURO. A year ago, Republican zeal to silence debate in the people's House resulted in the arrest of senior citizens who came to speak out against Republican plans to cut $270 billion from Medicare to pay for a $245 billion tax cut for the privileged few. And with the Medicare bill still on the chopping block because the Dole plan would require even deeper cuts in Medicare than the $270 billion in Medicare cuts proposed last year, the American people should ask themselves if they can trust this Republican Congress when it is so afraid of the truth, whether it be on Medicare or whether it be releasing the ethics report from the committee.

A GLIMPSE OF THE FUTURE

(Mr. HERGER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HERGER. Mr. Speaker, last week President Clinton's Interior Secretary, Bruce Babbitt, endorsed a plan to tax anything having to do with the great outdoors. The plan he endorsed called for a 5-percent tax on everything from binoculars to canteens to sleeping bags to birdseed.

Birdseed, Mr. Speaker? What is next? The air we breathe? It is true that Bill Clinton, the great conservative Republican that he is, has backed away from the plan, but is this just a glimpse of the future if Bill Clinton were to stay in power? Higher taxes, bigger government and more regulation. Mr. Speaker, they say it is hard for a leopard to change its spots. It is also hard for liberals to change their tax-and-spend tendencies, as Interior Secretary Babbitt has so eloquently proved.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that if the Clinton administration wins reelection, tax and spend will be back again. Welcome to the future, Mr. and Mrs. America.

CALL FOR RELEASE OF ETHICS COMMITTEE REPORT

(Mr. MORAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, normally what goes around comes around. Normally people who abuse their positions of power to destroy political rivals in underhanded and dishonest ways ultimately become the victims of their own corruption. The snake that they unleash from their souls invariably comes around to bite them as well. But that natural law of justice has been thwarted in this body. It has been thwarted because Speaker GINGRICH has suppressed the release of an Ethics Committee report that details activities that makes Speaker Wright's improprieties pale in comparison.

Mr. Speaker, we have a number of quotes from Speaker GINGRICH that identify the reasons why Speaker Wright was charged. They are far more applicable to the charges that have been leveled against Speaker GINGRICH. If you take Speaker GINGRICH at his words, we would release this Ethics Committee report today.

TROUBLING STATISTICS RELEASED ON TEEN DRUG USE

(Mr. RADANOVICH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RADANOVICH. Mr. Speaker, I am greatly troubled by the statistics recently released on teenage drug use. How can we feel good about ourselves as a society when teen drug use has increased 78 percent since 1992? By the time teenagers reach 17, 58 percent know someone personally who uses acid, cocaine or heroin, and 43 percent have a friend with a serious drug problem.

Mr. Speaker, these are daunting statistics. And what makes matters worse is that this administration has done little to combat this rising tide of drug use. The Clinton administration's 1995 budget proposed to cut 621 drug enforcement slots, and although Congress fought most of the cuts, 227 agents still lost their jobs with the Drug Enforcement Agency.

Mr. Speaker, this is a serious problem which demands serious answers. And the only answer we get from President Clinton when asked if he would inhale if he had it to do over again is, ''Sure, if I could. I tried before.''

THE SPEAKER AND ETHICS

(Mrs. SCHROEDER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Speaker, 1 year ago, the Speaker of this House was unable to find a room anyplace in this Capitol Hill complex for the Democrats to have a hearing on Medicare cuts, and so we were outdoors—outdoors—for many long days talking about what they were trying to do behind closed doors. And when seniors came to the Hill a year ago to ask the questions of the committees who were in charge, Speaker GINGRICH had them arrested and we had to go get them out. And now when we have charges against the Speaker that have been analyzed by an outside independent counsel, we are not allowed to see them. What is going on here?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. CHRYSLER. Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentlewoman will suspend. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. CHRYSLER. Mr. Speaker, the gentlewoman from Colorado is violating House rules by referring to matters before the Ethics Committee which are specifically forbidden in House rules.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. May I be heard on the point of order, Mr. Speaker?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentlewoman may be heard.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. My question is, what does this House do when not only just a regular Member of the House but the chief officer of the House, the third in line for the presidency, has these serious charges and we cannot see them even though they were publicly funded? Why can we not discuss them on this House floor and why are we told we must go outside to discuss them as we had to do Medicare cuts?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. For reasons previously stated, the Chair sustains the point of order and asks the gentlewoman to proceed in order.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Speaker, I thought the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. LEWIS] made a very emotional and correct approach. There comes a time when we all must stand up and say, what are these rules for? Are they to keep the American people from learning the truth?

I am shocked that the United States of America that believes in free speech is gagging Members of Congress about the third most important elected official in America, and I am stunned the other side is insisting on that.

CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 3259, INTELLIGENCE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 1997

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 529 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 529

Resolved, That upon adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider the conference report to accompany the bill (H.R. 3259) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 1997 for intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the United States Government, the Community Management Account, and the Central Intelligence Agency Retirement and Disability System, and for other purposes. All points of order against the conference report and against its consideration are waived. The conference report shall be considered as read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CAMP). The gentleman from Florida [Mr. GOSS] is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. BEILENSON], pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

Mr. Speaker, this rule is standard for a conference report, and is a fair product given our time constraints as we conclude this session of the Congress. The rule before us waives all points of order against the conference report accompanying the bill H.R. 3259, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 1997 for intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the U.S. Government, the community management account, and the Central Intelligence Agency retirement and disability system and for other purposes. In addition the rule provides that the conference report shall be considered as read.

Mr. Speaker, I was honored to have participated in the tremendous effort that led to the completion of this bill. As a member of the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence—generally known as HPSCI—I was proud to serve under the tough and fair leadership of my chairman, Mr. COMBEST, in crafting this bill. It is a product I think we can all be proud of, born of bipartisan and bicameral cooperation and negotiation.

Mr. Speaker, I thought my colleague from California, Mr. BEILENSON, put his finger on an important point yesterday in our Rules Committee meeting, as he often does, when he said that no one pays much attention to our Nation's intelligence programs. The truth is that, given the very nature of the topic, intelligence matters do not have a natural public constituency and do not generally arise for discussion around America's dinner tables. But, as Mr. BEILENSON also pointed out, perhaps that is as it should be—and I would argue that fact is a testament to the successes we have had with our intelligence operations, for the most part. Yes, there have been some high profile problems—and we have worked hard to be sure we deal with them expeditiously and effectively. But overall, the way you know that there is good news in the intelligence world is when you hear no news at all. That is how the intelligence business works—the success stories are those that never become stories at all, because good, accurate, and timely intelligence allowed us to prevent bad things from happening.

Mr. Speaker, it is my view that the changing world around us makes good intelligence more necessary than ever before. There are more varied threats and more dispersed targets and the need for us to have well-tuned and properly trained eyes and ears has never been greater. The Intelligence Oversight Committees of this Congress recognize that and have conducted our oversight in a thoughtful and comprehensive manner. In addition to the efforts of our House committee, known as IC 21, which made some very important recommendations for adapting our intelligence capabilities to be ready for the next century, there was also the so-called Aspin-Brown Commission Review, which I was privileged to serve on. These efforts have laid down the groundwork and we now must move ahead in developing consensus and implementing meaningful change. Finally, Mr. Speaker, let me say that everyone understands the intense competition that exists in our finite budget world when it comes to the expenditure of America's tax dollars.

We know that that intelligence is a necessary commodity that saves lives and allows for prudent decisionmaking by our leaders, decisions that are not just involved with the military, although we all know that is a major component, but decisions also in other vital areas, such as fighting terrorism and dealing with the international drug problems.

I think this bill addresses these needs, although I think we must guard against expanding international law enforcement activity at the expense of intelligence operations.

Mr. Speaker, this is a fair rule, and it is a good bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BEILENSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I thank my good friend, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. GOSS], for yielding the customary half hour of debate time to me.

Mr. Speaker, we do not oppose House Resolution 529, the rule for the conference report on H.R. 3259, the Intelligence Authorization Act for fiscal year 1997, which the gentleman from Florida explained so well. We do, however, have concerns about the waivers of several standing House rules that the resolution provides, and wanted to mention them to the membership.

The resolution protects against possible points of order, provisions that violate rules that prohibit conference committees from including provisions, one, that are outside the committee's scope; two, that are not germane to the legislation; three, that violate the Budget Act; and four, that provide appropriations in a legislative bill.

The resolution also waives the 3-day layover rule, whose purpose is to ensure that Members have the opportunity to examine a conference agreement, and with respect to this particular measure, the classified annex to the report. We are not yet convinced that the House is so short on time just now that disregarding this important rule is necessary.

Many of us believe that we should be much more cautious in general about providing such significant waivers in so routine a fashion. Many waivers are purely technical in nature, and we all know that in order to keep House operations moving along, it is sometimes necessary to exempt some legislation or provisions of legislation from certain standing rules of the House. But Members should at the least be told exactly what is being protected by waivers and the necessity and the reason for them before being asked to vote on a rule granting them.

Mr. Speaker, with respect to the conference agreement itself, we continue to be disturbed about several provisions in the bill, and most especially those dealing with funding levels. Total spending authorized in the conference report exceeds the amount appropriated for fiscal year 1996 by 4.2 percent and is 2.3 percent above the President's fiscal year 1997 request.

We only have to pick up the morning newspapers to be reminded that the world is still a very dangerous place and we must not remain silent without and within our borders. But we are operating under severe and very real budget constraints, and we are suggesting only that intelligence programs and activities should be subject to the same level of severe scrutiny as are other functions of the Federal Government.

A considerable amount of effort, Mr. Speaker, has been spent over the last 2 years on proposals for intelligence reform. We are pleased to see that some steps have been taken in the conference report to enhance the ability of the Director of Central Intelligence to get a handle on spending within the intelligence community. But we do have reservations about the provisions creating, in the name of reform, four new deputy or assistant directors of Central Intelligence who require Senate confirmation.

The legislation creates new assistant DCI's for collection, analysis, and for production, and for administration under a new deputy DCI for community management. However, the legislation only gives these new ADCI's a coordination function. Placing four officials requiring Senate confirmation into an organization of approximately 100 people seems excessive and an unnecessary layer of bureaucracy. In addition, this is an area where the management staff is supposed to be professional or outside politics, and so I express the hope that future Congresses will handle these appointments with a great deal of caution to avoid their politicization.

The conference report also contains a provision that is intended to clarify that law enforcement agencies may request that intelligence agencies collect information overseas on non-United States persons. While we appreciate the fact that many of the most serious national security threats to the United States now arise in the intersections between law enforcement, intelligence and diplomacy, we do hope there will be careful oversight of how these three communities are working together in order to ensure respect for the civil liberties of the people of the United States.

We also have concerns, Mr. Speaker, about the apparent lack of meaningful, substantive reforms to give the Director of Central Intelligence more authority over the intelligence functions of the Department of Defense.

Many of us agree with the blue ribbon commissions that have issued reports advising that the only way to ensure that our national security operations are coordinated, are not being duplicated by another intelligence office, is to put one person in charge of the entire community. Unfortunately, the conference agreement has only very minor provisions designed to strengthen, indeed, very modestly, the authority of the Director of Central Intelligence.

I hope the Congress will revisit this issue next year and be successful in placing authority and responsibility in a single office, so that one person can exercise that authority as necessary.

Mr. Speaker, if I might, ending here, I would like to add a brief personal note. As many of my colleagues know, I had the privilege of serving on the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence for 7 years, two of those years as its chairman. Those were among the most challenging and rewarding years in Congress for me.

I simply want to thank my colleagues, those with whom I served on the committee, many of whom remain only committee, and those who have followed us, for the dedication and the enormous amount of time and energy they give to the work of the committee, especially the gentleman from Texas, the chairman, Mr. COMBEST, and the gentleman from Washington, Mr. DICKS, the ranking member, and also our mutual friend, and also my colleague on the Committee on Rules, probably the only person around here who has much of a background in intelligence and really knows what he is talking about, the gentleman from Florida, Mr. GOSS, for the dedication and enormous amount of time and energy that they give to the work of the committee. And also I would like to personally attest to the fact that the committee staff is among the best in Congress, and I thank them too, as I know we all do, for helping make this committee outstanding.

Mr. Speaker, to repeat, we are not opposed to this rule providing waivers for the conference report on the intelligence authorization bill. We urge our colleagues to approve it, so we may expedite consideration of the conference agreement.

Mr. Speaker, I have no requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I understand that the gentleman from California [Mr. BEILENSON] has yielded back the balance of his time, and I have no further speakers, but I would be remiss if I did not take a minute to thank Mr. BEILENSON for his extraordinary service to this House, to his country, to the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, to the Committee on Rules, and to his many other endeavors in this institution. He is a credit to himself, clearly, but not only that, he leaves this House better than he found it, and I think he leaves this country better than it was before he started in public service. I am very proud to say that, and count him among my friends.

I demurred from participating last night in the colloquy for Mr. BEILENSON and Mr. MOORHEAD, where many nice things were said, primarily because it was done by Californians. But I want Mr. BEILENSON to understand that Floridians feel the same way, although we have to be a little more circumspect how we say it.

I also wanted to say with the point on the rule that Mr. BEILENSON brought up, the discussion that took place yesterday on the waivers, we did have some conversation on the record in the committee, and much of what Mr. BEILENSON has talked about was testified to by the gentleman from Texas, Chairman COMBEST, and the gentleman from Washington, Mr. DICKS, and I believe has properly been attended to. It is a matter in the classified annex, but I agree with Mr. BEILENSON's general philosophy on that.

I can assure the gentleman that I am satisfied, having participated in some of that, that I think everything is in order, and I know the gentleman would accept the statements of Mr. COMBEST and Mr. DICKS.

Mr. Speaker, having said all that, I have nothing further to add, except I urge support of this rule.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 529, I call up the conference report on the bill (H.R. 3259) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 1997 for intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the U.S. Government, the community management account, and the Central Intelligence Agency Retirement and Disability System, and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 529, the conference report is considered as having been read.

(For conference report and statement, see proceedings of the House of September 24, 1996, at page H10937.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Texas [Mr. COMBEST] and the gentleman from Washington [Mr. DICKS] each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas [Mr. COMBEST].

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the conference report for H.R. 3259, the Intelligence Authorization Act for fiscal year 1997.

H.R. 3259 authorizes appropriations for the intelligence activities of the U.S. Government. H.R. 3259 makes a modest increase of 2.3 percent over the President's request; it is 2.2 percent higher than last year's appropriation, adjusted for inflation. We continue to believe that intelligence, more than ever, must be our first line of defense, of warning and of analysis. Dollars well-spent on intelligence are, I believe, fewer than dollars we would be forced to spend elsewhere if our intelligence capabilities decreased.

I also wish to call my colleagues' attention to a number of provisions in this bill that will set the intelligence community on the road to a 21st century structure and function.

At the outset of this Congress, the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence embarked on a major study, IC21: The Intelligence Community in the 21st Century. Committee majority staff produced what I believe is already recognized as a landmark study on how the Intelligence Community can be transformed so as to be best able to deal with the national security issues we may face in the future.

We did not get enacted all of the many recommendations we made. Indeed, I recognized at the outset of IC21 that we were unlikely to get it all done in one Congress. Like so many of the major national security reforms of the past—the National Security Act, Goldwater-Nichols—this is a multiyear, multi-Congress effort.

But I think H.R. 3259 makes a useful start, largely by beginning to give the Director of Central Intelligence the management tools he needs so that his capabilities begin to match his responsibilities as head of the entire Intelligence Community.

Finally, I wish to thank all of the members of our committee on both sides of the aisle who have worked so hard on this legislation, and those Members of the other body with whom we share responsibility for this important legislation. I also want to thank our staff, who have put in long hours and, more importantly, serious and creative thoughts and hard work in the crafting of this bill.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume, and I rise in support of the conference report on H.R. 3259.

At the outset I want to commend the gentleman from Texas, Chairman COMBEST, for the effort he has devoted to bringing this legislation back to the House. I also want to join him in complimenting our staff. I think the staff of the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence is extraordinarily professional and effective and does a very good job for this institution.

The intelligence authorization had relatively smooth sailing in the House last May, but its passage through the Senate was difficult, to say the least. On more than one occasion it appeared likely that there would be no authorization bill for intelligence programs and activities in fiscal year 1997. In my judgment, that result would have been bad for the congressional oversight process and bad for the intelligence agencies.

Chairman COMBEST's persistence and his willingness to compromise when it was necessary, without sacrificing the essence of the positions taken by the House, contributed immeasurably to our having reached this point in the legislative process.

The conference report contains an overall authorization level which is 2.3 percent above the amount requested by President Clinton in part because a significant amount recently requested by the administration for counterterrorism activities is included. Even with this initiative, the conference report is 1.5 percent below the level approved by the House in May.

I believe the increase above the request is justifiable given the costs inherent in many sophisticated intelligence collection systems, and the absolute necessity of ensuring that our policymakers and military commanders have access to the most comprehensive, reliable, and timely information possible on which to base their decisions and actions. Intelligence is expensive, but the cost of not having information about threats to our national security is incalculable.

The Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence devoted a great deal of time in this Congress to the questions of how the intelligence community should be structured for the next century. In that endeavor the committee was joined not only by its Senate counterpart but by the Aspin-Brown Commission, on which I served, and several other groups. Out of these efforts emerged many thought-provoking ideas, some of which deserve further consideration.

What did not emerge, however, was a consensus on the question of whether or not the community needed fundamental organizational change. There was simply no showing and certainly no conclusion by executive branch officials that the current structure hinders the effective conduct of intelligence activities.

The relationship between the Secretary of Defense and the Director of Central Intelligence on intelligence matters, particularly the intelligence budget, is key to the management of the intelligence community. Currently that relationship works. In the absence of any evidence that it cannot continue to do so, there is simply no impetus for radical change.

The conference report does, however, make some changes in the community's structure. Despite my support for the conference agreement, I have reservations about placing additional layers of bureaucracy on the community's organizational charts. It is not all clear what purpose three Assistant Directors of Central Intelligence will serve, nor is it clear what shortcomings in the existing structure they are to remedy.

When the reform process began last year, its stated purpose in the House and in the other body was to produce a more streamlined, flexible intelligence community. I am concerned that what we have done, instead, is to create more Senate-confirmed positions whose occupants will spend most of their time searching for something productive to do.

Despite these reservations, I intend to support the conference agreement because I believe that, on balance, it makes progress in some technical collection areas in which innovation is necessary. I urge my colleagues to give it their support as well.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume to make certain the record is complete and say that I join with my colleague from Washington in concerns about the three new deputies in CIA. That was the recommendation made in the other legislative body. We arrived at a conference report which did include that, but I do have those reservations and concerns as well.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 6 minutes to the gentleman from New Mexico [Mr. RICHARDSON].

(Mr. RICHARDSON asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, first let me commend the gentleman from Texas, Chairman COMBEST, and the ranking member, the gentleman from Washington, Mr. DICKS, for the comity and excellent relationship they have that enable our committee to be bipartisan, especially in an area that is as critically important to the country as intelligence and national security.

This is a committee that works well together. Sure, we have disagreements and differences in style and sometimes substance, but, in general, both Members make sure that the bipartisanship is there.

Second, let me say that I think this bill is important because it is the first major piece of legislation where the shift into human intelligence is dramatic, the way it should be. As we are going to face challenges that are no longer related to one country but are transnational, problems of international terrorism and drugs and nuclear outlaws and rogue states and economic competition, it is critically important we beef up our intelligence capabilities, our human intelligence capabilities.

It is critically important that we understand Islamic fundamentalism. That is going to take more linguists. To be perfectly candid, it will take more spies. It is going to take more James Bonds. This is something that should not be viewed as being a bit farfetched, but it basically means that covert operations are going to be needed once again to deal with these problems of nuclear nonproliferation and the problems of rogue states and international outlaws and terrorism and narcotics. These problems are transnational.

I think President Clinton very accurately outlined the threats to our country in his speech to the United Nations yesterday in which very proudly the United States led the effort to stop nuclear testing, and the treaty was signed. Only three states did not support this. We are moving in a very important direction, especially since nuclear proliferation is one of the biggest challenges that the Western world and the United States will face in the days ahead.

Mr. Speaker, I support this conference report that provides an authorization for intelligence and intelligence-related activities. I want to highlight one specific section that I had a little bit to do with, section 309 of the conference agreement, which deals with the use by U.S. intelligence agencies of American journalists as intelligence agents or assets.

Section 309 is similar to an amendment to the House bill which I authored and which, after modification by the gentleman from Pennsylvania, Congressman MURTHA, was adopted by a vote of 417 to 6. The enactment of the conference report will place in statute for the first time a policy statement that correspondents or representatives of the U.S. media organizations may not be used to collect intelligence.

Nothing could be more detrimental to the safety of U.S. journalists who work in dangerous places overseas and who by the very nature of their profession must be constantly asking questions and trying to discover information than to be suspected as a spy for the United States. This could have drastic consequences, and in some cases it has.

As I noted when my amendment was debated in the House last May, there is a distinction between reporters as commentators on Government and reporters as instruments of government. The prohibition in this conference report on the use of American journalists as intelligence agents or assets will underscore and strengthen that distinction.

The language in section 309 would not prevent those journalists who choose to provide information to a U.S. intelligence agency from doing so. It also recognizes that there may be extraordinary circumstance in which the prohibition needs to be waived in the interest of our national security. In those rare cases, however, the national security determination must be made in writing and the intelligence committees must be informed.

Mr. Speaker, section 309 is consistent with the independence guaranteed to the press by our constitution, and it is consistent with the proper discharge of our responsibility to protect as best we can American journalists who travel or work in difficult circumstances overseas. I urge that we better ensure the safety of those journalists by passing this conference agreement.

Mr. Speaker, in conclusion, again I want to thank the chairman of the committee for his very liberal and positive use, in my judgment, of allowing me to undertake international missions, sometimes on behalf of the administration, other times on behalf of the committee. He has been extremely cooperative every single time, and I am most grateful.

And to the ranking member, Mr. DICKS, the same thanks for his unyielding support. I want to commend both gentlemen for their bipartisan effort in running this committee.

Mr. Speaker, I support the conference report to provide an authorization for the coming fiscal year for intelligence and intelligence-related activities.

I want to highlight section 309 of the conference agreement which deals with the use by U.S. intelligence agencies of U.S. journalists as intelligence agents or assets. Section 309 is similar to an amendment to the House bill which I authored and which, after modification by Congressman MURTHA, was adopted by a vote of 417 to 6.

The enactment of the conference report will place in statute for the first time a policy statement that correspondents or representatives of U.S. news media organizations may not be used to collect intelligence. I urge that we better ensure the safety of these journalists by passing this conference agreement.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I yield to the gentleman from New Mexico.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, I want to commend the gentleman from New Mexico [Mr. RICHARDSON] for his extraordinary service to the committee. He has undertaken a series of international initiatives which have been completely successful and important to our country. I just want him to know how much I personally appreciate his work and efforts and his tireless energy, especially in the area of human rights and protecting Americans internationally.

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, I would say to the gentleman from New Mexico that this is the first time I have ever been commended for my liberal views, but I appreciate that.

I would be remiss as well, and was planning to rise to pay commendation to the gentleman from New Mexico. I have served with him the entire time I have been on the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence. In fact, I think the gentleman from New Mexico is serving continuously longer than any other member of the committee.

He has done yeoman work which not only the Congress but the American people are aware of and has traveled extensively, probably our most extensive traveler, but he is quite successful. The only thing I have ever asked of Mr. RICHARDSON when he travels is he bring more back than he took with him, and he has done a great job.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from California [Ms. WATERS].

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to discuss an important intelligence matter that is not contained in this conference report and, hopefully, I can establish a colloquy with the ranking member, the gentleman from Washington, Congressman DICKS, on this matter.

I am speaking about recent reports that hired CIA operatives sold drugs in the United States to fund the Nicaraguan contra operations in the early 1980's. The crack cocaine operation started by those that were involved in this particular project caused the introduction of the substance to south central Los Angeles and to other inner-city communities.

Now, news of this scandal has spread across America like wildfire, and there has been a flurry of activities around these reports. Today, I would first like to commend Congressman DICKS, along with the gentleman from California, Congressman DIXON, and the gentleman from Texas, Congressman COMBEST, for their response to the request to open investigations around this issue.

I would like to ask Congressman DICKS, who is here with us today, whether or not he feels it is possible for the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence to provide the kind of investigation that can satisfy the citizens of this country, one way or the other, that our Government, the CIA, DEA, was or was not involved in this kind of activity.

The reason I ask the gentleman this is because of his seniority on the committee. He knows the quality of the work there. There is a lot of suspicion from the calls that I receive that there will not be the kind of investigation that will reap the kind of information that we need to put this issue to rest.

I would like to ask the gentleman whether or not he thinks this committee is up to the chore, up to the job. What can we expect?

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. WATERS. I yield to the gentleman from Washington.

□ 1115

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, first of all, I want to commend the gentlewoman for her attention to this very serious matter. As someone who has a McClatchy paper in my district, when I read these two articles, I was stunned by them. Of course, the conclusions drawn there are done by inference. As you know, the Central Intelligence Agency denies complicity in this series of events.

Having said that, first of all, I think I wanted to give my assurance, and certainly I would like to have the chairman have an opportunity to comment here as well, my assurance that our committee will look into this completely and fully because we take it as a very serious matter.

I called Director Deutch when I read the articles and told him that I thought this was going to be a very serious problem and that he had to personally get involved and find out as much about this as he could.

The Director has done that, and he has asked that. He has also stated that he does not believe that the CIA was involved, but he has asked the independent inspector general to completely look at this matter. That is underway. We are going to have an investigation over the next 60 days.

Then there will be a report to the committee, which we will then look at, as we conduct our own investigation going back and looking at events surrounding the Iran-Contra affair and previous reports that were done on this issue, because this is not the first time that this issue has come up.

Also, I am told that the Attorney General has directed the Justice Department's inspector general to also conduct an investigation into the Department's knowledge and involvement, if any, in this issue, the involvement of the CIA in this issue. So we have the Justice Department looking at this; General McCaffrey has also said, the drug czar for the President, that they are looking at it; and the Director of the CIA and this committee and our counterpart in the Senate I assume will look at it as well.

I hope for the sake of the American people that we are able to investigate this matter. I hope and pray that the story is not accurate. I think it would be a devastating blow to the intelligence community, to the country, and to thousands of Americans who have been affected by crack cocaine if this, in fact, proved to be true or if there was even knowledge about it and no action was taken at the time.

I will just give the gentlewoman, the only pledge I can give you is that the minority member of the Select Committee on Intelligence, the gentleman from California [Mr. DIXON], has been very much involved. We will vigorously pursue this to try to find the truth and to present it to the American people.

Maybe the gentleman from Texas [Mr. COMBEST] would like to enter into this at this juncture.

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. WATERS. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, just to make certain that there is a complete record, first of all, all of the assurances that the gentleman from Washington has given, I certainly stand behind and support. Congressman DIXON, a member of our committee, is the first Member of the House that brought this to our attention. I think that was simultaneous with the gentlewoman's understanding of the potential problem. The assurances were given at that time to Congressman DIXON that there would be a complete investigation. The staff was asked to embark immediately on a full, thorough, and tenacious investigation.

There are a number of other reports and investigations this committee has done that are not mentioned in this conference report either. So it is not that we are sliding your concerns about this matter. Those are matters that would not be normally brought up in a conference report.

I would also like to mention to the gentlewoman, and, Mr. Speaker, I will include in the RECORD a letter that the gentlewoman from California [Ms. WATERS] sent to me, a response that I sent to her in regard to the committee's actions and the fact that the Central Intelligence Agency had begun an IG's report, had also contacted the Attorney General as well; and a letter to me from the Speaker in which he references a contact that he had received from Ms. WATERS and his concerns and his requests that the committee report back to the Speaker, who is ex officio on this committee as well, so that there is a complete paper trail in this discussion on the part of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD about the committee's interests, the Speaker's interest, the gentlewoman's interest, the interest of the gentleman from Washington, Congressman DIXON's interest. It is a matter that I hope as well does not prove true, but it is not one that we have any preconceived discussions or decisions about. We will investigate it with all vigor.

I thank the gentlewoman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I include for the RECORD the letters to which I referred:

OFFICE OF THE SPEAKER,
U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC, September 18, 1996.

HON. LARRY COMBEST,
Chairman, House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN COMBEST: Enclosed is a letter and enclosures I have received from Congresswoman Maxine Waters concerning a recent series of articles that appeared in the San Jose Mercury News that allege CIA involvement in the introduction, financing and distribution of crack cocaine in Los Angeles.

I request that your committee investigate the allegations contained in these articles in an effort to determine the truth of the matter. I would appreciate your reporting to me the findings and conclusions of your investigation as soon as they are available.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

NEWT GINGRICH,
Speaker of the House.

Enclosure.

U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
PERMANENT SELECT COMMITTEE ON INTELLIGENCE,
Washington, DC. September 18, 1996.

Hon. MAXINE WATERS,
Cannon Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE WATERS: I am writing in response to your letter of September 17, 1996, concerning press allegations about CIA assets being involved in crack cocaine distribution in California.

I have already instructed the staff of the Intelligence Committee to investigate these allegations and have sent letters to DCI Deutch and Attorney General Reno requesting the cooperation of their agencies with our efforts.

I know you have seen the press reports that DCI Deutch has instructed the CIA Inspector General to investigate these allegations as well. I think this is a worthwhile step. It has been Committee practice to withhold any final statements on issues of this sort until the Inspector General has reported. I think it is prudent that we follow this course on this issue.

I understand your concern and appreciate your interest. Please feel free to contact me or the Committee staff director, Mark Lowenthal, if we may be of further help on this matter.

Sincerely,

LARRY COMBEST,
Chairman.

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC, September 17, 1996.

Hon. LARRY COMBEST,
Chairman, Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, The Capitol, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. COMBEST: I call your attention to an astonishing series of articles which appeared August 18–20, 1996 in the San Jose Mercury News. This report traces the origins of the crack cocaine trade in South-Central Los Angeles to the early Central Intelligence Agency (C.I.A.)–directed effort to raise funds for the Contra rebels seeking to overthrow the Nicaraguan government in the early 1980s. The CIA-connected agents who smuggled cocaine into the United States, converted it into crack, and sold it on the streets of Los Angeles. They subsequently expanded their business into other inner city neighborhoods throughout this country.

Because of their seriousness, I believe these charges must be examined, in detail, as quickly as possible by Congress. As the chairman of the Intelligence Committee, I believe you can begin this process.

What is being alleged is that portions of the United States government—in particular, members of our intelligence community—may have exposed, indeed introduced, the horror of crack cocaine to many American citizens. I, and many people in communities across America, are horrified by the documented travails of these activities. As policymakers, we have an obligation to uncover the truth in this matter.

I believe Congress, and in particular the United States House of Representatives, must take swift, serious, and forceful action to show the American people we are determined to examine the allegations leveled by these reports. Moreover, we must show our determination to punish the drug dealers who have literally destroyed thousands of American families through the horrors of crack cocaine and the violence associated with it.

I understand we are approaching the end of this session of Congress. However, I believe these charges are so serious that they warrant Congress' immediate attention, even if that necessitates extraordinary procedures.

I look forward to working with you on this most serious matter. your committee is charged with one of the most important responsibilities in Congress. With your help, I believe we can start a process that will give us answers to the serious questions raised by the San Jose Mercury News. Thank you in advance for your cooperation.

Sincerely,

MAXINE WATERS.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, if the gentlewoman will continue to yield, I would also like to insert in the RECORD a letter that the chairman and I sent to Mr. Deutch. I do not believe that was mentioned by the chairman.

I would also like to put in the RECORD a response that was given to us from John Moseman, director of congressional affairs, and also another letter that was sent to me by Mr. Deutch after I had talked to him on the phone about this issue on, late in August, just to complete the RECORD.

The letters are as follows:

CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY,
Washington, DC, September 4, 1996.

Hon. NORMAN D. DICKS,
Ranking Democratic Member, Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. DICKS: As you and I discussed in a 4 September conversation, allegations have been made by the San Jose Mercury News that the Central Intelligence Agency engaged in drug trafficking to support the Contras in their effort to overthrow the Sandinista government in Nicaragua. Specifically, the Mercury News alleges or infers a relationship between the Agency and drug smuggling activities in which two Nicaraguan nationals, Oscar Danilo Blandon Reyes and Juan Norwin Meneses Cantarero, were engaged.

I consider these to be extremely serious charges. The review I ordered of Agency files, including a study conducted in 1988 and briefed to both intelligence committees, supports the conclusion that the Agency neither participated in nor condoned drug trafficking by Contra forces. In particular, the Agency never had any relationship with either Blandon or Meneses, nor did it ever seek to have information concerning either of them withheld in the trial of Rick Ross.

Although I believe there is no substance to the allegations in the Mercury News, I do wish to dispel any lingering public doubt on the subject. Accordingly, I have asked the Agency's Inspector General to conduct an immediate and thorough internal review of all the allegations concerning the Agency published by the newspaper.

I will write again to report to you when the Inspector General's review is completed. I have asked that the review be finished within 60 days.

An similar letter is being sent to Chairman Combest.

Sincerely,

JOHN DEUTCH,
Director of Central Intelligence.

U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
PERMANENT SELECT COMMITTEE ON INTELLIGENCE,
Washington, DC. September 17, 1996.

Hon. JOHN M. DEUTCH,
Director of Central Intelligence,
Washington, DC.

DEAR DR. DEUTCH: We have read with concern the recent series of articles that appeared in the San Jose Mercury News alleging Central Intelligence Agency involvement in the introduction, financing and distribution of crack cocaine into communities of Los Angeles. According to the articles, these activities were undertaken to provide a continuing stream of support to the Nicaraguan Democratic Resistance in their efforts to overthrow the leftist Sandinista government.

These allegations, if true, raise serious concerns about the activities of the United States intelligence community in support of the Nicaraguan Democratic Resistance. To effectively discharge the responsibilities of this Committee, we have instructed the staff to undertake an investigation of the charges leveled in the Mercury News. In order to complete this undertaking it will be necessary for staff to review certain documents in the possession of the CIA and to interview relevant Agency personnel. In this regard, we request that necessary information and personnel be made available to the Committee staff. The documents necessary for the Committee to complete its investigation will be specified as the investigation proceeds.

Allegations of the sort contained in the Mercury News erode public confidence in the Central Intelligence Agency. While we commend your decision to have the Inspector General investigate this matter, the Committee must conduct its own inquiry as part of its oversight responsibilities. Your cooperation in this matter will be greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,

LARRY COMBEST,
Chairman.
NORM D. DICKS,
Ranking Democratic Member.

CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY,
Washington, DC, September 17, 1996.

Hon. NORMAN D. DICKS,
Ranking Democratic Member, Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. DICKS: I am writing in response to your letter of 6 September 1996 to Director Deutch, in which you expressed concern about recent press allegations that the Central Intelligence Agency engaged in drug trafficking in association with the Contras in Nicaragua. We appreciate the concern noted in your letter and stand ready to assist you and the Committee in your review of these extremely serious charges.

The briefing that Agency officers provided to you and Mr. Dixon on 11 September 1996 conveyed our assessment that the Agency neither participated in nor condoned drug trafficking by Contra forces. As the Director has stated, though, we believe it is essential to dispel any public doubt on this subject. In particular, the Director shares your view that the extent and disposition of any knowledge by CIA officials of Contra involvement in drug trafficking must be assessed.

As you know, the Agency Inspector General (IG) has launched an investigation of the allegations and we will keep you apprised of progress and results of that work. Beyond the IG effort, however, I want to reiterate Director Deutch's assurances that we will cooperate fully with you and the Committee in any inquiry you may conduct.

Sincerely,

JOHN H. MOSEMAN,
Director of Congressional Affairs.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the chairman and the ranking member for the cooperation that they have shown thus far in moving toward this investigation. It has been mentioned on any number of occasions that we have had these kinds of investigations, but this one, I think, is very special and different.

While in the past there has been some mention of drugs, there has not been an investigation that tried to determine whether, in fact, there was an introduction of large amounts of cocaine into south central Los Angeles and spread out among the gangs in south central Los Angeles and further to other gangs in other cities, and the proceeds from this drug activity being given to the Contras to fund the FDN.

So it takes a little bit of a different turn here when we look at whether or not CIA operatives were involved in this drug trafficking into inner-city areas. And of course my interest is well known. Part of my district is south central Los Angeles, where that is identified in the San Jose Mercury News report, and part of that district that I represent is plagued with crack cocaine addiction, crack-born babies, violence, gang warfare, turf warfare.

So if I seem a little bit overzealous on this issue, I beg your understanding. It is something that is near and dear to me and an issue that I really do feel we need to get at in this Congress. We have had the so-called war on drugs, but as I read through the records and I see where there was a lot of drug activity around this Contra funding and where we have had operatives involved with drugs who ended up getting off with no time, little time, and all the conversations and the notations in some of the diaries of leading figures in this activity, I want you to know that it leaves me no choice but to be overzealous and to be very, very persistent and to work cooperatively with all of you to try and keep people focused on this new link, this direct link, of drugs into the inner cities.

And maybe it will help us to create a real war on drugs, not just rhetoric, not just public relations efforts, but a real effort by the Congress of the United States to rid our communities of drugs and crack cocaine, one of the most awful drugs that any human being could have ever introduced.

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, if the gentlewoman will continue to yield, one other matter that I think would be pertinent to mention at this time: The gentleman from Ohio [Mr. STOKES], who in fact at one time was chairman of this committee and was a member of the Iran-Contra Committee, we understand there is a letter on its way to the committee from Mr. STOKES requesting that he be granted access to documents during the time he served as chairman to further investigate part of the Iran-Contra papers.

I have discussed this with Mr. DICKS and we have, are going to take that up with the where the committee would have to vote to approve that. The committee will have absolutely no objection to that and will take that up this afternoon at a hearing at 2:00, assuming that we have that letter. So we are trying to move as expeditiously as possible to help Mr. STOKES in his inquiries as well.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding that, as chairman of the committee, you automatically have subpoena powers; is that correct?

Mr. COMBEST. The gentlewoman is correct.

Ms. WATERS. And that you may choose to use those subpoena powers at any point in your investigation and your hearings?

Mr. COMBEST. The gentlewoman is correct.

Ms. WATERS. I thank the gentleman very much. I just wanted to put that on the RECORD, because the question has been asked of me by people calling in.

Mr. DICKS. I want to commend the gentlewoman for her leadership on this issue and tell her that we will work very closely with her.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. SKAGGS].

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Speaker, as the discussion just concluded indicates, a free and democratic country such as ours faces a peculiar predicament in trying to deal with secrets, with spying, with the activities of the intelligence community in a way that is as consistent as possible with our democratic values and the principles of open government. It is a ticklish and delicate responsibility that this committee undertakes on behalf of the full membership of the House.

I just want to commend both the gentleman from Texas, our chairman, and our ranking member from Washington State and the fine staff that the committee has for this ongoing effort.

One of the things that we are able to talk about in debate and in the open is the efforts that are ongoing to try to deal with the system of classification of national security information. This bill continues the effort that has been under way for a couple of years now to push the intelligence community, both with regard to greater discipline in classifying information and improved activity toward declassification of old material or material that no longer really has national security significance, so that as much as possible we can bring the records of this Government into the public domain, when they present no further risk to national security, and honor as much as we possibly can the important principle that this is the people's government and they ought to know as much as they can about what goes on.

Related to that is, again, an important provision in this bill that continues the efforts that have been under way for a couple of years as well, to bring into public domain and access, information gathered through our intelligence assets that relate to very pressing global and domestic environmental issues.

I think we all recognize that much of this country's foreign policy and national security issues will derive directly or indirectly from the pressures of environmental degradation, population growth, all that goes with that.

It is important that we make available to the civilian community, the folks outside the national security establishment, as much of the information as we can relating to these issues that happens to have come into our possession through overhead imagery and other assets that the intelligence community has.

This bill, along with pushing on declassification in general, also increases the funding levels for moving some of this material out of the classified realm and sharing it with appropriate agencies of government, civilian researchers, and others that can put to productive use this very significant information that we happen to acquire through out intelligence capabilities. I want to thank again Mr. COMBEST and Mr. DICKS for their willingness and help in bringing the bill along in this respect.

I urge adoption of the conference report.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentlewoman from Oregon [Ms. FURSE], my good friend and colleague.

Ms. FURSE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

I want to refer to the conversation that took place earlier regarding the crack situation, the articles of crack cocaine being brought in to fund the Nicaraguan war.

There are two points I would like to make: One, that did not just happen in east Los Angeles. It is my understanding from this article that a notorious drug dealer who plagued Portland, OR, the gangs moved into Portland, OR, and they brought the crack cocaine, is also implicated in this issue. So this is a nationwide problem that every one of us needs to be concerned about.

The second issue I would like to bring to the chairman and the ranking member is an issue of immigration. We are going to deal with an immigration bill later today, but I wanted to quote from a judge who talked about a notorious person, a Mr. Meneses, who was very involved in this. He was arrested in 1991 in Nicaragua. The judge, Judge Martha Quezada, said, ''How do you explain the fact that Norwin Meneses, implicated since 1974 in the trafficking of drugs, has not been detained in the United States, a country in which he entered, lived, departed many times since 1974?''

The contras who were funded with this drug money had their base camps in Honduras at the time. There are allegations that some of them were involved in cases of disappearances in Honduras. Right now, in a landmark case, Honduran military officers have been indicted for their involvement with human rights violations and their trial is pending. Some of those military officers had very close ties to the contras.

During the early 1980's the United States sent millions of dollars to the Honduran military as a bulwark against the Sandinista government in Nicaragua and against the guerrillas in both El Salvador and Guatemala. We built and operated military bases, airfields, and sophisticated radar systems on Honduran territory. The United States Government also helped to establish, train, and equip a special military unit which was responsible for kidnapping, torture, disappearance, and murder of at least 184 Honduran citizens; students, professors, journalists, and human rights activists.

Human rights investigators have been thwarted by a dearth of information within Honduras. Our Government has records that would be useful to those in the Honduran Government who are attempting to bring justice and prosecute those who are guilty of human rights atrocities.

Mr. Speaker, I want to stress the importance of declassification of documents, the funding for which is authorized in this conference report. The State Department has provided some initial documents to the Honduran Government. My colleagues, Mr. LANTOS and Mr. PORTER, cochairs of the Congressional Human rights Caucus, are circulating a letter to the President right now that asks for declassification of documents that will help shed light on the situation of human rights abuses in Honduras during the time of our contra-drug connection.

I urge my colleagues to sign Mr. LANTOS' and Mr. PORTER'S letter, and to continue our quest for truth in the morass of problems caused by United States involvement in war against the Nicaraguans.

☐ 1130

So I want to congratulate the chairman and the ranking member for taking this so seriously because it really does implicate so many of the institutions we hold in such high esteem in this country, and I want to say that the citizens of Portland, OR, are extremely concerned that these drugs came into our fair city and have so hurt the lives of young people.

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM], a member of the committee.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding this time to me. I am very concerned about the allegations I have heard discussed this morning about the CIA having had a role in drug trafficking back during the Iran-contra period, mainly because I do not personally think there is any truth to it and I have some personal knowledge about it.

I recall that when I was the ranking member and when we were in the minority on my side of the aisle and I was the ranking member of the Crime Subcommittee of which I am now chairman, then-Chairman Bill Hughes of New Jersey and I spent 2 years investigating the question that is raised by the newspaper accounts that have been reported this morning. We sent committee staff actually live down into the Nicaraguan scene to investigate these allegations. A lot of time, staff time, was spent, and the net result of the 2-year investigation was there was no substantial credible evidence that this occurred.

Mr. Speaker, what we have out here this morning and what we have seen discussed in the last week or so are some newspaper accounts of a statement made by a known criminal in California in a case which has been released to the public now where he has made these allegations, but there is no corroboration of it. I understand that Mr. Deutch, who is the director of the Central Intelligence Agency, has said he will thoroughly look into this again, but I feel very confident that based on what I know and having been through this process for 2 years with an investigative team, that there is going to be no credible evidence turned up to corroborate this.

I do not doubt there may have been some drug dealing by somebody who was in some way connected historically with a group that was involved with the contras, but to say they were out there raising money at the behest of the U.S. Government, the CIA was helping them, and that kind of innuendo, I think is putting the horse before the cart and making some conclusions or suggested conclusions that just are not warranted at this time, and I would urge my colleagues to refrain from jumping to any conclusions about this matter.

Let the CIA do its investigation.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MCCOLLUM. I yield to the gentlewoman from California.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to caution the gentleman, before he takes such a tough stand in defense of the CIA, that there has been testimony under oath in Federal court in northern California by Mr. Blandon that he indeed under oath said he worked for the CIA, and it is also recorded and documented that he was a known drug dealer.

So I want to caution the gentleman that there is testimony under oath in Federal court by one of the CIA operatives, and the gentleman from Florida needs to know that.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I want to reclaim my time and say, so one person has said this under oath; I do not doubt he has. I am suggesting his credibility is seriously in question, has been all along. We knew about Mr. Blandon at the time that we did our investigation in the Subcommittee on Crime several years ago, and that was one of the primary reasons why we did the investigation, was because of this whole trail.

I am not saying it is not possible, and I am not saying that we should not have the CIA look into it. I am happy they are doing it. All I am suggesting is that this morning there has been nobody questioning these articles. In this discussion we have been sounding like we are taking it as probably true. I think it is probably not true, but we will wait and find out. But my judgment from what I know of it is it is probably not going to be corroborated.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MCCOLLUM. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I just want to caution the gentleman not to do exactly what he is cautioning everybody else not to do. Everybody else has talked about allegations. It is the gentleman who has come to the floor and sprung instinctively to the defense of somebody that we have not even charged with doing anything other than ''let's investigate,'' and for the gentleman to come to the floor and say I have concluded that I do not think these allegations have any basis is the gentleman doing exactly what he is cautioning us not to do.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Reclaiming my time, I have not concluded anything. I am telling my colleagues that at the time we spent 2 years investigating this very subject matter in the Subcommittee on Crime there was no credible evidence to corroborate the allegations that were made. If there had been, we would have been putting it forward back several years ago, and what is now being put on the table in public knowledge in court is very comparable to what we had 2 years ago; and I just doubt, and I am not saying I am concluding it, but I doubt seriously further investigation is going to turn up more, but I am happy to have further investigation. I just do not want it to go past today with all these comments being spread on the record, with innuendoes out there, with the impression being left everybody who knows anything about this in Congress thinks it might be true. I think it in all probability is not, but I do not know that for a fact, just like I was not sure a 100-percent back when we did the investigation. But we sure did not turn up anything, and we spent a lot of time looking for it.

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, how much time is remaining on both sides?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CAMP). The gentleman from Texas [Mr. COMBEST] has 23 minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Washington [Mr. DICKS] has 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Washington [Mr. DICKS], and I ask unianimous consent that the gentleman from Washington be permitted to control that time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, I approrpiate that courtesy and I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. HINCHEY].

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Speaker, I want to express my appreciation to the chairman and the ranking minority member of the committee for their expressed interest in the issues that have been raised this morning by the gentlewoman from California and Oregon.

We are aware of a recent series of articles that appeared in the San Jose Mercury News which once again draws very disturbing attention to allegations that the Central Intelligence Agency during the early years, the decade of the 1980's conspired with former members of the Samosa government in Nicaragua to bring into this country large quantities of cocaine, and that cocaine traffic was used to finance the early years of the war that was lost by the contras against the Nicaraguan Government; and furthermore, that those large quantities of cocaine were distilled into crack cocaine, and that crack cocaine eipidemic then swept from California and the West Coast all the way across this country and constituted the worst epidemic of drug abuse that we have seen in the history of our Nation.

This is an issue that needs detailed, thorough examination.

The reason these stories persist is because prior investigations by this body and other bodies have failed to reach into the very depths of the problem and uncover precisely what went on here.

I am not suggesting that there was a coverup, but what I am suggesting however is this: that there was an inadequate investigation by the Iran-Contra Committee and by other investigative bodies that looked into this issue in the past.

This issue will not die, it will not go away until it is resolved once and for all, until we get to the very bottom of it, until we know precisely and exactly what occurred, and it is critical that we do so because the veracity and authenticity of very important agencies within this Government are at stake, and until we know exactly what happened and who was involved in it and what went on, this issue will not rest.

It is the responsibility of this Congress to look at this matter and to look at it with the utmost care, concern and in the greater depth and detail, and I am very grateful that we have had these expressions of support in this regard from both the chairman and the ranking member this morning. This is something that we have to get to the bottom of.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentlewoman from California [Ms. PELOSI] who is a valued member of our Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I thank our ranking member for giving me this time today and for his leadership, as well as that of the gentleman from Texas [Mr. COMBEST], of the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence.

While we do not always agree on many of the issues before the committee, I do want to associate myself with the comments that went before regarding the investigation of the potential drug Contra crack cocaine into the United States and especially into the African-American community.

Before I go into that, though, I want to associate myself with the remarks of my distinguished colleague, the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. SKAGGS], that he made on the declassification issue and on the environmental issues related to the resources of the intelligence community and to thank him for his leadership on those two scores, as well as others, that come before our committee. They are both very important, and in the interest of time I will just associate myself with his remarks and spend my time on the issue of the crack cocaine.

I think it is perfectly appropriate that we have the exchange that we have had. Certainly we do not want to just make accusations, we want to see what is real about them in order for us to keep faith with the American people, with the intelligence community, and as my colleagues know, that is a big order.

I would just like to say that when I first came to Congress, which was 9 years ago, shortly thereafter we had a conference in our community, headed up by Dr. Cecil Williams of the Glide memorial to see why we had this epidemic of crack cocaine among African-American women. There were those in the African-American community who thought, and others of us who shared their view, that there was an attempt to target these women as well as targeting the African-American family. It seemed like an act of the devil, and I had hoped that it was not true, and I still do hope that it is not true.

So that is why when the articles came out in the newspaper and we heard other rumors of this, it rang true, it related to something, and hopefully again it is not true, but it does beg the question. If the Central Intelligence Agency was not involved, and let us hope they were not, did they know that the Contras were involved in drug trafficking at a time when the United States was funding the Contras? If they did not know, if the Central Intelligence Agency did not know that the Contras were engaged in drug trafficking to get money, why did they not know? Is it not the business of the Central Intelligence Agency?

So while I respect the first response that we have received from Director Deutch, whom I hold in high regard, I do think that we have to look into this, and that is why I was so pleased to hear our chairman, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. COMBEST], respond to the gentlewoman from California [Ms. WATERS] that the subpoena powers would be available; that is my understanding, and that I thank the gentlewoman from California [Ms. WATERS] for her leadership and the gentleman from New York [Mr. HINCHEY] for speaking out on this issue.

But we are at a crossroads. Much has been said about the end of the cold war and the rest. We are at a crossroads now where we look at the intelligence community and say why are we committing x number of billions of dollars in resources to this? Why is it justified? And there has to be a justification in this stiff competition for the dollar.

At the same time, we have to have confidence We want our President, whoever that President is, to have the best possible intelligence to help make his decisions to help make the world a safer place. We do not want to see us going into a place where intelligence funding is justified by economic espionage or other things that are not appropriate to it; those that are appropriate in the realm of the economy, sure, but not just across the board.

And at this very time we have this very serious question about the integrity of the intelligence community in the past decade, of the CIA in the past decade, at a time where this Congress was divided in a way that new Members have not even seen the likes of.

So I want to associate myself with those, especially the gentlewoman from California [Ms. WATERS], who have expressed grave concern about this issue and again leave on the table the question if this did occur, let us find out, and if it was occurring, this transfer, the sale of crack cocaine for money for the Contras was taking place, and the CIA did not know about it, why did they not know about it?

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California [Mr. LEWIS], a valued member of the committee.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Speaker, I thank very much my chairman for yielding me this time, and I must say that I would like to associate myself with many of the remarks of my colleague from California [Ms. PELOSI] who serves with me on the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence. She could say, as I would, that very much of our work is done behind closed doors.

During the short time that I have been on the committee, I am amazed at the number of hours that we spend looking at these agencies that are so important to our country.

Mr. Speaker, I would start with that comment. The FBI and the CIA and agencies that relate to intelligence work are critical to the interests of our country here at home as well as in the world.

In this time of very significant change in the world, the President needs now more than at any other time excellent sources of information available to him as he represents our interests here at home, but especially abroad. I must say that because we meet behind closed doors, ofttimes the stories of the successes of those agencies are not heard about, let alone told or believed.

On the other hand, I can certainly understand the concern of many of my colleagues, like the gentlewoman from Los Angeles, CA [Ms. WATERS], about the potential impact of any government activity that might affect a community that we would hope to serve here in this Congress, especially as it relates to drugs. Stories in a newspaper are one thing. Believing those stories automatically is another. For goodness sakes, in my own campaigns I have seen stories developed by so-called reputable people that I wish somebody would question before they conclude.

Having said that, it is very, very important that we recognize the impact of drugs upon our society, and not allow a story like this to take our eye off the ball. The ball involves those people who make a living importing drugs and then delivering them to our communities. We should take our gangs and the repeated sellers and throw the key away when they are killing our young people because of their activities.

It is very important that we recognize that the President knows well the successes of these agencies and knows of their importance to his work. At the same time, we in the committee are committed to doing everything we can to make sure if there is any agency involved in this sort of linkage, that they be taken to the wall.

There is work to be done here. Most of it must be done in our intelligence room. I would urge my colleagues not to deal with the extreme sensationalism that is here, that sometimes gets headlines that we all kind of love. In the meantime, it is very important for America that we deal with this responsibly.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentlewoman from California [Ms. PELOSI].

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I just want to respond to the gentleman from California [Mr. LEWIS], and say that I completely agree with him that we should not be taking at face value anything we read in the newspaper, especially something of this gravity. However, we do need to look beyond the headlines. I do not take him to say anything other than that.

I wanted to make one more point. In our Committee on Appropriations last week we had a big item for interdiction, hundreds of millions of dollars we spent for interdiction. We are spending that on the intelligence community to keep drugs out of the United States, and at the same time we do not know, we might not know about one very, very egregious example of drugs coming in which we should have been aware of, that we may have been party to. I think it is a very serious issue.

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Washington [Mr. DICKS], and I ask unanimous consent that he may yield that time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California [Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD], a new Member who is very concerned about this subject and has talked to me about it on several occasions.

Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD. Mr. Speaker, I have come down because I was just getting back to my office when I recognized my colleague, the gentlewoman from California [Ms. WATERS], speaking to this whole issue that we have been plagued with in south central Los Angeles. I, too, represent the heart of Watts, Willowbrook, and Compton, those areas that were ravished by this insidious act.

While I was sitting here watching the gentleman who spoke about his inability to think that the CIA was involved in this, I had to come down to say we cannot conclude whether they were involved or not involved, but it is a serious issue that we must call up for a thorough investigation.

I join the ranks of all of the Members who have spoken this morning, because when we find crack babies lying in hospitals, when we find children who are trying to go to school and who are unable to be educated because of the mental incapacity that they have, when we have a community that has been totally destroyed, we cannot help but to come to this body to ask for a thorough investigation.

I join the ranks of all of the Members who have spoken this morning, because when we find crack babies lying in hospitals, when we find children who are trying to go to school and who are unable to be educated because of the mental incapacity that they have, when we have a community that has been totally destroyed, we cannot help but to come to this body to ask for a thorough investigation.

This has now become not just a south central Los Angeles problem or a California problem. Members heard the gentlewoman from another part of the northern States, I think Oregon, who spoke on this issue. This is a national problem. I think it is incumbent upon this body to ask for and demand a thorough investigation of this drug trafficking into south central and into other urban areas of this country.

We can ill afford to have a community think that we will not pay close attention nor will we take this very seriously and look into the allegations that are very startling in the San Jose Mercury News.

I join with all of the Members who have spoken this morning, I join with my colleague, the gentlewoman from California, Ms. MAXINE WATERS, in asking that this be brought to the forefront and that we get down to the bottom of this very insidious act that has plagued our communities and that has absolutely destroyed a whole community. I urge Members to pay close attention, and I call on my colleagues for a thorough investigation of this insidious act.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentlewoman from Texas, Ms. SHEILA JACKSON-LEE.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the ranking member of the committee very much for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, in responding to the gentleman from California, let me acknowledge that we do not have to make a broad-based attack on the intelligence community. All of us acknowledge the importance of national security.

However, we must stand aside from the intelligence community and demand an investigation of the bad actors that have been alleged to have conveyed and transported dangerous and devastating drugs throughout the entire Nation, that have resulted in the loss of lives throughout my community and the loss of lives of young children and babies and families and destruction. We must now demand an investigation and have one.

I ask my colleagues to join us in agreeing with those who have spoken that we have a full investigation of these devastating charges of crack cocaine being brought in by CIA agents and others.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

In closing, Mr. Speaker, I would just say, in my 8 years on the committee, one of the highlights has been the opportunity to get to know people who work in the intelligence community, not only in the United States but around the world. They do it knowing that and hoping that their successes and endeavors will not be on the front page of the paper. They do it because they are true patriots. They are people who literally put their lives on the line for this country and the national security of this country, and have done a remarkable job. I wish it were possible to talk about the successes that this country enjoys from the hard, dedicated, and very dangerous work these people do.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that Members support this conference report.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COMBEST. I yield to the gentleman from Washington.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, I want to concur with the gentleman from Texas. In my service on this committee, and as a member of the Committee on Appropriations over the years, the professionalism, the competence, the hard work, and the dedication of the people in the intelligence community is extraordinary. They have done a tremendous service for this country.

Having said that, I still believe we have to look at these charges seriously. I will remind everyone here that there were some extralegal questionable activities during this whole Iran-Contra period run right out of the White House. So it is conceivable that there may be some explanation besides the one that the San Jose Mercury has come up with. That is, again, another reason why we need to get to the bottom of this.

Even if it was not the CIA, I am very interested to know, how did crack cocaine get introduced into this country, who was behind it. And maybe that is not even our jurisdiction, but that is something this Congress should be interested in as well. I appreciate the gentleman yielding. I urge Members to pass the conference report.

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. COLEMAN].

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I only want to point out to the House that part of our responsibility in this committee is to see to it that, indeed, we understand and recognize our role in dealing with the issue of the hiring, the retention, the promotion of minorities and women and the handicapped in the agencies that we oversee.

There have been allegations made public in the past that indeed the NSA, the CIA, the Department of Defense, and others may not have been doing the kind of job we want them to do.

Thanks to Chairman COMBEST's leadership and that of the ranking member, the gentleman from Washington, Mr. DICKS, there have been a series of hearings over the past several years in acquiring and achieving the kind of data that will show that this Congress does take very seriously its charge from this House that we intend to do what the President of the United States, Bill Clinton, said when he took office. That was that we wanted our Government to reflect the diversity that is America. I want to thank publicly Chairman COMBEST for permitting those hearings.

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my strong opposition to the conference agreement on the Immigration and Nationality Act. This conference report goes far beyond efforts to curb illegal immigration in this country by unfairly targeting legal immigrants and promoting discrimination among U.S. citizens as well.

Once again the proponents of the anti-immigration sentiment in this country are using the banner of illegal immigration to impose injustice on those immigrants legally in this country—immigrants who pay taxes, contribute millions of dollars into our economy, abide by the same laws we do, and are even eligible to be drafted into the military. Yet this conference report, like the welfare bill before it, singles out legal immigrants by effectively denying them access to Federal programs.

Specifically the conference report subjects legal immigrants to deportation if they use any means-tested Federal assistance—Federal assistance in which eligibility is based on income—for more than 1 year in the aggregate. Practically speaking this provision bans legal immigrants from any Federal assistance program based on income level—student financial aid, federally funded English classes, job training, health and assistance under Medicaid, or other Federal programs.

It just escapes me why we would want to punish a legal immigrant for pursuing education or job training and making an effort to become an even more productive participant in our economy and society.

The proponents of today's measure are the same people screaming for English only legislation. They state that people in this country should learn English, people can't succeed in this country if they don't know English, yet on the other hand they support this conference report which could cause the deportation of legal immigrants because they utilize a year of federally funded English classes. One can only surmise that the intention here is not to help legal immigrants assimilate into American society but to keep them out of our country altogether.

The conference report limits legal immigration by putting a new arbitrary income barrier to family immigration into this country. It establishes a new income requirement of 200 percent of the poverty level for anyone who seeks to sponsor a parent, sibling, or adult child, and 140 percent for those sponsoring a spouse or minor child.

This provision goes against the very principle of family reunification and would deny low-income families from reuniting with their own minor children and other family members. This is an egregious example of discrimination against the poor. It says that we only care about reuniting families of a certain income level, and that because you are poor you do not deserve to be reunited with your family. I can think of nothing that is more anti-American and antifamily.

It is not only legal immigrants who are hurt under this conference report, but also U.S. citizens who will be subject to more discrimination with limited remedies for violations of their rights.

This conference report makes it more difficult for prospective employees to bring discrimination cases against an employer. A job applicant must now prove that the refusal of a job is a result of intentional discrimination, a higher legal standard than is currently required. This provision will affect U.S. citizens who look Asian or Hispanic, who will no doubt be singled out for greater scrutiny and discrimination, with very limited remedies available to them.

It gets even worse, because the conference report does not include language in the House-passed bill which would have allowed American workers who lose their jobs because of government computer errors concerning their immigration status to seek compensation. This means if someone is mistakenly discriminated against, loses their job because of a computer error, they have no way to seek just compensation.

This is not a theoretical argument, because it is already happening in our education system. Even before the passage of this bill students of Asian and Hispanic ethnic heritage are experiencing heightened scrutiny and delays because of extra measures to verify their citizenship status. Student loan checks for student loans are being revoked because of mistakes in the Social Security system, even though these students are U.S. citizens and their only crime is being born of Asian/Pacific or Hispanic ethnic origin.

It pains me to think that we have come to a place in our society that we must single out anyone who looks different or speaks differently and make them second-class citizens in this Nation. This is where this immigration bill takes us.

Mr. Speaker, many of us want to tackle the problem of illegal immigration in this country, but not at the expense of the rights of legal immigrants and citizens. I urge my colleagues to vote against this mean-spirited bill.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, we should be meeting here today to discuss a bipartisan bill to better protect American jobs, public services, and our borders. We have missed that opportunity. We are now faced with a bill, H.R. 2202, introduced after closed-door Republican sessions, that could damage our borders, hurt American workers and their families, and increase the burden on our taxpayers.

Jobs are the magnet attracting illegal immigrants, and it is a criminal network of employers who hire these workers at the expense of unemployed Americans. We must make it clear to those rogue employers, who are willing to cheat hard-working Americans out of employment opportunities, that their behavior will not be tolerated.

Instead, this bill lessens the penalties against those who skip over American workers to hire foreign workers. It also reduces the number of inspectors we wanted to put in the field to combat this illegal behavior. If you are a U.S. citizen, willing to work hard and make an honest living, you may still lose out due to the growing number of employers allowed to flaunt the law and hire cheaper illegal immigrants without the real risk of punishment under the law.

Mr. Speaker, existing laws limit the ability of legal immigrants to become public charges. However, the harsh deeming requirements in H.R. 2202 will deny many legal immigrants assistance they should be entitled to. I say entitled, not only because they are legal residents who pay taxes and are eligible for the draft, but because they pay far more in taxes than they use in public services.

The Urban Institute conducted a study which found that legal immigrants pay $40 billion more in taxes than they collect in public assistance. Similar studies have shown that legal immigrants are less likely to collect public assistance than U.S. citizens. And the conservative Federal Reserve Bank of New York published a study which shows that immigrant families contribute approximately $2,500 more in taxes than they obtain in public services.

In addition, it appears that the anti-environment 104th Congress had to attack our environmental laws one more time in their mad rush to adjourn. The provision, deemed even by my pro-environment Republican colleagues to be outrageous, would inflict a loss of power for States and local governments anywhere along thousands of miles of our Canadian and Mexican borders to build fences, roads, or other infrastructure.

As a representative of a Canadian border district, I cannot support legislation which casts aside opportunities for public participation under the National Environmental Policy Act [NEPA] so that local communities and citizens in Michigan could have a say before the INS decides we need a giant fence to separate ourselves from our Canadian neighbors. Indeed, Speaker GINGRICH has received word from the attorney general, the Secretary of the Interior, and the chair of the President's Council on Environmental Quality that the administration objects strongly to this weakening of environmental standards.

Mr. Speaker, previous experience teaches us that: limiting services to legal immigrants can risk public health and safety, as well as raise costs; limiting employment enforcement provisions costs American's jobs; and limiting environmental protections under Federal statute can place our communities' health and well-being at needless risk as a result of incompetent legislation.

I urge support for Democratic efforts to fix some of the more obvious errors in the bill through the motion to recommit, and barring its acceptance, I urge rejection of the conference report.

Mr. SERRANO. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to the conference agreement on H.R. 2202, the immigration reform bill.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is often described as an effort to improve border enforcement and employment eligibility verification, but, in fact, it goes far beyond these widely-supported elements to attack legal immigrants in the United States, as well as the rights and health of all Americans, citizens and noncitizens alike, and our commitment to international human rights.

Of course, this very unfortunate conference agreement is the result of the Republicans' negotiating and writing a new bill behind closed doors, with no input from Democrats—even those who were initially supporters of immigration reform—during either the negotiations or the actual public meeting of the conference committee!

The employment provisions in this bill are simply wrongheaded. First, the bill defies logic by failing to improve enforcement of our Nation's wage and hour laws despite the fact that unscrupulous employers hire undocumented immigrants precisely so they can overwork and underpay them. Better wage and hour enforcement is the best deterrent both to this exploitation and to the jobs magnet. Next, computerized employment verification systems invite the creation of national databases on every citizen and resident of the United States, without offering safeguards against improper use or disclosure of information or any recourse if the information provided to a potential employer is simply wrong. Moreover, the bill strips from our immigration law existing antidiscrimination provisions, which were originally enacted three decades ago because it was a fact that minority citizens and residents were discriminated against in the employment process.

As illogical as it may sound to my colleagues, while legal immigrants would remain eligible for certain public assistance under this bill, and many have worked and paid taxes to support public assistance and other government programs, they could be deported for actually using the benefits for which they are eligible. Worse, the deeming provisions could bar legal immigrants from receiving even emergency medical services under Medicaid. Legal immigrant children are at particular risk. They may be priced out of eligibility for means-tested programs such as Head Start or job training by deeming. Or they may be frightened away from participation in other programs such as housing, child care, or even health care lest they become deportable.

And any immigrants who, despite sponsor income and the threat of deportation, actually receive services—even emergency services or services to children—must pay the government back before they will be allowed to become naturalized citizens. I guess in the Republicans' view of American citizenship, only the rich need apply.

The conference agreement includes provisions that neither House nor Senate adopted and that conferees were not permitted to strike, that explicitly deny publicly-funded medical care for immigrants who test positive for HIV. There is no reason to treat HIV and AIDS differently from other communicable diseases such as tuberculosis or influenza except raw prejudice. This is also totally counterproductive to our efforts to control the AIDS epidemic in America.

If enacted, these public assistance provisions, which are far more extreme than the already alarming provisions in welfare reform, will cause either a vast increase in human misery in this country or, more likely, a vast cost-shift to State and local governments and to churches and charities, including our already overburdened nonprofit hospitals.

This bill would raise the income levels required to sponsor a child or spouse, sibling or parent, to levels that would disqualify 40 percent of all American families, both citizen and noncitizen, from bringing their families together in America. I guess Republican family values are not for hardworking families of modest means, but only for the wealthy.

This conference agreement would also undermine our commitment to protect people fleeing from real persecution by restricting their ability to make their case for admission and denying them a hearing and judicial review. Hundreds of bona fide refugees could be returned to their persecutors under this bill.

Mr. Speaker, this bill, like so many others presented by the Republican majority over the last 2 years, goes far beyond what Republicans claim to be its purposes and into the ugliest sort of politics. It is designed and intended to drive wedges into the population and to exploit some people's fears of people who look or sound different.

This bill is shockingly cruel and will do real harm. I urge all my colleagues to vote to defeat this conference agreement. If it is adopted, I implore the President to stand up to the demagogues and veto it. That is the right thing to do.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the conference report on the Immigration and Nationality Act. I support genuine immigration reform, to end illegal immigration and protect American workers from employers who knowingly hire illegal immigrants and put Americans out of work. I regret that the conference report which is now before the House does not meet the standard of genuine immigration reform.

The United States cannot afford to absorb all those who want to settle in our country. I support continued funding of our existing efforts to deter illegal immigration. I have voted for provisions to strengthen the laws, including doubling the number of border patrol agents and increasing the number of work site inspectors to enforce laws against the hiring of illegal aliens. And I support efforts to prevent abuses in enforcement and ensure that enforcement efforts conform to our civil rights and our laws of justice.

Most Americans are immigrants or the descendants of immigrants. Legal immigrants have made and continue to make significant contributions to America's scientific, literary, artistic, and cultural resources. As the son of an immigrant, I believe America's strength is in its diversity. It is in our national interest to build upon that strength through a system which maximizes the positive opportunities legal immigration affords by allowing qualified immigrants to participate in our economy and share their talents and strengths with our communities. Family unification should be one of the key guideposts for evaluating immigration reform proposals.

I voted for the immigration reform bill which was passed by the House in March. It was not a perfect bill, but it would have made needed changes in the law to stop illegal immigration. It would have doubled the number of border patrol agents; permanently barred those who previously entered the country illegally from ever being legally admitted; increased the number of work-site inspectors to enforce laws against the hiring of illegal aliens; and streamlined the deportation process.

The conference report which is now before the House is worse than the bill passed by the House in March in several ways. For example, the bill that was passed by the House retained civil penalties for employers who knowingly hire illegal immigrants. But the conference reports which is now before the House removes the civil penalties against employers who knowingly hire illegal immigrants, which will make it easier for unscrupulous employers to hire illegal immigrants and put Americans out of work.

I support effective and reasonable income-deeming requirements on the sponsors of legal immigrants who apply for public benefits. At the same time, I believe that immigrants and refugees who live legally in the United States, and contribute to our country's progress just as all of our ancestors have done, should not be discriminated against in the area of public assistance.

The conference report is worse than the bill passed by the House in its treatment of legal immigrants. For example, the conference report would allow the deportation of battered women and children, who are legal immigrants, if they receive public shelter and counseling for more than 1 year. The House-passed bill exempted shelter and counseling for battered women and children.

I voted for the immigration reform bill that passed the House because I believe that illegal immigration is an urgent problem that must be addressed by this Congress, and I had hoped that the bill would be improved as it moved through the legislative process. Instead, we find that the Republican leadership has decided to turn the effort to reform our Nation's immigration laws into a cynical political game.

I urge my colleagues to vote to recommit this bill to the conference committee. Reject this conference report, and instead bring genuine immigration reform legislation to the House before Congress adjourns.

Mr. DUNCAN. Mr. Speaker, just yesterday, the Knoxville News-Sentinel reported that a Tennessee Highway Patrolman stopped a van on I–75 which contained 25 illegal immigrants.

The arresting officer attempted to contact the INS but could not even get a person to answer the phone at the Memphis INS office.

He was quoted in the paper as saying: ''Immigration just took the phone off the hook.''

He repeatedly attempted to contact INS officials but all he got was: ''360 degrees of answering machines.''

So what did the trooper do? All he could do, he let illegal aliens go. Simply, he had no legal authority to detain them.

This is the sixth time this year that illegal aliens have been stopped by local authorities in my district and had to be released.

Six different vans containing at least 130 illegal immigrants have been let go because of the INS' refusal to act. When local officials have talked to INS, they were told that there were no funds available to send INS officers to arrest, detain, and deport these illegal aliens.

The INS has received a 72-percent increase in funding in the last 3 years, which is approximately eight times the rate of inflation over that period. Almost no other Federal agency has received that type of increase in recent years.

With this increase in funding, local officials have a right to be outraged by INS' inaction. I agree with them completely. One sheriff in my district has told his deputies to not even bother questioning individuals they stop to determine if they are illegal aliens because of the INS' inaction.

Have things gotten so bad that law enforcement officials have no choice but to, in effect, condone the breaking of the law?

The six vans that I am referring to are only those reported by the local media. Just think how many other illegal aliens travel through Tennessee without being caught.

The Clinton administration bureaucrats seem unwilling to correct this situation. Mr. Speaker, I am outraged. Who do these INS bureaucrats work for, themselves, or the taxpayers?

The nearest INS office to my district is located in Memphis, 450 miles away. INS claims that they cannot apprehend illegal aliens in east Tennessee because it will cost too much to round them up.

Last spring, I asked the INS to open a branch office in east Tennessee or at least a more centrally located office in middle Tennessee. Despite my repeated requests, they have been very unresponsive and unwilling to provide service to east Tennessee.

I have met face to face with INS officials in Washington to inform them of what is going on in east Tennessee, and I have made dozens of calls about this disgraceful inaction.

In fact, this is not the first time I have had to contact the INS. Several years ago, the Sheriff's Department in Loudon County contacted me about a problem they were having with the INS and illegal aliens.

After months of work and literally dozens of phone calls from my office, the INS finally responded to our concerns. In Operation South Paw, the INS conducted a series of raids that resulted in the apprehension of many illegal aliens working in my district. I am glad that the INS finally took action, but the reluctance on their part to fulfill their mission of deporting illegal aliens is inexcusable.

After my most recent meeting with the INS, I was informed that the INS would add two trainees to the Memphis office. This would be an improvement, but this is not enough. Middle and east Tennessee desperately need more INS officials who will enforce the law.

However, I am glad that H.R. 2202, the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act, includes language Congressmen CHRIS COX and LAMAR SMITH and I incorporated into the House version of this legislation.

Our language, insofar as arrest and detention, will allow local law enforcement officers to act as INS officials since it is obvious that INS officials won't take action.

Specifically, it will allow law enforcement agencies to enter into agreements with the Justice Department so that local officers will be able to function as an immigration officer in relation to investigation, apprehension, or detention of illegal aliens.

I want to thank Congressmen CHRIS COX and LAMAR SMITH who worked with me in formulating this language and for the House and Senate conferees for including this language in the final version of this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I believe this legislation will help to solve the problem of illegal immigration and I urge its passage.

Mr. BUNNING of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, it is time to take back our borders and cut off the stream of illegal aliens currently flooding across them. This can only be done by increasing the number of border patrol guards and Immigration and Naturalization Service [INS] agents. The Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act provides over 5,000 border guards and increases the number of INS agents by 300. This additional manpower will give a significant boost to current Republican initiatives such as Operation Gatekeeper and Operation Hold the line which were started under President Bush and have clearly demonstrated their effectiveness in keeping illegal immigrants out of our country.

Unfortunately, no matter how much we try to tighten down our borders, some illegal aliens will slip through the lines. But, even though they may get by our first line of defense this bill will make it more likely that they will be hunted down and deported by the joint efforts of local, State and Federal law enforcement agencies. In addition to the increase in manpower that this bill provides, H.R. 2202, gives law enforcement agencies the technological resources and jurisdiction powers to locate illegal immigrants and deport them expeditiously.

Lastly, this bill makes a conscious effort to reform our legal immigration system. Most importantly it will hold sponsors of legal immigrants financially responsible for their guests in our country. As Congress has taken efforts to crack down on ''deadbeat dads'', H.R. 2202, will crack down on ''deadbeat sponsors''. In doing so, we will save millions of welfare dollars, which are now being collected by legal aliens.

This bill is not the end-all of immigration reform, but this bill, coupled with the Republican welfare bill which was recently signed into law will go a long way in slowing the tide.

I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I intend to vote in favor of the conference report on H.R. 2202, the illegal immigration bill, because it includes many important provisions to help the United States get control of its borders: 5,000 new Border Patrol agents, stricter penalties for alien smuggling and document fraud, and procedural reforms that would make it easier to deport people who have abused our hospitality. I strongly support these provisions.

Mr. Speaker, we no longer live in an age when everyone from anywhere in the world who would like to live in the United States can do so. In an age of instant communication and easy transportation, border control has become not just a national prerogative but a practical necessity. Particularly when it comes to illegal immigrants, the American tradition of generosity is tempered by commitment to fairness and orderly procedures.

I am pleased that the House deleted provisions in the bill that would have imposed drastic cuts in the numbers of legal immigrants and refugees. The House adopted my amendment to delete a provision that would have imposed a statutory cap on the number of refugees who can be admitted into the United States. The cap would have been 75,000 in fiscal year 1997 and 50,000 in each year thereafter—less than half the number we admitted in fiscal year 1995. This may sound like a fairly high number, but even at their current levels, refugees are only about 8 percent of those who immigrate to the United States each year. Proportionally, refugees would have taken an even bigger hit than family or business immigrants. The cut would have hurt people who are in trouble because they share our values: ''old soldiers'' and religious refugees from Vietnam, Christians and Jews from extremist regimes in the Middle East, Chinese women who have fled forced abortion, and those who have escaped the tyranny of Fidel Castro. So I am pleased that the House adopted the Smith-Schiff-Gilman-Schumer-Boucher-Fox-Souder amendment to preserve the American tradition of providing safe haven for genuine refugees.

Unfortunately, the bill still contains provisions that subject legal immigrants, refugees, and U.S. citizens to unnecessarily harsh treatment. I think in particular of the requirement that a U.S. citizen must earn 140 percent of the official national poverty level in order to sponsor other family members. This provision leaves the unfortunate impression that family reunification is a luxury for the well-to-do, rather than a fundamental and laudable goal of millions of American families.

An even more unfortunate provision, section 633, would explicitly authorize the State Department to discriminate, by race, gender, and nationality in the processing of visas for legal immigrants.

The case of LAVAS versus Department of State, which this provision would attempt to overrule, is a carefully reasoned opinion by Judge David Sentelle, a highly respected Reagan appointee to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit. It reflects the court's shock and dismay that the State Department was violating Federal statutes as well as its own regulations by practicing nationality-based discrimination in order to force legal immigrants from Vietnam—typically the immediate relatives of United States citizens—back to the country they had fled.

The tragic consequence of the State Department's position is that many of those who have returned to Vietnam, on the assurance that their immigrant visas will be expeditiously processed by the United States, have languished for months or years because hostile and corrupt Vietnamese Government officials have refused to give them exit permits.

Fortunately, the harsh effects of section 633 can be cured by regulation, or even by sound administration. The President should direct the State Department to change its policy and to process these legal immigrants—and never, never again to discriminate invidiously by race, by gender, or by national origin.

Despite these and other deficiencies in the bill, I am voting in the affirmative, not only because I support the provisions that are directed against illegal immigrants, but also because of two provisions that cure important deficiencies in current law.

Mr. Speaker, the anti-terrorism bill passed by Congress in April contained several provisions that had nothing whatever to do with terrorism. One of these sections provided for the summary exclusion of persons attempting to enter the United States without proper documentation.

It is important that we exclude persons who would abuse our generous immigration laws, and it is important that the process of exclusion be a speedy one. It is also important, however, that the process be fair—and particularly that it not result in sending genuine refugees back to persecution.

The counterterrorism legislation provided that no person shall be summarily excluded if, in the opinion of an asylum officer at the port of entry, he or she has a credible fear of persecution. Unfortunately, the definitions of ''asylum officer'' and of ''credible fear of persecution'' were not as clear as they might be. H.R. 2202 goes at least part of the way toward the necessary clarity.

In particular, the antiterrorism legislation defined an asylum officer as someone who has ''professional training'' in asylum law, country conditions, and interviewing techniques—but did not state how much training or what kind. The immigration bill makes it clear that this training is to be equivalent to that of members of the highly respected Asylum Corps. The best way to ensure that this standard is met is to provide by regulation that only experienced members of the Asylum Corps—people who by training and experience think of themselves as adjudicators rather than as enforcement officers—will exercise the extraordinary power to send people summarily back to dangerous places.

I think it should also be clear that our asylum officers will need to be very careful in applying the ''credible fear'' standard. In a close case, they must give the benefit of the doubt to the applicant. There are also some countries—such as Cuba, China, North Korea, Iran, and Iraq—in which persecution is so pervasive that almost any credible applicant would have a significant chance of success in the asylum process.

I hope that regulations will be promptly adopted that explicitly provide for these and other safeguards in the expedited exclusion process. In any event, however, the current legislation is a substantial improvement over the regime that would go into force on November 1 if this legislation were not adopted.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, section 601(a)(1) of the conference report will restore an important human rights policy that was in force from 1986 until 1994. It would simply provide that forced abortion, forced sterilization, and other forms of persecution for resistance to a coercive population control program are ''persecution on account of political opinion'' within the meaning of U.S. refugee law.

Restoration of asylum eligibility for these victims of persecution is supported by human rights advocates from across the spectrum. Protection for these refugees has also enjoyed wide bipartisan support in Congress. Section 601(a)(1) is identical to section 1255 of H.R. 1561, the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, which passed both the House and Senate but was vetoed by the President for reasons unrelated to this provision. Section 601(a)(1) is also identical to the DeWine amendment to the Senate immigration bill, which enjoyed broad bipartisan support in the Senate but was withdrawn after objections had been raised to its germaneness under postcloture rules. Finally, the Clinton administration, which initially opposed this provision, recently announced its support.

As in every other asylum case, an applicant under this provision must prove his or her claim. Contrary to the cartoon being promulgated by opponents of this provision, we would not have to let in 1.2 billion people. In fact, during the Reagan and Bush administrations the number of people granted asylum on this ground was usually less than 100 per year, and never more than 200 per year.

Mr. Speaker, this provision merely states the truth. Forced abortion, forced sterilization, and other severe punishments inflicted on resisters to the PRC program are persecution on account of political opinion. PRC officials have repeatedly attacked resisters to the Chinese program as political and ideological criminals. The infliction of extraordinarily harsh punishment is also generally regarded as evidence that those who inflict such punishment regard the offenders not as ordinary lawbreakers but as enemies of the state.

Forced abortions often take place in the very late stages of pregnancy. Sometimes the procedure is carried out during the process of birth itself, either by crushing the baby's skull with forceps as it emerges from the womb or by injecting formaldehyde into the soft spot of the head.

Especially harsh punishments have been inflicted on persons whose resistance is motivated by religion. According to a recent Amnesty International report, enforcement measures in two overwhelmingly Catholic villages in northern China have included torture, sexual abuse, and the detention of resisters' relatives as hostages to compel compliance. The campaign is reported to have been conducted under the slogan ''better to have more graves than more than one child.''

The dramatic and well-publicized arrival in 1993–94 of a few vessels containing Chinese boat people has tended to obscure the fact that these people have never amounted to more than a tiny fraction of the undocumented immigrants to the United States. The total number of Chinese boat people who arrived during the years our more generous asylum policy was in force, or who were apprehended while attempting to do so, was fewer than 2,000. This is the equivalent of a quiet evening on the border in San Diego.

Nor is there evidence that denying asylum to people whose claims are based on forced abortion or forced sterilization will be of any use in preventing false claims. People who are willing to lie in order to get asylum will simply switch to some other story. The only people who will be forced to return to China will be those who are telling the truth—who really do have a reasonable fear of being subjected to forced abortion or forced sterilization. The solution to credibility problems is careful case-by-case adjudication, not wholesale denial.

Opponents add rhetorical punch to the asylum-as-magnet argument by asserting that treating forced abortion victims decently will be a unique incentive to smuggling and criminal gangs. Everyone is against smuggling. But let's prosecute the smugglers. Let's not take it out on the victims. The passengers on the St. Louis who were forced back to occupied Europe in 1939 were smuggled aliens too.

Finally, we should be extremely careful about forcibly repatriating asylum seekers to China in light of evidence that a number of those sent back by the United States since 1993 have been subjected to ''re-education camps,'' forced labor, beatings, and other harsh treatment.

The passage of this legislation, despite its defects, should be good news for the dozens of people who are still being detained by INS, even though they were found to have testified credibly to a well-founded fear of forced abortion or forced sterilization—or even that they have already been subjected to these procedures. People whose claims were rejected under the discredited case of Matter of Chang and its progeny should be released from detention immediately, and their asylum cases should be reheard under the rule that is restored by this law.

Mr. Speaker, the problem is not people fleeing persecution, and it is not people who obey our immigration laws. The problem is illegal immigration. The solution is to cut illegal immigration from 300,000 per year to zero, and to provide speedy deportation proceedings for millions of illegal immigrants who have abused our hospitality.

As President Reagan said in his farewell address: ''The shining city upon a hill is still a beacon for all who must have freedom, for all the pilgrims from all the lost places who are hurtling through the darkness, toward home.'' We are still the land of the free, still the most generous nation on Earth, but we must also insist on fairness and on respect for law. We must continue to work for the swift and sure enforcement of our immigration laws, without sacrificing American values.

Mr. STUDDS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to express my opposition to the bill.

We all appreciate the need for the immigration laws to be effectively enforced. But the conference agreement goes far beyond such legitimate concerns. It is an arbitrary and punitive measure which abandons our Nation's historic pledge to those seeking refuge from deprivation and persecution. It is a lamentable throwback to the anti-immigrant hysteria of bygone days, and I believe it will be so regarded by the international community and our own posterity.

The bill's numerous defects have been ably set forth by my Democratic colleagues on the committee, and I will not belabor them. I will address only one particular provision, inserted at the 11th hour, whose cruelty and illogic exceed even the extraordinary standards previously set by this Congress.

I refer to those sections of the bill that would eliminate all publicly funded HIV treatment services for both legal immigrants and undocumented individuals. Let me emphasize that the bill does this not through inadvertence but by design: the conference agreement goes out of its way to ensure access to medical care for all communicable diseases—except HIV/AIDS.

No public health rationale has been offered in defense of this mischievous provision. It has not been offered because it does not exist. Indeed, anyone concerned with public health would want to be sure that we treat every infected individual, and it is both callous and shortsighted to do otherwise.

Mr. Speaker, some of my colleagues who will vote for this bill today have on other occasions professed deep concern for the plight of children living with HIV. I do not question their sincerity, but their consistency is open to serious doubt. If this bill is enacted in its present form, there will be children living with HIV in this country to whom we are categorically denying all publicly funded medical care. I do not wish that on my conscience, Mr. Chairman, and for this and many other reasons I oppose the bill and urge its defeat.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, this is a weak ans shameful bill, which does not deserve the Members support in its current form.

The final product produced by the conference was given to us at the very last minute, on a take it or leave it basis. There was no Democratic input whatsoever, and we were completely shut out of the amendment process.

1. FAILING TO PROTECT AMERICAN WORKERS

This bill says that we will make it easier for unscrupulous employers to hire illegal aliens once they are here. It also says that, by weakening antidiscrimination laws, it will make it harder for legal workers to get jobs.

This bill says a resounding no to more Department of Labor inspectors to check illegal sweatshop and other havens of illegal, undocumented workers. No even though at least 100,000 foreign workers overstay their visas each year.

This bill says a resounding no to Labor Department subpoena authority to review employment records, a critical tool needed to combat illegal immigration.

This bill says no to more civil penalties for abusive employers who hire the illegals. That's the magnet that brings illegal immigrants here. That's what really counts. But the special interests have had their way with this bill.

The Republicans have refused to includes those provisions that can most effectively attack illegal immigration. Therefore this bill is a toothless tiger, an election year special, designed to fool voters in California and elsewhere that we are getting tough. In reality, the Republican leadership is just caving to special interests and bringing us a weak bill.

2. THIS BILL SAYS YES TO DISCRIMINATION

It's not enough to simply be weak on illegal immigration. This bill also says yes to more discrimination.

Even though not in the original bill, this bill now includes new provisions that tell employers that may engage in patterns and practices of discrimination so long as the discrimination is not so egregious as to lead itself to a showing of intent in a court of law.

The conference report also says yes to discrimination by race, gender, and nationality in visa processing. This would allow the Department to select one particular type of nationality and subject them to burdensome and dangerous new visa processing requirements—a practice that has already been found to violate the antidiscrimination laws by the D.C. Circuit. That would have the immediate effect of forcing several dozen Vietnamese nationals who are family members of United States citizens to return to Vietnam to have their visas processed. Because of the hostility and corruption of the Vietnamese Government, those forced back are likely to have their visas languish for many more years.

3. THIS BILL SAYS NO TO THE ENVIRONMENT

The National Environmental Protection Act, known as NEPA, is the Nations founding charter for environmental protection.

But this bill repeals that law, yes repeals that law, when it comes to the broader related construction.

That means that when we are constructing roads, bridges, fences, we can ignore the environment.

That means that broader construction can pollute our public waterways, dirty our air, create hazardous point sources that can create dangerous run offs, and generally ignore any adverse environmental impact of that construction.

This is just one more, yes one more Republican attack on our environment.

I plan on offering to recommit the conference report which corrects these glaring flaws. There is still time to come together and achieve a genuine bipartisan agreement on immigration.

If you want to reform the Nation's immigration laws and crack down on illegal immigration without taking extreme and counterproductive measures which harm American workers, I urge you to vote for the motion to recommit. If that motion fails, I urge you to vote against the conference report.

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this bill.

The United States has long been committed to the protection of refugees seeking safehaven from oppression. But this bill—under a provision called expedited exclusion—gives immigration officials the final say in deciding who has a credible fear of persecution—on the spot, with no right to an interpreter or an attorney. It strips the Federal courts of any review of these decisions.

Many of my constituents escaped from brutal dictatorships in Haiti and Cuba and the oppression of the former Soviet Union. They faced political oppression and religious persecution. In many cases, their lives were in danger. Most of these people did not speak English; some were uneducated and most were unsophisticated in their understanding of U.S. law and documents. Yet all faced danger in the countries from which they fled. I shudder to think of how many of my constituents would have been deported back into harm's way if this provision had been in effect in the past.

This bill would prevent the Federal courts from reviewing many actions of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, thereby eliminating a great safeguard against abuse. Federal court orders have often been the last resort in correcting INS decisions that violate the law or the Constitution. For example, an INS policy denied Haitian refugees the right to apply for political asylum. That INS decision was overturned—for good reason—by the Federal courts.

This bill weakens protections against job discrimination for legal U.S. residents. The bill makes it harder for employees to prove that employers illegally discriminated against them by not hiring them. The bill also restricts the documentation that legal U.S. residents can use to establish their ability to work and their identity. Unscrupulous employers would be given greater latitude to discriminate against or exploit legal U.S. residents.

This bill is as bad for what it does not do as for what it does. For the past 20 years, the taxpayers of my State and my county have been paying billions of dollars to cover the health care, education, housing, and other costs necessitated by the failures of U.S. immigration policy. Simple fairness should dictate that the Federal Government would pick up the costs of the failures of its own policies. Instead, the Federal Government abdicated its responsibilities and left our local taxpayers to pick up the bill. The bill is silent on this problem and does nothing to help us with these costs.

The immigration reform conference report is the result of last minute partisan political maneuvering, rather than thoughtful, dispassionate consideration of policy.

In the words of the American Bar Association, this bill ''abandons the U.S. commitment to the protection of refugees seeking asylum, threatens basic safeguards of due process, eliminates the historic role for the judiciary in reviewing the implementation of the immigration laws * * * and requires the deportation of legal immigrants who receive assistance for which they qualify.''

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the conference report on the immigration legislation and thank Chairman HYDE and Representative SMITH for their able stewardship of this comprehensive and far-reaching reform bill. I also thank them for working so closely with the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities on the areas of the bill that concern education, human service, and workplace issues within the jurisdiction of our committee.

Mr. Speaker, this conference report represents a comprehensive approach to addressing the problem of illegal immigration that will ensure that this Nation can continue to welcome the hope and creativity that new voices can offer us while feeling secure that the wonderful opportunities that life here presents will continue to be available for generations. The legislation recognizes that one of the primary—if not the preeminent—inducements to illegal immigration is the availability of U.S. jobs. The fact of the matter is that this Nation will never be able to fully control its borders with law enforcement strategies alone. The immigration reform proposal also recognizes, however, the practical constraints on employers in policing the attempts of immigrants to illegally secure employment. Thus, the bill contains needed reforms in the worksite verification process and authorizes a workable pilot telephone verification system to allow employers to readily document which applicants for employment are legally authorized to work.

The conference report recognizes as well the role that the availability of public benefits can play in inducing individuals to unlawfully enter or remain in the United States. I am pleased that the bill takes a strong stand to stem the tide of illegal immigration. Those who break the law to come here will not be allowed to receive taxpayer-supported Federal benefits. They are barred and that is as it should be.

I am also pleased that an agreement was reached to separately consider the Gallegly amendment on the education of illegal aliens. For some border States, like California, the education of illegal aliens costs $2 billion a year. For other States, it's not a problem. It is reasonable for States to have the right to decide this issue, and we'll have the chance to consider a separate bill, H.R. 4134, on this matter.

With respect to legal immigrants, I am pleased that the conferees saw the wisdom of continuing to make higher education student aid, school lunch and breakfast benefits, and elementary and secondary education benefits available, as under current law, without counting their sponsors' income.

In sum, Mr. Speaker, the conference report is an excellent piece of legislation that represents months of work by the relevant committees to define a set of policies that will confront the serious repercussions of illegal immigration. I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to give it your strong support so we can send immigration legislation to the President's desk, where I believe it should and will receive his signature.

Ms. HARMAN. Mr. Speaker, as the daughter of a legal immigrant father who fled Nazi Germany, I understand the strength that legal immigration has brought to America. I regret that provisions unfairly targeting legal immigrants have been added to this bill.

But I firmly believe that we must act now to stop illegal immigration, and so I rise in support of H.R. 2202, the Immigration in the National Interest Act, which tackles many of the tough issues around illegal immigration, and speaks to one of our fundamental values: that all of us have to live and work by the same set of rules. As a member of the bipartisan task force that contributed many of the best features of this bill, I commend the leadership of our California colleague, ELTON GALLEGLY.

This bill doubles the number of Border Patrol agents to 10,000 over the next 5 years. And it authorizes the purchase of much-needed equipment and technology to aid these new agents in the fight against increasingly sophisticated alien smuggling rings.

It also takes some important first steps toward eliminating the jobs for undocumented workers which are the primary lure for illegal immigration. It authorizes new eligibility-verification programs to keep undocumented workers from obtaining employment, and to protect the vast majority of American businesses who would never willingly hire an undocumented worker. In addition, it strengthens much-needed anticounterfeiting laws.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is not perfect. I am firmly committed to changing its unfair provisions targeting legal immigrants. And I am disappointed to see that provisions increasing civil penalties on employers who hire undocumented workers at the expense of American labor have been removed.

But on balance, this bill is important and necessary. It represents progress. And as the Torrance Daily Breeze has editorialized, ''California needs this [bill].''

I urge its passage.

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 2202, the Illegal Immigration reform bill. This legislation is the product of countless hours of negotiation between House Republicans and Democrats. While this bill currently does not have the tough provisions like the Gallegly amendment, that are so important to Californians, it is a step in the right direction.

Although the United States is a Nation of immigrants, its borders should be protected from immigrants who unlawfully enter the country and become a burden on citizen taxpayers. I believe that individuals should come to this country through legal channels in order to become productive Americans.

It has been estimated that it costs California more to educate illegal immigrants children than the entire educational budget of Rhode Island and Delaware. While the Clinton administration has turned a blind eye to the strains illegal immigrants places on local economies and communities, the Republican Congress is cracking down on illegal immigration in order to save all Americans money.

According to INS, there are currently 4.5 million illegal aliens in the United States. While the illegal alien population increases by more than 300,000 every year, only about 45,000 illegal aliens are deported from the United States each year. We have clearly lost control of our borders.

Why play by the rules when it is so easy to jump to the head of the line and enter illegally? H.R. 2202 does the following to ensure we are ready to combat this ever-increasing problem: It beefs up border security; it expedites deportations; it toughens penalties for illegal aliens; it gives law enforcement new tools to combat illegal immigration; and it eliminates the job magnet.

Mr. Speaker, most legal immigrants who come to this country work hard and pursue the American Dream. Unfortunately, increasing numbers come to this country in search of government handouts. Consequently, taxpayers will spend $26 billion this year to provide welfare to noncitizens. This could rise to $70 billion by 2004. California spends about $3 billion annually for public education and health care for illegal aliens and incarceration of some 20,000 felons who illegally entered the country. This legislation encourages personal responsibility by requiring illegal aliens to pay their own way. It reinforces prohibition against illegal aliens receiving public benefits. In addition this legislation starts holding deadbeat sponsors legally financially responsible by one, counting the sponsor's income as part of the immigrant's in determining eligibility for welfare, and two, ensuring that sponsors have sufficient means to fulfill their financial obligations.

Mr. Speaker, it is time to act on immigration reform. My district needs it; my home State needs it; America needs it. My colleagues should vote favorably on this legislation.

Mr. KLECZKA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to oppose the conference report on the immigration reform bill.

I voted for the immigration bill when it was considered by the House, even though I disagreed with some of its mean-spirited provisions that would kick children out of school and onto the street. I felt that it was a good, tough measure that would lead to a reduction in the level of illegal immigration. However, I rise today to oppose this conference report because special interest groups have managed to kill important provisions.

Everyone knows the real reason that immigrants enter this country illegally: jobs. Common sense tells us that if we clamp down on this demand, we will see a corresponding drop in the supply.

It is also a matter of common knowledge that employers in this country are exacerbating this problem by knowingly hiring illegal immigrants. Quite simply, they are acting as a magnet for illegal immigrants. These employers brutalize their workers by forcing them to work in sweatshop conditions at below minimum wage rates. And, significantly, they reduce job opportunities for American citizens.

Sensible immigration reform must entail a crackdown on these unscrupulous employers. Sadly, this bill fails in that respect. The House-passed version, which I supported, provided 500 new Immigration and Naturalization Service [INS] officers to investigate employers who hire illegal immigrants.

The Republican leadership, after consulting with their special interest lobbyists, decided to water down this provision. Now, the INS will get 200 fewer agents. And the agents the INS does get will be prohibited from focusing exclusively on employer violations.

This bad conference report, in fact, weakens sanctions against employers who knowingly hire illegal immigrants. If we are serious about curbing illegal immigration, it is simply illogical to pass legislation that is soft on these lawbreaking employers.

At the same time, this measure radically attacks our Nation's antidiscrimination laws, making it harder for American citizens to prove that they have been discriminated against when seeking employment. It would require those claiming discrimination to prove that their employer intended to discriminate against them, which is an almost impossible legal hurdle to clear.

I find it very unfortunate that this bill, originally intended to protect the American worker by stopping illegal immigration, will actually curtail the legal rights of American workers.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I rise to criticize provisions which will seriously undermine American families. Historically, our Nation's immigration laws permitted Americans to reunify their families by acting as sponsors for their foreign relatives. The immigration measure on the floor today raises the income level that prospective sponsors must meet to 200 percent of the poverty level. In plain terms, middle-income Americans—the police officer or the schoolteacher—will be denied the ability to bring their aging parents to this country.

Mr. Speaker, if we are to stem the tide of illegal immigration, we must undertake tough and effective measures. But we must insist that such measures apply to all the actors in the immigration problem—illegal immigrants as well as the employers who hire them. Unfortunately, this bad bill, by exempting the latter, insures that the problem of illegal immigration will continue, as unscrupulous employers continue to lure employees with jobs.

Mr. VENTO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to oppose H.R. 2202, the Immigration and National Interest Act. Mr. Speaker, this legislation is not in the Nation's best interest, as the title erroneously suggests. While I agree that measures must be undertaken to reduce the influx of illegal immigrants crossing our Nation's borders, this measure goes too far by punishing legal immigrants.

Like the welfare reform measure enacted into law earlier this year, H.R. 2202 would establish a ban on means-tested Federal assistance for legal immigrants. These are not illegal immigrants, but rather those who have followed the procedures and policies of the Federal Government to enter and live lawfully in this country. Even though I supported the overall welfare measure on final passage, I specifically do not agree with the provisions that would deny legal immigrants public benefits. President Clinton has agreed that these provisions are misguided, and he has stated his commitment to see them modified. I support such changes. H.R. 2202, however, includes almost those same provisions, altering deeming requirements for legal immigrants that would effectively make them ineligible for most means-tested public assistance. This measure has a provision that states that legal immigrants can be deported for accepting a Federal student aid loan and even for attending federally funded English classes. How can a legal immigrant learn the English language and pass the citizenship test with such a policy in place?

While future legal immigrants will have legally binding affidavits to guarantee their support during difficult financial times, those who are already in the U.S. holding non-binding affidavits, or no such documents at all, will be left out in the cold. These immigrants will have nowhere else to turn for up to 5 years if their sponsor cannot or will not support them.

Cutting off such life-sustaining assistance to those immigrants who, under Federal policies, legally entered this country without a guaranteed source of financial support is unacceptable. Furthermore, enacting such provisions will not reduce the needs of these legal immigrants. It will simply allow the Federal Government to abandon its responsibility for these individuals, shifting that responsibility and expense to State and local governments that will be forced to fill that gap.

Ironically, while punitive provisions are put in place for legal immigrants already in the U.S., new categories of refugees and asylees are created by this measure. H.R. 2202 provides that the family planning policies of the individual's country of origin would become a basis for such status.

Another provision in H.R. 2202 that would harm legal immigrants relates to their ability to reunite with family members they left behind in their homelands. H.R. 2202 increases the income needed to become a sponsor to 200 percent of the poverty level in most cases, which is over $30,000 for a family of four. Only where the sponsored immigrant is a spouse or a minor child does the bill lower that income level to 140 percent of the poverty level, which is in excess of $20,000 for a family of four. For many immigrants who work at minimum wage jobs, even the lower figure effectively prevents them from reuniting with family members.

Furthermore, legal immigrants lose protection from discrimination in hiring, and the standards are stacked against them in the legal language of this bill. At the same time, illegal immigrants are hired by employers under the provisions of this measure with relaxed employer sanctions. This is two steps backwards from the policy enacted in 1986.

When this measure was considered by the House, I successfully amended the bill with language that would have corrected a situation that is currently hindering some Hmong residents of my district from naturalizing. Unfortunately, the majority stripped the language from the bill during the conference committee.

The Hmong the would have been affected are those who served alongside U.S. Forces in the Vietnam war, protecting and defending this nation and losing their homeland in the process. Because they served in Special Guerrilla Forces operated by the CIA, and not regular military units, they are eligible for expedited naturalization as other non-national veterans of U.S. Forces are. Additionally, extraordinary language barriers and other hardships have prevented many Hmong from meeting some naturalization requirements. The Vento Amendment would have provided for expedited naturalization for these non-citizens who have served the United States honorably during the course of the Vietnam War. I am dismayed that the authors of this bill have chosen to ignore the service of the Hmong in the Vietnam War by choosing to deny them full citizenship in the nation whose freedom and democracy they fought so hard to protect.

This bill does have some good provisions that are needed in the efforts to deal with the problem of increasing illegal entries into the United States, such as increased penalties for such activity and increasing the number of border control agents and Immigration and Naturalization Service personnel. However, it targets more than simply those immigrants that make the unlawful trek across our borders. Punishing legal immigrants along with those without legal status who have broken the law is the wrong policy path for our nation to travel. Let's solve the problems that require solutions without creating new ones. I ask my colleagues to oppose this measure.

Mr. RADANOVICH. Mr. Speaker, I believe that States should be able to decide whether taxpayer dollars should be spent on public schooling of illegal aliens. That is why I supported the Gallegly amendment when the House passed the immigration reform bill earlier this year.

That amendment was adopted by more than a 60 percent margin in the House. If the same support level existed in the other body, we could send a final immigration reform bill to the White House, with the Gallegly amendment intact.

Regrettably, that seems not to be the case. A filibuster was threatened against any immigration bill including the Gallegly provision, and reportedly there aren't enough votes to shut it off.

That means that getting immigration reform in this Congress requires us to relinquish the Gallegly restriction in the House-Senate conference report. Thus, I shall vote for the conference report.

However, to keep faith with my belief and the wishes of the good citizens I represent, I also intend to vote, in the succeeding action, for H.R. 4134, a bill that is a stand-alone Gallegly measure.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I want to urge my colleagues to be mindful of a workable alternative to the problem of illegal aliens who are receiving public benefits. It's called report and deport.

The immigration reform bill calls for additional INS enforcement personnel and for strengthened deportation. And, the welfare reform law this Congress enacted says that there can be no silencing of those in state and local government who communicate with the INS.

The bottom line is that those who remain in this country illegally should know they are breaking the law and are subject to being reported and deported.

Mr. FOGLIETTA. Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak in opposition to this immigration conference report.

Let's not be fooled here. We have been focusing on how wrong it is to punish children as we pull the precious words from the Statue of Liberty with this bill. But taking Gallegly out of this bill makes a mean, bad bill, just a little less mean and bad.

This is a bad bill because it creates two classes of people—those who can afford to be reunited with their families and those who cannot.

This is a bad bill because it stresses law enforcement on the border with more INS agents but it killed the proposal to increase Labor Department agents. If we really are concerned about illegal aliens taking the jobs of our constituents, why have we sacrificed workplace enforcement?

This is a bad bill because it persists with the mean spirit of the welfare law—cutting safety net benefits to children.

This is a bad bill because it denies medical care for people with HIV and AIDS.

This is a bad bill because it makes it harder for prospective employees to sue for discrimination.

I could go on and on.

Most of us are immigrants or the children of immigrants. Our parents and grandparents who arrived at Ellis Island and other immigration points helped to make this country great. And here we are tearing apart the texture and heart of America—all for another Contract on America soundbite.

My colleagues, vote against this conference report.

Mr. FLANAGAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the motion to recommit and against the conference report to immigration reform as it is currently written. It is with great regret that I do so, but I must in order to prevent a great injustice, a misuse of the House rules, and the enactment of a dangerous policy that threatens the health and safety of all people living in this country, not just immigrants.

Mr. Speaker, I have been a long and strong proponent of illegal immigration reform ever since I have had the privilege to serve in Congress. During the 104th Congress, I have voted for this legislation in both the Judiciary Committee and on the House floor. I have done so because I believe we must do something to halt the flood of illegals that enter our country, inflate our welfare rolls, depress the wages of working Americans, and cause a great deal of crime and hardship in our Nation.

However, the conference report to H.R. 2022, the Immigration in the National Interest Act, contains provisions that I find both shortsighted and narrow minded. These provisions would deny basic medical treatment to any ineligible and undocumented immigrant who is HIV-positive, this includes a legal immigrant who has had publicly financed medical treatment for more than 12 months. While the bill would allow the Department of Health and Human Services to do whatever is necessary to prevent the spread of all other communicable diseases, it expressly prohibits HHS from providing basic medical care and treatment to HIV-positive immigrants. Those legal immigrants who exceed the 12-month limit will be automatically deported.

These provisions were not included in either the House or the Senate versions of H.R. 2022. In fact, both Houses voted overwhelmingly to separate legal immigration reform from the bill earlier in the Congress and, instead, focus only on controlling illegal immigration.

Mr. Speaker, current law already prohibits individuals who test positive for HIV and AIDS from immigrating to the United States. Therefore, this shortsighted and, I must say, discriminatory provision would only bar treatment for HIV-positive individuals who contracted the virus while in the United States. There is no logical public health or pubic health or public policy argument for distinguishing HIV and AIDS from all other communicable diseases. It would make absolutely no sense to allow testing and treatment for tuberculosis, measles, and influenza but refuse it for HIV and AIDS. Mr. Speaker, these provisions would not only be cruel and inhumane for those who suffer with the AIDS virus, but it would also be dangerous for those of us who don't.

There is no doubt that this conference report contains many positive provisions that would help to stifle illegal immigration. Among the bill's initiatives are provisions to increase by 5,000 the Border Patrol, to improve border-crossing barriers along areas of high illegal immigration, and to prohibit illegal aliens from receiving Federal means-test benefits except emergency medical services. Yet, this bill also contains provisions that are so shortsighted and so narrow-minded that it literally boggles the mind.

Mr. Speaker, the HIV provisions should be stricken from this legislation. They should be stricken because they are, first and foremost, blatantly discriminatory. They would also produce a dangerous Federal policy of allowing HIV-positive individuals from roaming the streets and neighborhoods of our cities and towns without detection and without treatment. This provision is also wrong because it violates our own Rules of the House that confines conferees to the differences contained in the bill and not allow them to attach any items they wish. Finally, this provision should be defeated because it is inconsistent with an earlier vote, when the House and the other body overwhelmingly decided to separate legal immigration reform from the bill.

Mr. Speaker, with all this said, I respectfully urge my colleagues to vote for the motion to recommit. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the conference report.

The previous question was ordered.

The conference report was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on the conference report on H.R. 3259.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to my friend, the gentleman from Woodland Hills, CA [Mr. BEILENSON], pending which, I yield myself such time as I may consume. All time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

(Mr. DREIER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks and include extraneous materials.)

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, illegal immigration is a major problem that exists in this country, and nearly every one of us knows it. In my State of California, this may be the single most important law and order issue we have faced in a generation. Three million illegal immigrants enter the country each year, 300,000 to stay here permanently. More live in California than in any other State. In 3 years, that is enough people, Mr. Speaker, to create a city the size of San Francisco.

Mr. Speaker, it is increasingly clear that this Congress is dedicated to results. I believe results are what the American people want from their representatives here in Washington, both in Congress and at the White House. When there is a national problem like illegal immigration, they want action. Today, with this bill that we are considering that was crafted so expertly by chairman of the subcommittee, the gentleman from Texas, [Mr. LAMAR SMITH], we are giving them a response.

Mr. Speaker, back in the 19th century, the German practitioner of politics Otto von Bismarck made a very famous statement, with which we are all very familiar, that people should not watch sausage or laws being made.

That dictum has never been more true than in looking at what has taken place over the past couple of years. Under the barrage of 18 months and tens of millions of dollars of special interest attack ads, as well as the political rhetoric that came along with Congress changing hands for the first time in four decades, Washington has not presented a pretty picture to the American people.

But look beyond the rhetoric, the soundbites, and the smokescreens, Mr. Speaker. Look at the results. We have gotten bipartisan welfare reform, bipartisan telecommunications reform, bipartisan health insurance reform, a line-item veto measure that passed with bipartisan support, environmental protections that have had bipartisan support, and now a major illegal immigration bill that also enjoys tremendous bipartisan support. In each case, the final product from this Congress has been a major accomplishment where past Congresses have unfortunately produced failure.

Mr. Speaker, in California, illegal immigration is a problem in its own right, but it is also a factor that contributes to other problems. It undermines job creation by taxing local resources, it threatens wage gains by supplying undocumented labor, it has been a major factor in public school overcrowding, forcing nearly $2 billion in State and local resources to be spent each year educating illegal immigrants rather than California's children.

As with other major national problems, the American people want results, not rhetoric, as I was saying. H.R. 2202 fills that bill. It is not perfect. There are Members of this House who spent years trying to address illegal immigration who think that the bill could be better, and I am one who thinks that this bill could be better. This conference report is not the answer to all of our problems.

However, that is not a fair test, and it is not the test that the American people want us to use. People do not want us to kill good results in the name of perfection. There is no question that this conference report, filled with bipartisan proposals to improve the fight against illegal immigration, should pass, and pass with broad bipartisan support, as I am sure it will.

The bill dramatically improves border enforcement, fights document fraud and targets alien smuggling, makes it easier to deport illegal immigrants, creates a much needed pilot program to get at the problem of illegal immigrants filling jobs, and makes clear that illegal immigrants do not qualify for welfare programs. Together, Mr. Speaker, this is not just a good first step; it takes us a good way toward our goal of ending this very serious problem of illegal immigration.

Mr. Speaker, I must note that the 104th Congress did not just come around to this problem at the end of the session. This important bill only adds to other accomplishments, other results.

Congress tripled funding, Federal funding, to $500 million to reimburse States like California for the cost of housing felons in State prisons if they are illegal aliens. The remarkable fact is that we are 1 week from the close of fiscal year 1996 and the Clinton administration has not distributed $1 in fiscal year 1996 money to States like California.

The welfare reform bill, signed by the President, disqualified illegal immigrants from all Federal and State welfare programs and empowered State welfare agencies to report illegals to the INS. Congress also created a $3.5 billion Federal fund to reimburse our hospitals for the cost of emergency health care to illegals, only to see that provision die due to a Presidential veto.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I must add that promoting economic growth and stability in Mexico, in particular, whether through implementing the North American Free Trade Agreement or working with our neighbor to avoid a financial collapse that would create untold economic refugees on our Southern border is critical to the success of our fight against illegal immigration. We want to do what we can to give people an opportunity to raise their families at home rather than come to this country for jobs and other benefits.

Mr. Speaker, now is the time for final action on this important illegal immigration bill. California must deal every day with that flood of illegal immigrants who are coming across the border seeking government services, job opportunities, and family members. There is simply no question that the President, for all his rhetoric, has failed to make this a top priority. Once again, as with welfare reform, we can give the President a chance to live up to his rhetoric. Let us pass this rule, pass this conference report, and give the American people another issue of which they can be very proud.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BEILENSON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California [Mr. DREIER] for yielding me the customary 30 minutes of debate time, and I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I want to say at the outset, I say it gently and nicely, this is not directed personally to my truly good and close friend whom I admire, respect and like a huge amount from California, but I want to say to our friends on the other side that I am personally shocked and astounded by the lack of comity and collegiality that was shown in this particular instance. This is the first time I can recall in my 18 years of service on the Rules Committee where the majority party started taking up a rule before the minority party was here, and in fact we learned of the rule being taken up at this time after having been assured, I know it is not the gentleman's fault, so I am not directing my comments at all to him, I say to my good friend, but to whoever is responsible for changing or speeding up the course of action here. We were assured this would not be taken up for some time, until sometime after we had disposed of the intelligence bill and after at least some of the other bills on suspension would be taken up, and our people are not prepared or are not so prepared as they would have been an hour or two from now to debate this matter.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BEILENSON. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. DREIER. I just want to say that I agree with the gentleman. I wish that it had been run in a more orderly fashion. I was assuming that there would have been a recorded vote on that intelligence bill.

Mr. BEILENSON. I understand. As I said to the gentleman from California [Mr. DREIER], my friend, I know it was not the gentleman's doing. I just wanted to say if we seem a little hurried on this side and some of our folks have not arrived yet, it is because they did not expect to have to be over here quite at this time. At any rate, let us get down to the matter. We do have the remainder of the day to deal with this and its other matter. Mr. GALLEGLY's amendment, and we could have given ourselves a little more time, it seems to me.

Mr. Speaker, we do oppose this rule and the legislation it makes in order, the conference report on the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996.

By waiving all points of order against the conference report and its consideration, this rule allows the leadership to bring this measure to the floor fewer than 24 hours from the time it emerged from the conference committee. Hardly anyone besides the majority Members and staff who worked on the conference report knows much about its specific provisions. We know that it does not contain Mr. GALLEGLY's amendment on educating children of illegal immigrants, which is, we think, good. That is, it is good that it does not contain it, but that is the only provision that has received much attention in the press. We are being asked to rush to judgment on a matter that needs far more deliberation and discussion than it will have prior to the vote on final passage. Furthermore, the rule essentially sanctions House consideration of legislation that is not the product of a legitimate House-Senate conference committee. There is good reason why no Democratic member except for one signed the conference report. Democratic members who had worked hard on this legislation along with their Republican colleagues from its inception were completely shut out of the conference process. There was no consultation with Democrats over the past 5 months after the House and Senate had both passed immigration bills of their own. Democratic members went to the conference meeting yesterday not knowing what was in the final product and were not given the opportunity to offer amendments despite the fact that the proposed conference report contained many new items and quite a few that were outside the scope of the conference itself and no vote was taken on the report. And now here on the floor we are being asked to endorse this egregious practice by adopting this rule. We should not do that, we should defeat this rule or, failing that, we should defeat the conference report itself.

Mr. Speaker, those of us who represent communities where large numbers of immigrants settle have been working hard for a number of years to get Congress and the administration to stop the flow of illegal immigrants into the United States. Many of us have also been trying to slow the growth or slow the rate at which legal immigrants are flowing into our country.

Our efforts have been supported by not only people who are affected directly by rapid population growth resulting from immigration, but also by the vast majority of Americans everywhere. More than 80 percent of the American people, according to poll after poll, want Congress to get serious about stopping illegal immigration, and they want us to reduce the rate of legal immigration. Unfortunately, this legislation would do neither. This measure is a feeble and misguided response to one of the most significant problems facing our Nation. For us to spend as much time and energy as we have identifying ways to solve our immigration problems and then produce such a weak piece of legislation is, I think it is fair to say, a travesty, and eventually the American people, perhaps soon, I hope soon, will understand that we have not fulfilled our responsibilities in this matter.

If we truly care about immigration reform, we must vote down this conference report today so that the Congress and the President will be forced to revisit this issue next year. Otherwise, I am afraid the Congress and the administration will have an excuse to put this issue aside and it will be years again, literally years, before we get really serious about stopping illegal immigration and reducing legal immigration.

One of this bill's greatest defects is its lenient treatment of employers who hire illegal immigrants. An estimated 300,000 illegal immigrants settle permanently in the United States each year. As we all know, virtually all of them are lured here by the prospect of jobs which they are able to obtain because the law allows them to prove work authorization through documents that can be easily forged.

That will continue to be the case despite this legislation's reduction in the kinds of documents that can be used to prove work eligibility. As a result, it is next to impossible for employers to determine who is and who is not authorized to work in the United States.

This is not a problem we recently discovered, Mr. Speaker. Congress knew a decade ago and more when we first established penalties for employers who knowingly hire illegal immigrants that it would be difficult to enforce the law, impossible actually, if we did not have some kind of system requiring employers to verify the authenticity of documents that employees use to show work authorization.

Moreover, because more than 50 percent of illegal immigrants come here legally and then overstay their visas, we cannot stop these types of immigrants simply by tightening border control. The only real way we can stop them is by forcing employers to check their work authorization status with the government.

But despite knowing full well that the lack of an enforceable verification system is the largest obstacle to enforcing employer sanctions and thus the biggest hole in our efforts to stop illegal immigration, this legislation fails to cure that major principal problem.

For employment verification, the bill provides only for pilot programs in States that have the highest numbers of undocumented workers. Because these pilot programs will be voluntary, employers will be able to avoid checking the status of their employees. Thus, businesses that hire illegal immigrants, and there are plenty of them, Mr. Speaker, who do, will continue to be able to get away with it the same way they do now, by claiming that they did not know that employees' work authorization documents were fraudulent. And that will continue until the Congress revisits the issue and passes legislation making verification mandatory.

To make matters worse, the bill fails to provide for an adequate number of investigators within either the Immigration and Naturalization Service or the Labor Department to identify employers who are hiring illegal immigrants.

The other glaring failure of this piece of legislation is its failure to reduce the huge number of legal immigrants who are settling in the United States each year. Many people have been focusing on the problem of illegal immigration, which is understandable. Undocumented immigrants and employers who hire them are breaking our laws and should be dealt with accordingly. But if a fundamental immigration problem we are concerned with, and I believe it is, it certainly is amongst the people I represent back home, is the impact of too many people arriving too quickly into this country, the sheer numbers dictate that we cannot ignore the role that legal immigration plays. About three-quarters of the estimated 1.1 million foreigners who settle permanently in the United States each year do so legally.

It is the 800,000, more or less, legal immigrants, more so than the estimated 300,000 illegal ones, who determine how fierce the competition for jobs is, how overcrowded our schools are, and how large and densely populated our urban areas are becoming. More importantly, the number of foreigners we allow to settle in the United States now will determine how crowded this country will become during the next century.

The population of the United States has just about doubled since the end of World War II. That is only about 50 years ago. It is headed for another doubling by the year 2050, just 53 or 54 years from now, when it will probably exceed half a billion people. Half a billion people in this country. Immigration is the engine driving this unprecedented growth.

Natives of other lands who have settled here since the 1970's and their offspring account for more than half the population increase we have experienced in the last 25 years. The effects of immigration will be even more dramatic, however, in the future. By the year 2050, more than 90 percent of our annual growth will be attributable to immigrants who have settled here since the early 1990's; not prior immigration, but just the immigration that is occurring now and will continue to occur if this bill is allowed to pass.

As recently as 1990, the Census Bureau predicted that U.S. population would peak and then level off a few decades from now at about 300,000 people. In 1994, however, just 4 years later, because of unexpectedly high rates of immigration, the bureau changed its predictions and now sees our population growing unabated into the next century, into the late 21st century, when it will reach 800 million, or perhaps 1 billion Americans, in the coming century.

Now, a year ago, there was a near consensus among Members and others working closely on immigration reform that we needed to reduce the number of legal as well as illegal immigrants entering this country. The Clinton administration has proposed such reductions, and both the House and Senate Judiciary Committee versions of the immigration reform legislation also contained those reductions. All three proposals were based on the recommendations of the immigration reform commission, headed by the late Barbara Jordan, which proposed a decrease in legal immigration of about a quarter million people a year.

The commission's recommended reduction would still, of course, have left the United States in a position of being by far the most generous nation in the world in terms of the number of immigrants we accept legally. We would continue to be a country which accepts more legal immigrants than all of the other countries of the world combined.

But, unfortunately, Mr. Speaker, after intensive lobbying by business interests and by proimmigration organizations, both the House and the Senate stripped the legal immigration reduction from this legislation entirely, and did so with the Clinton administration's blessing. Now, unless the Congress defeats this legislation today, reductions in legal immigration, are unlikely for the foreseeable future.

Our failure to reduce legal immigration will only be to our Nation's great detriment. The rapid population growth that will result from immigration will make it that much more difficult to solve our most pervasive and environment problems such as air and water pollution, trash and sewage disposal, loss of agriculture lands, and many others, just to name some of the major ones.

More serious environmental threats are not all that we will face when our communities, especially those in large coastal urban areas, speaking mainly, of course, at the amount, of California and Texas and Florida and New York and New Jersey, but there are others that are already being affected and more that will be in the future, areas that are magnets for immigrants, whether legal or illegal, are already straining to meet the needs of the people here right now. There could be no doubt that our ability in the future to provide a sufficient number of jobs or adequate housing and enough water, food, education, especially health care and public safety, is certain to be tested in ways that we cannot now even imagine.

However we look at it, Mr. Speaker, however we look at it, failing to reduce the current rate of immigration, legal and illegal, clearly means that our children and our grandchildren cannot possibly have the quality of life that we ourselves have been fortunate to have enjoyed. With twice as many people here in this country, and then more than twice as many, we can expect to have at least twice as much crime, twice as much congestion, twice as much congestion, twice as much poverty, twice as many problems in educating our children, providing health care and everything else.

In terms of both process and outcome, this conference report is a grave disappointment. It is notable more for what it is not than for what it is. Instead of a conference report that reflects only the views of the majority party, this measure could have been a bipartisan product as immigration bills traditionally are, but it is not. Instead of a measure developed in someone's office, this continuing resolution could have been the result of a conference committee, but it is not. Instead of legislation that is lax or lenient on employers who hire illegal immigrants, this could have been a measure that finally established a workable system that enforced penalties against those who knowingly hire illegal immigrants, but it is not.

Instead of a bill that fails to slow the tide of legal immigrants, except by singling them out for unfair treatment, as it does, this could have been a bill that reduces the rate at which immigrants settle here and thus help solve many problems which confront us as a society already, but it is not.

Mr. Speaker, the bill this rule makes in order, does not, to be frank about it, deserve our support. I urge our colleagues to vote it down, both the rule and/or the conference report, so that Congress and the President, and the administration, which did not do its duty, it seems to this Member by these issues, both the Congress and the President will be forced to return to this issue next year and to produce the kind of immigration reform legislation that the American people want and that our country badly needs.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to my very good friend, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. SMITH], the chairman of the subcommittee.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, the comments by opponents of this legislation simply do not represent the views of most Americans.

They do not even represent the desires of a majority of the Members of their own party. Every substantive provision in this compromise conference report has already been supported by a majority of Democrats and a majority of Republicans either in the House or Senate.

I find it curious that when the American people want us to reduce illegal immigration, every single criticism made by the opponents of this bill would make it easier for illegal aliens to enter or stay in the country, or it would make it easier for noncitizens to get Federal benefits paid for by the taxpayer.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3½ minutes to my friend, the gentleman from Sanibel FL [Mr. GOSS], the chairman of the Subcommittee on Budget and Legislative Process.

(Mr. GOSS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the vice chairman of the Committee on Rules, my friend, the gentleman from California [Mr. DREIER], for yielding. I wish to commend the gentleman for his efforts on this important bill. I can say that he has been persistent and he has been instrumental in getting us to this point.

I support the rule, but I do agree with the gentleman from California [Mr. BEILENSON] that there was a mixup in the scheduling, and I think that we have understood there was nothing sinister behind it. A vote dropped off, so we got ahead of ourselves.

Mr. Speaker, many months ago the House passed 2202 to reform our Nation's broken immigration system.

This landmark legislation will tighten our borders, block illegal immigrants from obtaining jobs that should go to those who are in the United States legally, streamline the process for removing illegals, and make illegal immigrants ineligible for most public benefits.

All along in this process, the drumbeat from the American people has been very clear—it's long past time for reform. We have come to understand that reform is not for the faint of heart—that there are tough choices to be made and that there are real human beings on all sides of the immigration process. In the end, I believe we have legislation that is tough but fair—legislation designed to keep the door open for those who want to come to America but are willing to do it via an orderly, legal process, not sneak in the back or side door.

H.R. 2202 will add 5,000 new border patrol agents over the next 5 years Yes, 5,000. It will make illegal immigrants ineligible for many public benefits, while still allowing them access to emergency medical care. It also requires future sponsors to take more responsibility for their charges—a prospective change that is a win for immigrants and for American taxpayers alike, reducing the $26 billion annual tab American taxpayers currently pay. H.R. 2202 sets up a 3-year voluntary pilot program in five States so employers can use a phone system to verify Social Security numbers of prospective employees. If the pilot is successful, we may finally have a simple and effective way for employers to fulfill their legal responsibility to hire only eligible workers. There is no national identity card and no big brother database in this legislation. Mr. Speaker, as with all things that are borne of compromise, this legislation is not without disappointments. In my State of Florida, we know that undocumented immigrants cost Florida taxpayers millions of dollars every year in education costs. The Governor's office estimated the cost for 1 year to have been $180 million. Nationwide for 1 year the estimate was more than $4.2 billion. We simply cannot afford to educate all of the world's children while extending a magnet that fuels illegal entry into our country. Although I am disappointed it's not in this bill, I am pleased that this House has a chance to debate the Gallegly language as a separate measure, to end the current unfunded Federal mandate and give States an opportunity to make their own decision about how to handle this problem.

Overall, Mr. Speaker, this is a solid bill. It is one more example of this Congress, under our new majority, living up to its commitments. One more time we have promises made, promises kept.

Mr. BEILENSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas, Mr. GENE GREEN.

Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague from California for yielding me time. TONY, we will miss you next year and all your work you have done for not only our district, but the people of California, and the people of our country.

Mr. Speaker, there is a consensus that illegal immigration is a national problem that needs to be addressed. I believe our immigration laws need to be strengthened. But this conference agreement ignores the real reasons for illegal immigration and does little to protect American jobs. The reason people are in our country illegally is not to go to school, it is to get a job.

A successful control of illegal immigration requires comprehensive efforts not only to police our borders, but also to effectively reduce the incentives to employ illegal immigrants.

The bill has serious deficiencies in regard to employment and work site enforcement. The conference report does not contain the Senate provision that would authorize 350 additional enforcement staff for the Department of Labor, Wage and Hour Division, to enhance worksite enforcement of our laws.

This conference report does not contain the Senate provision authorizing enhanced civil penalties for employers who violate the employment sanctions and specified labor laws. Higher penalties would also serve to reduce the incentives to employ and thereby deter illegal immigration.

This conference report does not contain the Senate provision that would have provided subpoena authority to the Secretary of Labor to carry out enforcement responsibilities under this act.

Even though I served on the conference committee, and I was honored to do so, I nor other Democrats were given the opportunity to offer amendments to correct these deficiencies: We will have real immigration reform when we as Democrats are not locked out of the process.

Is this bill better than no bill? Maybe. But the people of America want something that will stop illegal immigration. This will not stop it. It may be better than the status quo because of the additional border patrol, but it does not go as far as the American people want it to go to deter illegal immigration. That is why this is not the panacea that you may hear from the other side of the aisle. It is an election year gimmick to say we passed immigration reform, but we have not.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, as the gentleman from Texas just said, this bill is clearly better than the status quo.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to my friend, the gentleman from Orlando, FL [Mr. MCCOLLUM], the chairman of the Subcommittee on Crime.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding 2 minutes to me.

Mr. Speaker, I just want to make a comment. There are a few things in this bill that maybe I could quibble over, but very few. There are a number of things that are not in this bill that I would like to see here, and I know many other Members would. But, overall, this is an excellent work product. There are some very significant things in this bill.

One of the things this bill does is to reform the whole process of asylum, that is the question where somebody seeking to come here or to stay here claims that they have been or would be persecuted for religious or political reasons if they return to the country of their origin.

We have had lots of people coming in here claiming that. Most of them who claim it have no foundation in claim at all. Once they get a foot in the airport or wherever, they make that claim, they get into the system, many of them are never heard from again. We do not get the kind of speedy process we need to resolve this.

Under this legislation there is a system much better than we have today for resolving the whole question of asylum from A to Z. We have an expedited or summary exclusion process that will be guaranteed in the sense you get two bites at the apple. If you ask for asylum at the airport, an asylum officer specially trained will screen you. If you think you have been given a raw deal and he says you do not have a credible fear of persecution and decides to return you straight home, you get to go before an immigration judge. That has to be done though within a matter of 24 hours, 7 days at the most.

It is a very, very positive provision, because it you do not qualify, you are going to be shipped right back out again, and do not get caught up in our system. And the list goes on and on.

So this is a very important and positive bill. But there are a couple of things that I think should have been in here that are not. One of them is the strengthening of the Social Security card that the gentleman from California [Mr. BEILENSON] talked about at some length. We need a way, a very difficult way, to get rid of document fraud, in order to make employer sanctions work. All too many people are coming into this country today getting fraudulent documents for $15 or $20 on the streets, including Social Security cards, drivers licenses or whatever, and then they go get a job. There is no way to make a law that says it is illegal to knowingly hire an illegal alien work.

And until we solve this fraud problem and we do more than we are doing in this bill to do that, we will never make it such that we can cut the magnet of people coming in here illegally.

But the bill is excellent. Let us vote for this bill and work on these other matters in the next Congress.

Mr. BEILENSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Michigan [Mr. BONIOR], the minority whip.

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague for yielding me this time.

And let me say at this point briefly to my friend from California, whom I have had the honor of serving with, and we were in the same class together, been here for 20 years, how much I have appreciated his friendship and his counsel and all that he has done for this institution. He is truly one of the most decent people I have ever served with in public life, one of the brightest people I have ever served with, and I will miss him dearly as we go into our next Congress.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to echo the comments of my friend from California in opposing this rule and opposing this conference report. I do so for the following reasons:

This conference report weakens protection for American workers while making it easier for employers to hire illegal workers. The conference report includes broad language that is not contained in the House-passed bill which rolls back antidiscrimination protections and makes it more difficult for American workers to bring employment discrimination claims.

Workers will now have to prove that an employer deliberately had an intent to discriminate, which is an almost impossible standard to meet. Workers who are wrongfully denied employment because of computer errors, and we know in this brave new world we live in that is becoming more and more common, under this bill they will not be able to seek compensation from the Federal Government because of that error because they were just kind of wiped out on the list and were not able to get a job.

At the same time it does this, it does something else. It will make it easier for employers to hire illegal workers. The conference report does not include the Senate provision that would have increased penalties for employers who knowingly hire illegal workers.

Now, that is significant, because each year more than 100,000 foreign workers enter the work force by overstaying their visas. Many are hired in illegal sweatshops, in violation of minimum wage laws. And we have seen what the Labor Department has unveiled in this regard over the last couple of years: Sweatshops all over this country with illegal people who are working in these sweatshops and no crackdown on the employers. The conference report does not include the additional 350 labor inspectors.

Let me also say something about class. This is a bill that discriminates against average working people in this country and average folks. Millions of Americans would be denied the ability to reunite with their spouses or minor children because they do not earn more than 140 percent of the poverty level, which is the income standard set by the conference report in order for it to sponsor a family member to come here.

A third of the country would be ineligible to bring in folks under this particular conference report. But if you have a few bucks, no problem. If you are an average worker in this country, we are sorry.

Another point in this bill that I think Members should pay attention to: An individual serves his country. They are here not as a citizen but as a legal immigrant, and they decide to serve in the armed forces, the Air Force, the Marine Corps, the Army, and they put in 2 years or 4 years, and then they leave and get in an automobile accident and take advantage of some medical benefits. They can go under this bill. They can be deported.

There are a lot of things in this bill that are discriminatory against a lot of people who care about this country. I think it is a bad piece of legislation. Say no to the rule. Say no to the bill. We will come back and do it right in the next Congress.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume and would say to my friend, if he does not like the sponsor provision that exists today, he should try to get rid of it rather than leaving it absolutely meaningless.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Huntington Beach, CA [Mr. ROHRABACHER], my friend, and one of the strongest proponents of legal immigration.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the rule and the conference report.

Mr. Speaker, millions of illegal aliens have been pouring into our country, and we have heard year after year after year a reason of why we should not act. There is always going to be a reason that the other side will prevent us from acting.

In fact, for years those of us on the Republican side have begged for an immigration bill, and we have been prevented time and time again from having any type of legislation where we could come to grips with this problem.

In California, our health facilities and our schools have been flooded with illegal aliens. Our public services are stretched to the breaking point. Tens of billions of dollars that should be going to benefit our own citizens are being drained away to provide services and benefits to foreigners who have come here illegally.

Who is to blame? Certainly not the immigrants. We cannot blame them if we are to provide them with all these services and benefits. This administration and the liberal Democrats, who have controlled both Houses of Congress for decades, have betrayed the trust of the American people.

We are supposed to be watching out for our own people. When we allocate money for benefits, for service, SSI and unemployment benefits, it is supposed to benefit our citizens, the people that are paying taxes, who fought our wars. Instead, when we have tried to make sure these are not drained away to illegal aliens, we have been stopped every time by the Democrats who controlled this House.

This bill finally comes to grips with the problem that has threatened the well-being of every American family. And, yes, we are going to hear a little nitpicking from the other side of why it is not a perfect bill. But the American people should remind themselves, it is this type of nitpicking that has placed their families in jeopardy for decades and permitted a problem of illegal immigration to mushroom into a catastrophe for our country.

Mr. BEILENSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas [Ms. JACKSON-LEE].

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California, and let me say as a new Member of Congress, I have admired his leadership, his determination, and particularly the demeanor in which he has led not only his district, the State of California, but the Nation, and I thank him very much for his services.

It is important as we rise to the floor, Mr. Speaker, on this issue, to chronicle for the American people just how far we have come. This legislation started out as a combination of some effort in response to legal immigration and illegal immigration.

Unfortunately, the provisions of the legal immigration part of this legislation were extremely harsh and, in fact, did not capture the spirit of the Statue of Liberty, which indicates that this Nation, bar none, regardless of the standards used by other countries, we do not follow, we lead, was not a country that would close its doors to those seeking opportunities for work but opportunities for justice and liberty and freedom.

So I am delighted that we were able to separate out the major parts of legal immigration and to acknowledge that, yes, we must work with regulating the influx of those coming into this country, but we should never deny the opportunity for those seeking political refuge and needing social justice and fleeing from religious persecution. Our doors should never be closed.

I am disappointed, as we now look at illegal immigration, we have several points that need to be considered. This is not a good jobs bill for America because it does not give to the Department of Labor the 350 staff persons needed to make sure that employers are following the rules as they should.

And, likewise, I would say that this is an unfair bill with respect to those who are here legally, for it says if they want to bring their loved ones, their mother, their father, their siblings, they must not be a regular working person, but they have to be a rich person.

I thought this country was respective of all working citizens, all working individuals who worked every day. But now we require a high burden of some 200 percent more over the poverty level than had been required before in order for a legal resident, a citizen, to bring in their loved ones to, in essence, join their family together. I think that is unfair.

Then we raise a much higher standard on those citizens who now, or those individuals who are seeking employment who may be legal residents. Now they must prove intentional discrimination. I think that is extremely unfair.

We likewise determine that we do not have the ability for redress of grievances by those individuals who have been discriminated against. That is unfair.

And let me say this in conclusion, Mr. Speaker. Mr. Speaker, let me say that we treat juveniles unfairly and we should vote down the rules and vote down the bill.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Mount Holly, NJ [Mr. SAXTON].

Mr. SAXTON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, first let me say that I support the rule and I will vote in favor of the bill itself today. However, I am deeply disturbed by one aspect of the bill.

Most of the provisions of the bill, I think, are in accord with good sound policy. However, this bill does contain one provision, to exempt the Immigration and Naturalization Service from both the Endangered Species Act and the National Environmental Policy Act.

This provision is intended to address an issue that has to do with the California-Texas-Mexico border. However, the way this section is written, the exemption applies to the entire border of the United States, not just the California-Mexico border near San Diego.

This waiver is not necessary, either in theory or in reality. Section 7, as a matter of fact, of the Endangered Species Act provides the framework to address any fence building. I have letters from the Department of Justice and the Department of the Interior stating that these waivers are not necessary.

Mr. Speaker, if it is important enough to exempt the Immigration and Naturalization Service from these important environmental laws, then we have to grow food, why do we not just exempt the Department of Agriculture? We have to get around in this country, so why do we not just exempt the Department of Transportation? And flood control is extremely important in my district, so why do we not just exempt the Corps of Engineers?

Mr. Speaker, this is a bad provision, and while I am going to vote for this bill, I pledge to spend the next 2 years making sure we straighten out this part of the bill which, to me, is a serious problem.

Mr. BEILENSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from California [Mr. BECERRA].

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished gentleman from California, a friend of mine, for yielding me this time.

I also want to join all my colleagues who are acknowledging the many years of service the gentleman from California [Mr. BEILENSON] has provided to this institution and to the people of America. They probably do not realize how instructive he has been in helping us fashion all sorts of policy, and I certainly will miss him, and I hope that he continues to be involved in policy for this country, because he has been a voice that has brought reason and, I think, a great deal of wisdom to this country's policies and laws.

Mr. Speaker, let me go on to say that I am very disappointed in what we have here today, for a couple of reasons, not only because I think substantively this is a bill that needs a great deal of improvement, but because procedurally it is disappointing to see, in the greatest democracy in the world, that the Republicans, the majority in this Congress, saw fit not to allow anyone to participate in the structuring of this final version of the bill unless one happened to be Republican.

Not one point in time, since the bill first passed out of the House of Representatives back in March, have Democrats had an opportunity to provide amendments to this particular conference report or to participate even in discussion of amendments on this report.

We had a conference committee yesterday that was only for the purpose of offering an opening statement. We did not have a chance to make an offer of an amendment that say, ''This is a provision that needs to be changed; can we change it?'' Not a word. We were not allowed one opportunity to do so.

This has come to the floor, with changes made in the back room in the dead of night, and some people are only now finding out what some of the provisions are.

I want to give you one example of how procedurally this bill has gone wrong. In conference we happened to have found out, because we were handed a sheet that same morning, that a provision in the bill that we thought was in, which would deny a billionaire a visa to come into this country after that billionaire had renounced his U.S. citizenship.

In other words, we have a billionaire in this country who renounces his U.S. citizenship, says, ''I do not want to be a U.S. citizen any more.'' Why? Because he wants to avoid taxes. If an individual is not a U.S. citizen, they do not pay U.S. taxes.

So he renounces his citizenship, goes abroad, and then comes right back, applies for a visa to come back into this country. He has not paid any taxes, and he gets to come back into the country.

We had a provision in the bill that said, no, if an individual renounces their U.S. citizenship because they want to avoid taxes, they cannot come back in. We walk in that morning, and that provision is no longer there. So these billionaires can come back into the country without having paid their taxes.

☐ 1245

We said, why did you put that back in there? Why did we not have a chance to discuss this?

Good news? Billionaires cannot come back in, if they renounce their citizenship. Bad news? We did not know it until this morning when we walked in and found it is back in the bill. That is the democratic process that we have undergone in this bill, where Members are not told what is in the bill until the last moment.

What is the result? One Member called it, one colleague called it nitpicking. I do not call it nitpicking when through a stealth move we remove increased penalties for employers who we know are hiring people who are not authorized to work in this country.

Why? I do not know. Who does it hurt? Only those employers who are violating the law. Why do we want to reduce the penalties on employers who are violating the law?

Final point I will make, young student in college, tries to get financial aid, has been valedictorian in high school. Because he is a legal immigrant, he happens to be qualified for a Pell grant. Gets a Pell grant for 1 year, is now deportable because the person qualified for a Pell grant or maybe a student loan. Crazy.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes and 30 seconds to the gentleman from Scottsdale, AZ [Mr. HAYWORTH], my thoughtful and hard-working and eloquent colleague.

(Mr. HAYWORTH asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, I thank my good friend from California for this time. Mr. Speaker, I would make the observation that despite the prevailing winds of what is politically correct, this is one of the few instances in official Washington where a description accurately fits the act it is describing, for this rule and this legislation addresses the problem of illegal immigration. By its very definition, it is an act against the law. And for that reason primarily, if an action is taken which is illegal, there should be sanctions against those who would participate in that illegal act. That is why I rise in strong support of the rule and the legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I come from the border State of Arizona. It is of great concern to the people of Arizona that we close the door on illegal immigration. Hear me clearly, on illegal immigration, because by closing this illegal back door, we can keep the front door open to immigrants who have helped our society and helped our constitutional Republic.

I think of one of them who hails from Holbrook in the sixth district of Arizona, who makes that place her home. Her name is Pee Wee Mestas. She is a restaurant owner. She came to this Nation legally. Her mother applied for a visa, went through the necessary legal steps to become a citizen. Her mother worked hard, going to school, going to cosmetology classes while working as a domestic servant to provide for her family. Pee Wee's mom was willing to work hard and follow the rules. Because she was, she raised up a generation of citizens, citizens who work hard and play by the rules.

That is the basic issue here. End an illegal act and instill responsibility. If it is good enough for the Mestas family, it should be good enough for the United States of America. Support the rule. Support the legislation. Let us take steps to end illegal immigration.

Mr. BEILENSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from New York [Ms. VELÁZQUEZ].

(Ms. VELÁZQUEZ asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. VELÁZQUEZ. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to offer thanks to the gentleman from California [Mr. BEILENSON] for his guidance, leadership, and vision, and we all are going to miss him.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my strong opposition to this conference report. This so-called immigration reform bill not only attacks a wide range of very hard-working Americans but, worst of all, it wreaks havoc on the lives of children. When did we become such a distrustful society that we would even turn on our most vulnerable members?

In a frenzy to shove undocumented immigrants out of the country, the Republican majority has crafted one of the most offensive pieces of legislation ever. They did not make this bill any better simply by removing the bar on undocumented children attending public school. The conference agreement still severely restricts legal immigrants' access to benefits, even though they play by the rules, they work hard and they pay taxes. But yet those multibillionaires who renounce their citizenship just so they cannot pay taxes, they are welcome to come back.

I ask my colleagues and urge them to vote down the rule and vote this legislation down.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Lula, GA [Mr. DEAL].

Mr. DEAL of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, we have heard a lot of terms here the today. One is unfairness. Let me talk about the greatest unfairness there is. That is those citizens and those legal immigrants who are finding their jobs taken away from them, who are finding their taxes increased to pay for the jobs that are going to those who are illegally in this country and the benefits that are going to them.

There are a lot of things that we as Americans hold dear. One is citizenship. Those of us who are lucky to achieve it by the virtue of birth or those who have achieved it by virtue of immigration and naturalization. Another thing we hold dear is that we are a country that has a system of law.

I submit to you that the ever-increasing tide of illegal immigrants undermines both of these things. Citizenship should not be cheapened. Respect for the law, which includes immigration laws, should not be denigrated.

This bill is the first major step this institution has taken in the direction of dealing with illegal immigration in more than a decade. Is it perfect? Certainly not. But does it begin to restore the sanctity of citizenship and respect for the law, yes, it does.

Mr. BEILENSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. BERMAN].

(Mr. BERMAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, first I want to say to my colleague from California, whom I have known for 34 years, who walked precincts in his first campaign, that I will truly, sincerely and sorely miss him. He is a model legislator and a pleasure to work with. I wish him well.

The gentleman from Arizona, who spoke a few minutes ago, is so totally wrong when he says this is the bill that will finally do something about illegal immigration. Everyone knows, when they think about it, the only effective ways to do something to deter illegal immigration are at the border, and this bill authorizes more Border Patrol, but already the Committee on Appropriations and the administration have gone far beyond the authorization contained in this particular bill to do that. Setting up and committing to a national verification program to make employer sanctions meaningful. This bill started out like that but totally fell apart on the House floor, primarily at the behest of the majority party Members. And then to go after those industries that systematically recruit and employ illegal immigrants in order to have a competitive edge in wages and working conditions in their own operations.

The Border Patrol increase is being done by the administration and the other 2 provisions are outrageously ignored in this conference report.

I voted for this bill when it came out of the House of Representatives. I indicated I would vote for it in the form it was in if the Gallegly amendment was removed. The Gallegly amendment was removed, but in a dozen different ways the conference report is worse than the House bill and in many cases, notwithstanding the Committee on Rules waivers, exceeds the scope of what either House did in the most draconian ways. Draconian against illegal immigration? No. Draconian against legal immigrants.

This is truly a desire by the people who lost on both the House and Senate floor in their efforts to cut back on legal immigration to do the same thing, but in the most unfair fashion, not straightforwardly by reducing the numbers but by focusing on the working class people in the society and stripping them of their right to bring legal immigrants over.

The new welfare law bars legal immigrants from programs such as SSI and food stamps and from Medicaid for 5 years. It gives States the ability to permanently deny AFDC and Medicaid to legal immigrants.

This conference report goes much, much further than that, makes legal immigrants not ineligible for these three or four programs but subject to deportation for use of almost every means-tested program for which they are eligible under the welfare law. In other words, what the welfare conference did not do, they decided to do here, and not declare ineligibility but make you subject to deportation.

Let me tell you what that means. You are a legal immigrant child who goes through high school, applies to a college based on your superb academic performance and test scores. You get admitted to an expensive university, ivy league college, Stanford. You apply for a student loan. If you are on that student loan for more than a year, you are subject to deportation. What an outrageous provision that is. What a slap in the face of this country's traditions that is.

Let me tell you how much else they do here. For the first time in American history, an U.S. citizen will be subject to an income test before he can bring his spouse into the country.

I urge a ''no'' vote on the rule, a ''no'' vote on the conference report.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. PACKARD], former mayor of Carlsbad, now of Oceanside, CA.

(Mr. PACKARD asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Speaker, I rise in very strong support of this rule and the conference report. Immigration has been the most significant critical problem in my State for many, many years. I have worked a lifetime, it seems, on trying to resolve our serious illegal immigration problems. They are affecting southern California and California generally and the Nation generally in very significant ways.

In fact, the two bills that I introduced on the first day that I started this session of Congress, the 104th Congress, have been incorporated into this bill, one of which would increase the Border Patrol to 10,000 agents, and the second would deny Federal benefits to illegal aliens. In essence, that was Prop 187 in California.

But this bill is not only about protecting our borders from those who are entering here illegally. It is about protecting American taxpayers from being forced to pay for those who are breaking our laws just to be in this country. California alone pays out billions of dollars per year to deal with the problems of illegal immigration. This bill will help to ease this problem by removing the incentives for immigrants to cross our borders illegally, and by reimbursing those States who have to incarcerate illegal immigrant felons.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is the culmination of a process that began in California with Prop 187 and continued through the Immigration Task Force called by the speaker. I want to congratulate all those who have worked so hard on it. I particularly want to congratulate LAMAR SMITH, who has worked to put this bill together. I also want to congratulate ELTON GALLEGLY for his efforts, and certainly I will support his bill and the vote on this issue.

Let me conclude by simply telling the minority leader of the Committee on Rules, Mr. BEILENSON, at least on this issue how much I have appreciated working with him. He is one of the gentlemen of the House. It has been a real pleasure to work with him over these years. We will miss him dearly.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. GALLEGLY], my very good friend who has chaired our Task Force on Illegal Immigration, former mayor of Simi, CA.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding. I rise today in strong support of this rule.

For the better part of the past decade I have been working to bring badly needed reforms to our Nation's immigration laws. Unfortunately, for far too long I have felt like I was talking to myself.

That is clearly no longer the case. Immigration reform is an issue on the minds of nearly all Americans, and nearly all express deep dissatisfaction with our current system and the strong desire for change. Today we are delivering that change.

I truly believe that this conference report that we will be hearing shortly represents the most serious and comprehensive reform of our Nation's immigration law in modern times. It also closely follows the recommendations of both the Speaker's Task Force on Immigration Reform, which I chaired, and those of the Jordan Commission. Approximately 60 percent of the recommendations made by the Speaker's Task Force have been included in this conference report.

They include, in part, provisions to double the number of Border Patrol agents stationed at our borders to 10,000 agents; expanded preinspection at foreign airports to more easily identify and deny entry to those persons with fraudulent documents or criminal backgrounds; tough new penalties for those who use or distribute fake documents, bringing the penalty for that offense in line with the use or production of counterfeit currency.

Mr. Speaker, the primary responsibilities of any sovereign nation are the protection of its borders and enforcement of its laws. For too long in the area of immigration policy, we at the Federal Government have shirked both those duties. It may have taken a long time, but policy makers in Washington are finally ready to acknowledge the devastating effects of illegal immigration on our cities and towns.

Finally, I would like to congratulate my colleague, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. SMITH], who chairs the Subcommittee on Immigration and Claims for all the effort that he has put into this, putting his heart and soul into this legislation. I would also like to thank him for welcoming the input of myself and other members of the task force in crafting this legislation, and I urge my colleagues to vote yes on this rule and let us pass immigration reform that this Nation sorely needs.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to my very good friend the gentleman from Imperial Beach, CA [Mr. BILBRAY].

(Mr. BILBRAY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BILBRAY. Mr. Speaker, as somebody who lives on the border with Mexico and grew up with the immigration issue, I am very concerned to hear my colleagues on the other side of the aisle say, ''Let's not do it now. Let's put it off and try to do something else in the next Congress.''

I as a mayor and as a county supervisor, I worked with the problems in our community with illegal immigration, crime, the impacts on our health care system. In fact, if my colleagues go to our hospitals today, they will see there are major adverse impacts. Talk to our law enforcement people about the major impact of illegal immigration. The cost is not just in dollars and cents.

And I would ask my colleagues on the other side of the aisle, if you don't care about the cost to the working class people, because this illegal immigration does not affect the rich white people, illegal immigration hurts those who need our services and our jobs in this country more than anything else, those who are legally here. But if you don't care about that, let me ask you to care about the humanity that is being slaughtered every day along our border because Washington, not Mexico, not Latin America, not anywhere else in the country, but Washington and the leadership in Washington has pulled a cruel hoax that says, ''Come to our country illegally, and we will reward you. Come to our country, and we will give you benefits.''

I ask my colleagues to consider this:

In my neighborhoods in south San Diego, we have had more people die in the last few years being slaughtered on our freeways, drowned in our rivers, run off of cliffs. More people have died, my colleagues, trying to cross the border illegally in San Diego than were killed in the Oklahoma bombing.

Now I ask my colleagues on the other side of the aisle who wanted to delay and put it off, Would you delay addressing one of the greatest terrorist acts that we have seen in our neighborhoods and along the border than we have seen in our lifetime? If Oklahoma's explosion was so important that we address that slaughter, please do not walk away from the loss of humanity down in San Diego and in California along the border. There are people that are dying because they are told to come to this country and we will reward them.

Please join with us. Support the rule. Let us reform illegal immigration and let us do it now. Quit finding excuses.

Mr. BEILENSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the remainder of our time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CAMP). The gentleman from California is recognized for 30 seconds.

Mr. BEILENSON. Mr. Speaker, we urge, as we have before, a ''no'' vote on this rule. The rule allows consideration of a conference report that was not given proper consideration by the conference committee, a conference report on which the minority party had no involvement. More importantly, the conference report that this rule makes in order is a feeble and misguided response to one of the most significant problems facing our Nation. Passage of this legislation will allow employers who hire illegal immigrants to continue to do so and to get away with it. Passage of this legislation will let Congress say that we have done something about illegal immigration when in fact we have not done the real work that we know that we have to do.

The real tragedy, Mr. Speaker, and I say to my friends, is that we have missed here a great opportunity to know what to do. The Members who have worked hardest on this issue know what we need to do.

So I suggest, Mr. Speaker, that we defeat this rule and force the Congress and the President to revisit this issue next year and then produce the kind of immigration reform legislation that the American people want and that this country so badly needs.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time to simply say that this may be the last rule that will be managed by my very good friend from California and to join in letting my colleagues know that he will be, by me, sorely missed. He has been a great friend and, I do appreciate the advice and counsel that he has given me over the years.

Let me say on this particular measure, Mr. Speaker, that as we look at this issue, it has been a long time in coming. Getting to this point has been a struggle, and I should say to my friends on the other side of the aisle that I can certainly relate to the level of frustration that those in the minority have felt, because having gone through four decades of serving in the majority, they find that they are not able to have quite the control that they did as now members of the minority.

But I believe that, as was the case when this bill first emerged from the committee, that it will in the end enjoy tremendous bipartisan support. The measure earlier this year had a tremendous number of votes. As I recall, there were only 80 some odd votes against the bill itself and 330 votes in support of it, and so the vote may not be identical to the earlier one, but I do believe that there will be Democrats and Republicans alike recognizing that this Congress has done more than past Congresses to deal with this problem of illegal immigration.

The American people have asked us to do it, and the 104th Congress has been result-oriented as we go through the litany of items from telecommunications reform, welfare reform, line-item veto, unfunded mandates. We have provided tremendous results, and this immigration bill is further evidence of that.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. BEILENSON. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 254, nays 165, not voting 14, as follows:

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 528, I call up the conference report on the bill (H.R. 2202) to amend the Immigration and Nationality Act to improve deterrence of illegal immigration to the United States by increasing Border Patrol and investigative personnel, by increasing penalties for alien smuggling and for document fraud, by reforming exclusion and deportation law and procedures, by improving the verification system for eligibility for employment, and through other measures, to reform the legal immigration system and facilitate legal entries into the United States, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. (Mr. RIGGS). Pursuant to House Resolution 528, the conference report is considered as having been read.

(For conference report and statement, see proceedings of the House of Tuesday September 24, 1996, at page H10841.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Texas [Mr. SMITH] and the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. CONYERS] each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas [Mr. SMITH].

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this conference report gives Congress the best opportunity in decades to address the illegal immigration crisis. Every 3 years, enough illegal aliens enter the country permanently to populate a city the size of Boston or Dallas or San Francisco. Classrooms bulge; welfare jumps; the crime rate soars. Innocent victims pay the price, and law-abiding taxpayers foot the bill.

This bill secures America's borders, penalizes alien smugglers, expedites the removal of criminal and illegal aliens, prevents illegal aliens from taking American jobs, and ends noncitizens' abuse of the welfare system.

By doubling the number of Border Patrol agents and securing our borders, we will protect our communities from the burdens imposed by illegal immigration: crime, drug trafficking, and increased demands on local police and social services. The benefits of securing our borders will be felt not only in border States but throughout the entire Nation.

If we cannot control who enters our country, such as illegal aliens, we cannot control what enters our country, such as illegal drugs. To control who enters, this bill increases criminal penalties for alien smuggling and document fraud. The Nation cannot allow alien smuggling to continue, especially since many alien smugglers are also kingpins in the illegal drug trade.

Illegal aliens should be removed from the United States immediately and effectively. Illegal aliens take jobs, public benefits, and engage in criminal activity. In fact, one-quarter of all Federal prisoners are illegal aliens. This bill will lower the crime rate, lower the cost of imprisoning illegal aliens, and make our communities safer places to live.

This legislation also relieves employers of a high level of uncertainty they face by streamlining the hiring process. It makes the job application process easier for our citizens and legal residents by establishing voluntary employment quick-check pilot programs in 5 States. The quick-check system will give employers the certainty and stability of a legal work force.

Since the beginning of this century, immigrants have been admitted to the United States on a promise that they will not use public benefits. Yet every year the number of noncitizens applying for certain welfare programs increases an astonishing 50 percent. America should continue to welcome those who want to work and produce and contribute, but we should discourage those who come to live off the taxpayer. America should keep out the welcome mat but not become a doormat.

This legislation also ensures that those who sponsor immigrants will have sufficient means to support them. Just as we require deadbeat dads to provide for the children they bring into the world, we should require deadbeat sponsors to provide for the immigrants they bring into the country. By requiring sponsors to demonstrate the means to fulfill their financial obligations, we make sure that taxpayers are not stuck with the bill, now $26 billion a year in benefits to noncitizens.

The provisions in this conference report are not new. These are the same reforms that passed the House on a bipartisan vote of 333 to 87, and in the Senate on a bipartisan vote of 97 to 3. And these are the same reforms that President Clinton has urged Congress to pass and send to his desk.

This bill will benefit American families, workers, employers, and taxpayers across the Nation, but especially in California, Texas, Florida, and other States that face the illegal immigration crisis on a daily basis.

Mr. Speaker, America is not just a nation of immigrants. It is a nation of immigrants committed to personal responsibility and the rule of law. It is time for Congress to stand with the American people and approve this conference report.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 4 minutes.

(Mr. CONYERS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, we are dealing with a bill that is so flawed, we will need a lot of speakers to make it clear why Members should not support the immigration conference report that is now before them.

What we do to the environment is a crime. The National Environmental Protection Act is the Nation's founding charter for environmental protection, and this bill repeals that law, in effect, when it comes to border-related construction. That means when we are working on highways, roads, bridges, fences, that it is OK to ignore the environment. Do my colleagues really mean that?

This conference report means that border construction can pollute our public waterways anyway, dirty our air, create hazardous point sources that can create dangerous runoffs, and generally ignore any adverse environmental impact of that construction. Do my colleagues really want that in a conference report?

This is yet another Republican attack on the environment. If it pleases my colleagues on the Democratic side, I will offer a motion to recommit the conference report to correct these glaring wrongs.

The next matter that my colleagues should carefully consider is the part that deals with the American workers. What we are doing here is giving us a conference report, and the lack of procedure has been amply dealt with, but what we are doing now is that we are being told to take it or leave it. I think that this amendment process, which we were completely shut out of, deserves a no vote on the conference, regardless of anything Members may like about it.

It was the Republicans, I say to Chairman HYDE, that railed and railed about how unfair we were. It was the Speaker of the House, NEWT GINGRICH, that has railroaded every conference bill for the last year. We do not even come to conference and have a right to offer an amendment. The process alone deserves every Member of this House to reject this conference report on due process procedural grounds.

And then what about the discriminatory aspects of this bill? Not only do we weaken illegal immigration but we say yes to more discrimination, because we now have onerous material that was not even in the bad bill I opposed in committee and on the floor.

We now have included unilaterally provisions that tell employers that they may engage in practices of racial discrimination so long as it cannot be proved that they had intent to violate the law. Coming out of the Committee on the Judiciary, I think it is a very sad day for any legislation to come out doing this to the most sensitive problem in our society.

Vote ''no'' on the conference report.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 15 seconds and say that the last provision that the gentleman from Michigan referred to was in the Senate bill which passed by 97 to 3.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. HYDE], the distinguished chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary.

(Mr. HYDE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I listened to the last gentleman in the well and I am a little bewildered because we marked this bill up, it took us 9 days, and we dealt with 103 amendments, 39 of which were decided by rollcall vote. The bill, when we finally got it to the floor, passed 333 to 87 in the House and 97 to 3 in the Senate. Prior to introducing the bill, the House Immigration Subcommittee heard from more than 100 witnesses and the Democrats were present and participated fully. So the gentleman, I think, is mistaken.

In any event, this is among the most important pieces of legislation this Congress will handle. A country has to control its borders. A country has the right to define itself. I think this is a good bill. It cannot please everybody, but it pleases a lot of people and I think it ought to pass.

I am pleased to speak in support of the conference report on H.R. 2202, because I believe it will facilitate major progress in addressing one of our Nation's most urgent problems—illegal immigration. In reconciling House and Senate versions of this landmark legislation, we provide for substantially enhanced border and interior enforcement, greater deterrents to immigration related crimes, more effective mechanisms for denying employment to illegal aliens, and more expeditious removal of persons not legally present in the United States.

The most difficult matter for the conferees to resolve concerned public education benefits for illegal aliens. Because public education is a major State function, the House had recognized the interests of each individual State in issues involving public school attendance at State taxpayer expense.

In that connection, we appreciated the fact that concerns about the welfare of unsupervised children and adolescents might lead many States to continue providing free public education to undocumented aliens—and we did nothing to discourage such choices at the State level. The compromise House and Senate conferees initially developed, both gave expression to the right of a State to choose a different course and extended important transitional protections to current students. Because of an explicit veto threat from the President, however, we subsequently decided that it would be preferable to address this entire issue in the context of other legislation rather than place at risk the many needed enforcement-related provisions of this bill.

The conferees also struggled with the issue of how to fairly and expeditiously adjudicate asylum claims of persons arriving without documents or fraudulent documents. We recognized that layering of prolonged administrative and judicial consideration can overwhelm the immigration adjudicatory process, serve as a magnet to illegal entry, and encourage abuse of the asylum process. At the same time, we recommended major safeguards against returning persons who meet the refugee definition to conditions of persecution.

Specially trained asylum officers will screen cases to determine whether aliens have a ''credible fear of persecution''—and thus qualify for more elaborate procedures. The credible fear standard is redrafted in the conference document to address fully concerns that the ''more probable than not'' language in the original House version was too restrictive.

In addition, the conferees provided for potential immigration judge review of adverse credible fear determinations by asylum officers. This is a major change providing the safeguard of an important role for a quasi-judicial official outside the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The conference document includes a House provision I offered in the Committee on the Judiciary to protect victims of coercive population control practices. Our law—which appropriately recognizes persecution claims in a number of contexts—must not turn a blind eye to egregious violations of human rights that occur when individuals are forced to terminate the life of an unborn child, submit to involuntary sterilization, or experience persecution for failing or refusing to undergo an abortion or sterilization or for resisting a coercive population control program in other ways. A related well-founded fear clearly must qualify as a well-founded fear of persecution for purposes of the refugee definition.

Our modification of the refugee definition responds to the moral imperative of aiding victims and potential victims of flagrant mistreatment. We also take a public stand against forcible interference with reproductive rights and forcible termination of life—a stand that hopefully will help to discourage such inhumane practices abroad.

This omnibus legislation includes a number of miscellaneous provisions that are responsive to a range of problems. For example, certain Polish applicants for the 1995 diversity immigrant program reasonably anticipated being able to adjust to permanent resident status; by facilitating their adjustment in fiscal year 1997 we effectively rectify a bureaucratic error. We also recognize the equities of certain nationals of Poland and Hungary who were paroled into the United States years ago—and thus entered our country legally—by affording them an opportunity to adjust to permanent resident status. I welcomed the opportunity to seek appropriate conference action in these compelling situations.

This omnibus immigration legislation makes major needed changes in the Immigration and Nationality Act. The primary thrust of the conference document is to respond in a measured and comprehensive fashion to a multifaceted breakdown in immigration law enforcement. I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BRYANT] who is completing his 14th year. He has served with great distinction in the Congress on a variety of committees, including the House Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. I thank my good friend from Michigan for yielding me this time and for those nice remarks.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. HYDE] and the gentleman from Texas [Mr. SMITH] have spoken of a bill that passed by wide margins. Indeed it did. But it is not the bill before the House today, and that is the whole point that we are making. It was changed radically before it even got to the floor by the leadership. It has been changed radically since, and that is why we say to Members today, vote for the motion to recommit but do not vote for this bill.

Members of the House, I was a cosponsor of this legislation. I stood in a press conference alongside the gentleman from Texas [Mr. SMITH] and said we have got to do something to reduce legal immigration and to reduce illegal immigration. With a great deal of criticism from many people on my side, I said we had to pass a bill, and I was for the bill we introduced. But that is not the bill that is before the House today.

We put together a bill that was to have reflected what the Barbara Jordan Commission recommended to us was to have been a bipartisan bill. It was going to be tough on employers that hire illegal aliens and include tough measures to stop illegal aliens from coming into the country and taking jobs.

But somewhere along the way, in the back rooms, the stuff that was tough on the folks that bring illegal aliens here, and that is to say, the employers that attract them here with a promise of jobs, somehow it disappeared, and in its place was put a list, a wish list offered up by lobbyists for the biggest employers of these illegal aliens in the country.

The bill that passed the House committee included 150 wage and hour inspectors that were asked for by the Jordan Commission. The Senate bill included 350. Why? Because people that hire illegal aliens also violate the wage and hour laws. Why? Because half of the jobs in this country that are lost to illegal aliens are lost to illegal aliens that did not get here by sneaking across the border. They are the ones that got here with a visa, but then they did not go home, they overstayed the visa. You can put a million Border Patrol agents at the border, but you are not going to find that one-half of the problem. The only way you are going to find it is with wage and hour inspectors. Those are gone from the bill. Why? Because some lobbyist for an employer somewhere wanted it done.

The bill eliminates the increased civil penalties for employers to tell them we are not going to put up any more with chronic violators of the laws that say you cannot hire people that are not citizens or are not here legally. Those enhanced civil penalties are gone. Why? Because the American people wanted them gone? Because the Jordan Commission said that they ought to be gone? Of course not. Because a lobbyist for an employer that hires illegal aliens came down here and said, ''Mr. GINGRICH, you Republicans do your job and get us off the hook.'' And that is exactly what they did.

They also added into the bill gratuitous language that eliminates the anti-discrimination provisions in the current law. Not in the bill, but in the current law. We passed a bill in 1986. Many Hispanics said this is going to result in inadvertent discrimination against Americans who are of Hispanic descent because they are going to be confused with somebody who is here illegally.

The GAO, after the bill was passed, did a study and found that they were right, so we included in the law strong prohibitions on discriminating against people in the course of asking for a job by asking them for too many papers or giving them a hard time when they come to the workplace. The law says you can ask for one of several papers, and that is all you can do.

But now the Republican provision says it does not make any difference if you ask them for all the papers in the world. If you cannot prove you intended to discriminate against them, you are not guilty of discrimination. That is a fundamental violation of the compact that we made between the groups in this country that make up our population, so that no one would be disadvantaged by the enforcement of a bill and law that is difficult to enforce. Well, it is gone.

The simple fact is this: What the employers that hire illegal immigrants wanted got done in this bill, and what working Americans who need to have their jobs protected, from being lost to illegal aliens, was not done. Worse, those that are the subject of discrimination, inadvertent or advertent, now have lost their protection.

Mr. Speaker, this is not a good bill. I can see the handwriting on the bill. I know it is an election year. Anti-immigration rhetoric is real good in an election year, and I am sure we are probably going to see a lot of folks coming down here thinking well, I should not vote for this, but I am probably going to have to. You do not have to. Vote for the motion to recommit. We fix all of these problems and a few I do not have time to mention. Vote for the motion to recommit. Vote against the bill.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from California [Mrs. SEASTRAND], who has been such a fighter in our effort to reduce illegal immigration.

Mrs. SEASTRAND. Mr. Speaker, I rise in very strong support of the conference report to H.R. 2202. It has completely rewritten the laws regarding the apprehension and removal of illegal aliens and will fully fund initiatives to double the size of our Border Patrol and increase the level of immigration enforcement in the interior of these United States. It will implement a strategy of both prevention and deterrence at our Nation's land borders.

This legislation will require aliens who arrive at our airports with fraudulent documents to be returned without delay to their point of departure, making it far more difficult for aliens to enter the United States, either across our land borders or through our airports. It will also aggressively attack immigration-related crimes. It is going to increase penalties for alien smuggling and document fraud and expand the enforcement capacity against such crimes. It will also make it easier for employers to be certain that they are hiring legal workers by providing a toll-free worker verification number that employers may call to verify the eligibility of employees to work legally in the United States.

I will just tell you, America, and especially California, needs immigration reform, and we need it now.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. FRANK], the senior member of the Committee on the Judiciary, who has worked with great diligence on trying to reform the bill.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, we have here Congress and American politics at its absolute worse. We have a very important issue, illegal immigration.

I worked for a very long time in a bipartisan way with departing Senator AL SIMPSON, whose departure I regret now even more than before, and others, in 1986 and in 1990 to fashion legislation in a bipartisan way to deal with this problem. Bipartisan, because this is not and ought not be an ideological issue. Some issues are legitimately partisan.

I was sorry to here hear the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary defend the shabbiest legislative procedure I have ever seen here. Yes, we had full markups; yes, we had full debates. And then once we did, this bill disappeared into a series of secret meetings between the Republican House and Senate staffs, it seemed to me, with some input from the Members, and the Dole campaign, and virtually all of the things on which we seriously worked in committee disappeared, and others appeared.

Now, this is a popular issue, getting rid of illegal immigrants to the extent that we can, as it ought to be. Unfortunately, this is a bill which does not do nearly as much as it could to diminish illegal immigration, and, instead, as the gentleman from Texas noted, makes it a little easier than it used to be for people to take advantage of them once they are here.

This is a bill that says gee, it would be nice if there were not so many illegal immigrants, but as long as they are here, maybe we can get a little cheap work out of them. That is the general thrust.

But then it does other things. I want to talk about one thing that appeared that was in neither bill.

At the Republican Convention we had speakers who talked about AIDS and how terrible it is. When the Republican leadership amended the military bill to say that if you are HIV positive you would be forced out, that was recognized to be a mistake and it was repealed. But here they go again.

What they have done is to take the issue of illegal immigration, a popular issue, and use it as a shield behind which to do ugly things to vulnerable people. The gentleman from Texas pointed out the extent to which they are weakening the civil rights protection. Here is another thing they do. It was not in either bill. It has not been voted on, and in the most extraordinary arrogance ever seen, we were not allowed to offer an amendment on this or any other thing in the conference. Because I will give my Republican leadership friends credit, they know how embarrassing this is, and therefore they are determined not to let anyone vote on it, so they did it in a forum in which you could not vote.

They simply say, OK, we got a bill on illegal immigration. By the way, they are going to stick in a couple of these things, and you have no way to vote, other than no on the whole bill.

The one I am talking about has to do with people who are HIV positive. This bill says if you are a legal immigrant, you came here legally, and there has been some economic misfortune and you get very sick, you cannot take federally-funded medical care for more than a year. That in and of itself seems to me to be cruel and unfair.

But then they say, well, in the interest of public health, we do not want epidemics around, we will make an exception for communicable diseases. That was in the bill as it came out.

Then, in the mysterious darkness that they use instead of a conference report, they gave an exception to the exception. What is the exception to the exception? If you are here legally and you are HIV positive, you may not get any treatment if you need Federal funds. If you are here legally and you contracted this terrible illness, which they profess to think is something we ought to fight, then you are, by this bill, condemned to death, with no help, because you cannot get Federal assistance.

I guess when they tote up the death penalties that they want to take credit for, they ought to add one: Legal immigrants here with HIV illness.

They created an exception for communicable diseases, but then they created an exception to the exception, so that if you are here legally and you get HIV, no matter how, and, by the way, we have changed the law, I did not agree with it, but this is the law, no one is now challenging it, so if you are known to be HIV positive and we test you, you cannot come in. So we are not talking about becoming a magnet for people who are HIV positive to come here. There is already a limit on that. What we are talking about are people who are here and become HIV positive, or who are here and become HIV positive when they got here, and they are denied medical treatment for more than 12 months, which, of course, if you are HIV positive, is the medical treatment you need.

What is the reason for that? What is that doing in a bill to deal with illegal immigration? I am talking about illegal immigrants. They can be deported if they take advantage of this medical care. I do not think it is a good idea to deny medical care to people in need elsewhere.

But this? We said ''Gee, we made a mistake. We should not kick people who are HIV positive out of the military.'' Should we kick them out of existence? Because that is what you do when you say to people who are here and do not have a lot of money and who are HIV positive, that you cannot get any medical treatment beyond 12 months.

I take it back. When they are about to die, then I guess they can get some.

This is an unworthy substantive and procedural piece of legislation, and it ought to be defeated.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. GOODLATTE], a member of the Committee on the Judiciary.

(Mr. GOODLATTE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this legislation, and I commend the gentleman from Texas for his outstanding work, in working so hard to put together a bill that has had very, very difficult times getting different pieces of legislation included.

I agree with some of the Members on the other side that I would like to see legal immigration reforms. I would like to see an employer verification system that really will help employers screen out fraudulent documents. But it is time for us to do and see the good things that are in this bill.

So I strongly disagree with those who did not get one piece of legislation into this bill that they would like or dislike and are going to vote against the entire bill, which they admit has dozens and dozens of positive, good illegal immigration reforms dealing with cracking down on illegal entry at our borders, dealing with illegal overstays in the country, dealing with cutting off access to government benefits for people who are not lawfully in this country.

Mr. Speaker, I urge the support for this legislation.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. COBURN], one of the only two medical doctors in the House.

(Mr. COBURN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, I just want to answer a couple of questions about this in terms of HIV in regard to AIDS. This bill does not deny treatment to legal immigrants that have AIDS. What it says is the government does not have a responsibility to pay for that treatment on non-U.S. citizens. I think if we poll the vast majority of the people in this country, I think they would agree with this.

The second thing is most Americans in this country pay for their own health care, either through a health plan, insurance payment, or working. They pay for their health care. We have created a class in this country that does not feel that it should pay for its health care on a disease that at this point in time the vast majority of which is a preventible disease.

The third point that I would like to make is that this bill does deny AIDS treatment to illegal immigrants, illegal. Yes, it does. Illegal immigrants, those people who are here illegally. So what we are saying with this bill is that if you have a sponsor and you are here legally, that sponsor should cover for your cost of the AIDS treatment.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. FRANK].

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I understand why the gentleman did not want to yield. The bill does not say that legal immigrants can get AIDS treatment and illegal cannot. It gives disabilities to both of them for getting it with Federal funds. Anybody who can pay for it on their own the bill does not affect. The bill says with regard to legal and illegal immigrants, they cannot get it with Federal funds. The distinction between legal and illegal does not exist in the bill. The degree of penalty may be different. In both cases the bill says if you are here legally or illegally and you have HIV, you cannot be treated with Federal funds. That includes legal immigrants.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 15 seconds to say what the bill says, and that is it does not deny AIDS treatment to legal immigrants. It simply says the immigrant's sponsor, not the American taxpayer, should pay for the treatment.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 10 seconds to the gentleman from Massachusetts. [Mr. FRANK].

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, it is a good sign that they are uncomfortable when it is described accurately. It does not just say you go after the sponsor. If you are a legal immigrant and you are treated, you can be deported for it. It becomes a deportable offense to be a sick person who gets treated if you have AIDS. At least describe accurately the harm you are inflicting on people.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California [Mr. DORNAN].

Mr. DORNAN. Mr. Speaker, let me take 10 seconds out of the beginning of my short remarks here as a border State Congressman from California.

One of the greatest selling jobs of all-time was to take the behavioral conduct ring out of the word AIDS. If we were discussing this as what it is, a fatal venereal disease, and it had the ring of syphilis, which is no longer fatal, I do not think we would be going back and forth like this. We would say illegal immigrants cannot get treatment for syphilis, and if they are legal then their sponsor has to take care of it.

But because we have done this magnificent PR on the only fatal venereal disease in the country, we still go back and forth as though AIDS is a badge of honor. It shows you are a swinger and you are part of the in crowd in this country. Sad.

I cannot add anything to the brilliance of the gentleman from California [Mr. GALLEGLY] or the gentleman from Texas or the people who have worked out an excellent piece of legislation. I just, for my 5 grown children and my constituents, want to get up and say: Illegal-legal. Illegal is lawbreaking; law breakers have no rights in this country.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. BERMAN].

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I want to join my other colleagues in indicating how sorely I will miss my friend from Texas, who is really a great Member of Congress, and I am sorry he will be leaving this body.

The people of my congressional district and of southern California, and probably the entire country, desperately want us to do something effective to stop illegal immigration. It is wrong to conclude that the people who voted for Proposition 187 are racist or xenophobes. They are people who are looking at what has happened: The employer sanctions did not work, the other strategies did not work, the refusal or earlier administrations to fund the Border Patrol and the Congress to appropriate the money left the border essentially unprotected. They want something done.

The problem with this bill is it cons the American people into thinking major new steps are going to be done.

This President is the first President to put the money where the mouth is. He has proposed, and the Committee on Appropriations, to its credit, has funded massive increases in Border Patrol. He has initiated through Executive order an expedited procedure for asylum, which has reduced those frivolous asylum applications by 58 percent. We are depositing more criminal aliens and more illegal immigrants than we ever did before, and all the trend lines are up.

What the Jordan commission and every single independent academic study of this issue says, without a verification system we will never make employer sanctions meaningful. Nothing else. Nothing else is serious if we do not do that and make a commitment to do that.

Second, we know there are industries that systematically recruit and hire illegal immigrants, and for reasons that I do not know, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BRYANT] has a theory which sounds plausible to me, this conference committee struck inspectors and investigators to cover those industries. We should not be conned.

Let me turn to what it does with legal immigrants. For the first time in American history, even when we had the moratoriums on immigration, a U.S. citizen, and, remember, this bill puts an income requirement on petitioning for spouses. An individual has to make 140 percent. Fifty-three percent of the unmarried American people do not make 53 percent, do not make 140 percent of the poverty standard. Mr. Speaker, 53 percent of the American people do not make it.

A graduate student woman in medical school, who is not making that money, falls in love and marries a physician in France. She cannot bring him in because, even though he is affluent, has all the assets needed, there is no indication in the world he will go on any government program, she cannot bring him in.

This is the stupidest as well as the meanest provision I can imagine. When we had moratoriums on immigration in this country, we allowed U.S. citizens to bring in their spouses. Why would we want to change that now?

I urge a ''no'' vote on a bill that is soft on illegal immigration and harsh and mean on legal immigrants.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California [Mr. HUNTER], who has contributed so much to this bill.

Mr. HUNGER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, for my friend who just spoke, let me set the record straight. When he claimed the Clinton administration has funded thousands and thousands of Border Patrol agents, Republican amendments have added 1,700 Border Patrol agents over the last 3 years above and beyond what the Clinton administration requested. President Clinton cut 93 Border Patrol agents in the fiscal year 1994 budget. We added 600. The next year we came with an additional 500, and the next year with an additional 400 agents.

The Clinton administration has been dragged kicking and screaming to the border. They have opposed the border fence every step of the way.

My last point is, even after they opposed the additional Border Patrol agents, President Clinton then sent his public relations people to San Diego to welcome the agents that he had opposed. If these people just linked arms, all the Clinton public relations people, we would not need a Border Patrol because they would stretch across the entire State.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 10 seconds to the gentleman from California [Mr. BERMAN].

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I would say to my friend, the gentleman from California knows that no President has proposed more Border Patrol agents than this President. The Committee on Appropriations, not the authorizing committee, the Committee on Appropriations has funded those positions and more. He has signed those bills. We are doing more now than we ever did before.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. GALLEGLY], the chairman of the House task force on illegal immigration.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, this is truly a humbling moment for me because this conference report is something that truly I wondered if we would ever see in this body.

I came to Congress nearly a decade ago, and since that time my overwhelming focus has been on two things: to stop the unchecked flow of illegal immigration in this country and to find a way to convince those that are already illegally in this country that it is time to go home. This conference report goes a long way toward accomplishing both of those objectives.

For many years many of us in California, Texas, and other States that have been disproportionately impacted by illegal immigration have been walking through the halls and through this body ringing alarm bells. We have been urging this Congress to wake up to the fact that our country is, in effect, under a full-scale invasion by those that have no legal right to be here yet who come by the thousands every day and consume precious social benefits that are denied every day to legal residents who are truly entitled to those benefits.

Today this is a different bell ringing in this Chamber, Mr. Speaker, and the bell is a bell of change. The passage of this conference report finally signals the willingness of this Congress to seriously address the issue of illegal immigration.

Mr. Speaker, we are a generous Nation, by far the most generous Nation on the face of the Earth. This legislation does not endanger or threaten that generosity but, in fact, it does nothing more than to preserve it.

The simple fact is that the greatest potential threat to legal immigration is illegal immigration. There are many who would see us close the front door to legal immigration because the back door to illegal immigration is off the hinges. We simply cannot allow this to happen. I believe this conference report goes a long way toward ensuring that it never will happen. I urge its passage.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. WAXMAN].

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. I want to point out a couple of important health consequences from this bill.

In the welfare bill we excluded legal aliens from health care but we left those who are already patients to be covered under Medicaid. They are now excluded.

Second, we exclude any legal alien from any Medicaid services whatsoever. That is going to put a burden on the counties and the States and on the hospitals and on people who pay for private insurance when that insurance goes up, because a lot of people are still going to get care, but their care is going to have to be paid for by someone else.

On the AIDS issue, what we are doing is really a disastrous policy. This bill provides that all people can be tested but they cannot get care. Why would anybody want to come to know whether they are HIV positive if they cannot then get any medical care to assist them? They will rather be ignorant about it and spread the disease.

For those of us who call ourselves pro-life, understand that this bill would allow a pregnant women to be tested; but when she is determined to be HIV positive, she will not be allowed to have the Government pay for her AZT to stop the transmission of HIV, which is successful under this treatment to two-thirds of those children.

We will condemn babies to getting AIDS when it could have been prevented. That, to me, is antilife and nonsensical, and this bill smacks of a lot of injustices that have not been thought through.

I want to point this out to Members as another reason to vote against a very unjust bill.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California [Mr. CUNNINGHAM].

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, every substantive issue in the bill before us today has been voted on by the House or the Senate. I would say to my colleagues on the other side that even in welfare, many of them, no matter what we did, they would vote against it, both for political reasons and issue reasons.

In California over two-thirds of the children born in our hospitals are to illegal aliens. Members should take that into effect when they are talking about helping the poor and American citizens and taking away funds from Medicaid.

We have over 400,000 children K through 12. At $5,000 each to educate a child, that is over $2 billion. They should try to take that out of their State for education.

Some 70 percent of the environment is done at the State level. Members should think about $3 billion taken out of their States. They could not afford that.

This bill does not help all of those things. Prop 187, that the Gallegly amendment was in, passed by two-thirds in California. It has been taken out of this.

There are some things in here that I do not like as well, but I would ask my colleagues on the other side to think about how they could afford it in their States, and I think it would be very difficult.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California [Mr. MCKEON].

Mr. MCKEON. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this conference report and commend the gentleman from Texas, Chairman SMITH, for his great leadership in bringing this bill to the floor.

As legislators we work on an endless number of issues, but today we are addressing one of our Nation's most critical, that of protecting our borders. H.R. 2202 not only secures our borders with the addition of 5,000 new Border Patrol agents, it also streamlines the deportation of criminal aliens, protects American jobs and holds individuals responsible to support immigrants that they sponsor, and, finally, eases the tax burdens on all Americans.

It is no longer possible to ignore the magnitude of the illegal immigration problem. These reforms will go a long way toward restoring reason, integrity, and fairness to our immigration policy and to controlling our borders. Through the adoption of this conference report, the 104th Congress achieves another commonsense change for a better America.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. NADLER].

(Mr. NADLER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, this bill, which contains some valid provisions to enforce our immigration laws, has been poisoned with unconscionable provisions that violate fundamental American values.

The bill would deny treatment to people with AIDS but not to people with syphilis. It would promote discrimination in employment by removing provisions of Federal law, of present law, designed to prevent that.

The bill would not permit an American citizen, denied a job because the Federal Government made a computer mistake, from recovering damages. This is outrageous and will result in Americans being denied jobs and having no recourse.

The agreement will undermine American family values by curtailing the ability of American citizens to sponsor the entry of family members into the community.

The bill exempts the Immigration and Naturalization Service from our environmental laws, even though none of these laws have ever hindered the enforcement of immigration laws.

The bill will send genuine refugees back to their oppressors without having their claims properly considered. If a person arrives at the border without proper documents, the officer at the border can send that person back without a hearing. Guess who cannot get proper papers? Refugees. A refugee cannot go to the Gestapo and KGB and say: I am trying to escape your oppression, please give me the proper papers so I can go to America.

The bill eliminates judicial review for most INS actions. Just think, a Federal bureaucracy with no judicial accountability. When did the Republicans become such spirited advocates of unrestrained big government? No government agency should be allowed to act, much less lock people up or send them back to dictatorships, without being subject to court review.

Should we ensure that our immigration laws are respected and enforced? Of course. Do we need to undercut public health efforts, destroy our environment, debase our fundamental values, violate the rights of American citizens and waste taxpayer dollars on foolish or dangerous enterprises in order to enforce our immigration? Of course not.

This bill is not a credit to this country. I hope Members stand up for American values and vote ''no.''

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from New York [Mr. GILMAN], chairman of the Committee on International Relations.

(Mr. GILMAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I support the passage of this important immigration conference report. The American people want and expect the Federal Government to do its job of controlling our borders. We have a strong obligation in protecting our citizens from illegal criminal aliens, who prey on them with drugs, and other crime-related activity.

I am particularly proud to support this immigration bill which includes some of my own initiatives directed at these serious threats from criminal aliens, engaged in both the illicit drug trade as well as international terrorism.

The first provision provides clear authority to our National Guard units to allow them to move criminal aliens facing deportation to INS deportation centers, when these aliens have engaged in drug related offenses. In the past, many States did so effectively with their National Guard units. My provision restores that vital authority to our National Guard as part of its counterdrug mission.

The National Guard can now help expedite the deportation out of the U.S. on Guard air flights of large numbers of these criminal aliens involved in the deadly drug trafficking in our communities after they serve their jail time, and before they can return to the streets, and once again in their trade in drugs. I hope many Guard units will do so.

The provision recognizes the limits on the INS's inability to individually transport numerous criminal aliens for deportation, using INS personnel on commercial flights. We have provided one more effective tool in the war on drugs, the use of our National Guard in the deportation of criminal aliens involved in drugs.

Nearly one-fourth of our Nation's jail cells in the United States, are occupied by criminal aliens, mostly those who have engaged in drug related offenses. We need more effective and creative tools to handle this crisis. I hope that our State and local authorities and the INS takes advantage of this assistance that the National Guard can provide.

New York City Mayor Giuliani on ''Face the Nation'' recently said it best with regard to our Nation's drug crisis, including criminal aliens, on what the Federal Government can best do to combat the serious drug problems facing our cities and local communities:

What the Federal Government could do is to deport more of the illegal drug dealers that we have in our city (sic) unfortunately, very few deportations take place of the people who are actually selling drugs who are illegal immigrants and that would be very helpful.

My provision helps do just that. Senator Dole has wisely urged an even greater role for our excellent National Guard already involved in the battle against illicit drugs. Today we provide the first installment on Senator Dole's wise call for additional Guard action.

My other provision in the conference provides for criminal asset forfeiture penalties for visa and passport fraud and related offenses surrounding misuse or abuse of these key entry and travel documents.

Nine of the original indictable counts in the World Trade Center terrorist bombing involved visa or passport fraud. It was clear that those responsible for that bombing misused our travel and entry documents to facilitate their deadly terrorist blast. By this measure we have made those who would make and help create fraudulent visas and passports to promote terrorism and drug smuggling here at home, subject to even tougher penalties.

The potential loss of the printers, copiers, buildings, and large financial proceeds of this massive illicit business in key U.S. travel and entry documents, should help further deter terrorism and other criminal activity, facilitated by these fraudulent travel documents.

Although this is a good bill, I am hopeful that the sponsors will review provisions in the conference report that would greatly expand ''deeming'' for legal immigrants beyond the compromise agreed to in the recently enacted welfare bill, which combines the income of the immigrant and the sponsor for Medicaid eligibility determination. Regrettably, the deeming provisions may adversely affect many States with high immigrant populations, including New York, which are implementing welfare reform. The result may potentially cause a marked increase in the amount of uncompensated care for area hospitals and increase the costs of the Ryan White treatment program. I have brought this issue to the attention of Chairman SMITH and have asked him to consider the contention that confusion is likely to result as the States implement the language of the two bills and I thank him for that consideration.

Accordingly, Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to support the conference report, and urge its adoption.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California [Mr. ROHRABACHER].

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this conference report. Today when this bill passes, the American people will be able to judge for themselves who is on their side and who is for draining dollars meant for our people, draining those dollars away from American families and taking them and giving them to foreigners who have come to this country illegally.

We have had to fight for years, first through a democratically controlled Congress and now this administration which has fought us and dragged us by the feet every step of the way but we have finally got a bill to the floor.

Giving illegal aliens benefits that should be going to our own people is a betrayal of our people. People who are sick, they come to our borders. Yes, we care about them. I do not care if it is AIDS or tuberculosis. But if someone is sick and illegally in this country, they should be deported from this country to protect our own people instead of spending hundreds of thousands of dollars that should go for the health benefits of our own citizens. The question is, To whom do we owe our loyalty? Who do we care about? The American people should come first.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California [Mr. BILBRAY] who actually lives on the border and faces the crisis of illegal immigration every day.

Mr. BILBRAY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this conference report. I would like to thank Chairman SMITH and Chairman SIMPSON for the leadership they have shown on this bill. I would also like to commend Senator FEINSTEIN of California for her commitment to make the conference report work and encourage the President to sign it into law.

I think that the public is sick and tired of seeing the partisan fighting on important issues such as this. Senator FEINSTEIN had a major concern about one portion of the bill, part of the bill I feel strongly about, and that is the issue of the mandate of the Federal Government that we give free education to illegal aliens while our citizen and legal resident children are doing without. But, Mr. Speaker, this Member, and I think the American people, are not willing to kill this bill because of a single provision.

I think there are those who will find excuses to try to kill this bill and try to find ways not to address an issue that has been ignored for over a decade.

We must not forget that California has been disproportionately hit with paying $400 million a year in emergency health care, $500 million for incarceration costs, and $2 billion in providing education for illegal aliens in our State.

Congress must still recognize that these are federally mandated costs and it is up to the Federal Government to either put up or shut up in ending these unfunded mandates.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM], chairman of the Subcommittee on Crime.

(Mr. MCCOLLUM asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this bill today. It is a very, very fine product. H.R. 2202 is a much needed boost to our efforts against illegal immigration.

Included in the bill are 5,000 new border patrol agents, more INS agents to track alien smugglers and visa overstayers, more detention space for illegal aliens, and the list goes on and on.

I am most pleased that many of the asylum reform provisions that we have needed for years and I worked on with the gentleman from Texas for years are now in this bill. We have very generous asylum laws but now we are going to have provisions that make it a lot more difficult for somebody to come here and claim that they have a fear of persecution if they are sent back home to their native country, when they really do not, and be able to overstay and stay and get lost in our country and never get kicked out. Instead we have got a provision that I think is very fair for summary and expedited exclusion which, by the way, is already law as a result of the antiterrorism bill earlier this year but which we are making much more livable and a better product today.

Also we have in here some efforts to try to get document fraud under control. We lessen the number of documents used in employer sanctions where we attempt to cut off the magnet of jobs by a 1986 provision that makes it illegal for an employer to knowingly hire an illegal alien. There were far too many documents that could be produced to get a job. Now we have reduced that number to a manageable number.

What is left to be done is we need to find a way to get document fraud out of it. I think that some steps are taken in this bill, not enough, and I have introduced another separate piece of legislation I hope passes the next Congress to make the Social Security card much more tamper-proof than it is today.

We also have some provisions in here I think are important with regard to Cuba. We have allowed the Cuban Adjustment Act to continue to operate and with regard to the expedited exclusion issue, we have made a special provision so that those Cubans who arrive by air are going to be not subject to that particular provision.

We have also taken care of student aid problems that were earlier in this bill, whereby if you are deemed to have the money value in your pocket of your sponsor, you no longer will be in the case of education, at least for student aid purposes, excluded from those benefits.

The bill is an excellent bill. I urge my colleagues to adopt it and we need to send it down to the President and get it put into law.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. GUTIERREZ].

Mr. GUTIERREZ. Mr. Speaker, for generations immigrants have played a vital role in our economy, but today immigrants play the role of villain in the Republican's morality play. By exploiting a false image of millions of illegal immigrants crossing the border into the United States, NEWT GINGRICH and his Republican allies have crossed the border from decency to indecency.

After all, under this bill the simple idea of uniting with your closest family members will become a luxury that only the wealthiest will be able to afford. The Republicans say they want to get tough on crime, so how do they do that? Under this bill legal immigrants are deportable for the crime of wanting to improve their education to adding something to this country. That is right, under this bill if you are a legal immigrant and you use public benefits, including a student loan for more than a year, you are shown the door. What does that accomplish? It means that we throw our young people who are taking steps to gain an education and job skills and, yes, improve their English skills also. It means that this bill does not simply punish immigrants, it punishes all Americans who benefit from contributions that immigrants make to our Nation. Let us defeat this sad, cynical, and shortsighted legislation.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California [Mr. HORN].

(Mr. HORN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HORN. Mr. Speaker, legal immigration, yes; illegal immigration, no. Californians and residents of other border States have been fighting illegal immigration for years. It took the current Republican majority to take a serious look at this issue. Do not listen to the charges of those who oppose this bill. It is not cruel to ask immigrants and their sponsors to live up to their obligations. It is not heartless to try to put some teeth in our immigration laws. It is a pretty sad day when you can jump a fence, have more rights in this side of the border than when you are coming through legally. We need to protect legal immigration.

Recently I held a hearing near the border. Our border in southern California is still a sieve. They have simply moved the problem 40 miles east. They refuse to indict those that are coming over with drugs. And generally it is chaotic still. What it means, we had gained more congressional seats but that will not be good for everybody east of California, I am sure. So I would hope we would have the help of our colleagues throughout this Chamber because this is a national problem, not just a Southwest, Southeast problem.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. RICHARDSON].

(Mr. RICHARDSON asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I want to commend the chairman and the ranking member. They worked very hard with this bill. There are still some problems. The common perception is that once you get the Gallegly amendment out, the bill is OK. The problems are still there and more work is needed on this bill.

The Endangered Species Act, nobody has talked about it today, but it is part of this package. In other words, the Environmental Policy Act and the Endangered Species Act are waived if we are talking about construction of roads and barriers at the border. That is not right.

Mr. Speaker, this bill also rolls back three decades of civil rights policy by establishing an intent standard. It exacerbates the results and the effects of the welfare reform law but now it seems that we are castigating legal immigrants.

This bill includes back-door cuts in legal immigration by establishing a new income standard. It guts the American tradition we have always had to refugees by including summary exclusion provisions that are going to require instant return of any refugee.

Perhaps, most importantly, what this bill does is it is tougher on legal immigrants and American workers than on illegal immigration. It makes life harder for American workers and easier for American businesses. Eliminated are provisions in the bill to increase the number of inspectors for the Department of Labor to enforce worker protections, the Barney Frank amendments that allowed us in the past to vote for this bill. This bill also strips authority from the courts with provisions that will eliminate the power of the courts to hold the INS accountable and eliminate protections against error and abuse.

I want to return to the Barney Frank provisions that allowed many civil libertarians, those concerned with civil rights, when we passed very tough employer sanctions in the old immigration bill, to support this bill because we knew there would be recourse if there was discrimination. All of these inspectors, all of these that enforce civil rights provisions are eliminated from this bill. That is a key component that is going to hurt American workers.

This bill eliminates also longstanding discretionary relief from deportation that will say to American family members of immigrants being deported that you get no second chance. I know there are enormous pressures for dealing with illegal immigration bill. There are political pressures that are very intense. But we should not allow the politics and the fact that this is a wedge issue to prevent us from doing the right thing. The right thing is that this bill needs more work. We do want to have strong measures against illegal immigration. There are a lot of provisions here in the bill that are good, that make sense. But the attack on legal immigrants, American workers, right now, is stronger than on illegal immigration. Therefore, I think that we should reject this bill. Give it one more shot.

There is additional time. I understand we will be in next week now. Let us do the right thing. Let us defeat this conference report.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks on the conference report under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BILBRAY). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 2 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, several times today, various opponents have mentioned that we do not have in this legislation the Department of Labor inspectors.

□ 1430

But I want to remind them that they have already lost that argument twice. That provision was taken out on the House floor by amendment, and then subsequent to that we passed the House bill without those inspectors in it. That means two times it has come before this body and two times the Members have spoken.

The point is that we have already debated that, we have already voted.

The other thing about the inspectors that seems to be conveniently overlooked is that in this bill we have added an additional 900 inspectors, 300 each year for 3 years, and these are INS inspectors. It makes far more sense to have Immigration and Naturalization Service inspectors enforcing immigration laws than the Department of Labor.

And, Mr. Speaker, I also want to itemize some of the provisions that are in this bill that might have been overlooked.

We have heard tonight by Members on both sides of the aisle that this bill doubles the number of Border Patrol agents over the next 5 years. That is the largest increase in our history.

It also streamlines the current system of removing illegal aliens from the United States to make it both quick and efficient.

It increases penalties for alien smuggling and document fraud.

It establishes a three-tier fence along the San Diego border, which is the area with the highest number of illegal border crossings.

It strengthens the public charter provisions and immigration laws so that noncitizens do not break their promise to the American people not to use welfare.

It ensures that sponsors have sufficient means to fulfill their financial support obligation.

It also strengthens provisions in the new welfare law prohibiting illegal aliens from receiving public benefits, and it strengthens penalties against fraudulent claims to citizenship for the purposes of illegally voting or applying for public benefits.

Lastly, Mr. Speaker, I just want to say that I know my friend from Texas, Mr. BRYANT, opposes this bill, but I still want to say that he deserves public credit for many of the provisions still in the bill that he would consider beneficial, even if he does not consider the entire bill beneficial.

Mr. Speaker, I just want to continue the comments I was making a while ago and express to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BRYANT] my appreciation for his constructive role in the process. Even if he cannot support the entire bill, he has played a significant role in getting us to this point, and especially at the beginning when he was a cosponsor of this bill.

Lastly, Mr. Speaker, I want to make the point once again that the opponents who we are hearing from this afternoon do not represent a majority of their own party. They certainly are entitled to try to kill this bill or block the bill or defeat the bill, but we have every right, those of in the majority, to try to pass this legislation.

The reason I say that they do not even represent a majority of their own party is simply because every major provision in this conference report, which is itself a compromise, is the result of either the House passage of the bill which passed by 333 to 87, or the Senate immigration bill which passed by a vote of 97 to 3.

So there is wide and deep bipartisan support for the provisions in this bill, and I expect to see that bipartisan support continue when the bill comes on a conference report.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume, only to say that I once again take issue with this characterization of the bill. This is not the bill that the House voted on; it is not the bill the Senate voted on. It is a bill that the Republicans spent 4 months behind closed doors cooking up so it would serve their electioneering and political interests this year.

The fact of the matter is that this bill now does not have wage and hour inspectors in it which are necessary, it does not have the subpoena authority for the Labor Department which is necessary, it does not have the requirement that employers participate in the verification project. In other words, they have done exactly what the employers wanted them to do so that the draw of illegal aliens into this country, which is to get a job, has not been effective.

Oh, yes, we are talking about more people on the border if the Committee on Appropriations goes along with this. That sounds good. I am certainly for that. But the only way we are ever going to solve this problem is to deal with the fact that there are people out there who habitually hire illegal aliens, and we had many, many inspectors in the House committee, had many, many inspectors in the House committee version, the 150. We had 350 in the Senate bill. They are gone. Of the enhanced penalties that we had in the bill, the enhanced penalties that we had in the bill so that habitual offenders would suffer for their acts have now been removed.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. FRANK].

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, the chairman of the subcommittee has given the perfect rationale for voting against the bill and for our motion to recommit. He says many of these provisions are here in part because of the gentleman from Texas, the ranking member. That is exactly right, and if this bill had only those provisions, it would not be controversial. He has conceded the point.

There is a core of agreement on measures to restrict illegal immigration that would not be controversial.

But here is what happens, and people should understand people sometimes think the party does not mean anything. Yes, party control means something. The Republicans are in control of this Congress. That means their ideological agenda and the interest groups that they are most interested in get served.

What that means is that we do not get a chance to vote just on the bill dealing with illegal immigration. It comes with illegal immigration and an unbreakable format, a conference I have never seen before, where the chairman just decided no amendments would be allowed because he is afraid to have his members vote on these things.

Other provisions are there. Well, what are the other provisions? One provision reaches back to antidiscrimination language. It has nothing to do with illegal immigration. We have said that we feared, when we put employer sanctions into the law, that this would lead to discrimination against people born in America who were of Mexican heritage. The GAO said, ''You're right, it's happened.'' What they have done in this bill is to reach back to that section not otherwise before us and made it much harder for us to protect those people against discrimination.

Then we will have a recommit to undo that. My colleagues could vote for the recommit and it will not effect their commitment on illegal immigration.

With regard to the people with AIDS, that is a provision that was in neither bill. The gentleman from Texas who does not want to defend things on the merits says, ''Well, the majority is with me.'' Well, that was not in the House bill, and it was not in the Senate bill. It is an add-on in that secret conference that they had.

What this bill does is to weaken our enforcement powers against those who employ people who are here illegally and then, serving the Republican ideological agenda, says ''If you're here legally and you have AIDS, you may die if you need Federal funds because you will get none. If you are a Mexican-American born here, we will make it easier for people to discriminate against you. If you are an American legally eligible to work and the Government falsely certifies that you weren't and makes a mistake, in the House version of the bill we had a protection for you.'' In this version of the bill there is none. if they apply for a job, having been born in this country, and they are turned down because the government inaccurately reported that they were not eligible to work, they have no recourse. Our bill would have given some recourse.

This bill protects the employers. This bill makes it harder if someone is a potential victim of discrimination, or if they are a perfectly legal resident of the United States with AIDS, including a child. Children with AIDS who are not yet eligible to become citizens, children who are brought here; they did not sneak in, not these terrible people my colleagues are worried about, children who are here with AIDS are denied Federal health benefits in certain circumstances by this bill. That is shameful.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 minute.

Mr. Speaker, the States have indicated that there is likely to be confusion in the interpretation of title V of this bill in the recently enacted welfare bill. The intent of some of the provisions in title V may need to be addressed in the later bill. Until that time the States should be held harmless on issues which are ambiguous.

However, the immigration bill is not intended to change in any way the eligibility provisions in the recent welfare bill. Non-citizens are not eligible for SSI or food stamps, and future immigrants are not eligible for Medicaid as well as for their first 5 years, and this bill simply does not change that.

Mr. Speaker, I also on a different subject want to reiterate the fact that all of us who are strong supporters of this bill also are strong supporters of employer sanctions. That is why in this bill we have increased Interior enforcement, we have increased the number of INS inspectors, we have increased the penalties, and we have this quick-check system that will allow employers to determine who is eligible to work and who is not.

So this bill goes exactly in that direction, which of course is supported by a majority of the American people as well.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MICA].

Mr. MICA. Mr. Speaker, I come before the House today, as we debate this immigration reform legislation, from a State that has been impacted and sometimes devastated by a lack of a national immigration policy.

I notice we have some reforms in here, and there are some good reforms. We are doubling the number of Border Patrol, but also in this we are also restricting some payments, some benefits, to illegal aliens, and we should go even beyond that.

But I tell my colleagues that unless we stop some of the benefits, unless we demagnetize the magnet that is attracting these folks to come to our shores—we can put a Border Patrol person every 10 yards across our border, and we will not stop the flow because people will come here because of the attraction of the benefits.

How incredible it is that we debate whether we give education benefits or medical benefits and legal benefits and housing benefits and other benefits to illegal aliens and even legal aliens in this country when we do not give the same benefits in this Congress, and that side of the aisle has denied them to our veterans who have served and fought and died for this country in many cases, or their families, and to our senior citizens. So this is a much larger debate.

Finally, my colleagues, we must have a President who will enforce the laws, and we have not had a President who will enforce the immigration laws, and we have a new policy every day, and we cannot live that way.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute 15 seconds to the gentleman from California [Mr. TORRES].

(Mr. TORRES asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TORRES. Mr. Speaker, I rise to voice my strong opposition to this so-called immigration reform bill. There must be some confusion over what immigration actually means, over what immigration actually is. The dictionary defines immigration as ''coming into a country of which one is not a native resident.''

Basic logic tells us that any attempt to reform immigration should address those issues that directly relate to immigration: strict border control, effective verification of citizenship, and penalizing those businesses and industries who knowingly employ undocumented immigrants.

Most Americans would agree with those goals. But this bill goes way beyond these sensible, logical goals. Instead, it attacks the very principles upon which this country was founded. America's Founding Fathers built this country on the principles of fairness and equality, on honoring the law and creating safeguards against any kind of discrimination. Throughout history, our country has welcomed those immigrants who play by the rules, pay their taxes, and contribute to our cherished diversity.

But this bill ignores those traditions and attacks the very people who we say are welcome—legal immigrants. The welfare bill effectively stripped legal residents of many safeguards, and this bill goes on to clean up what the welfare bill missed.

Under this bill, legal immigrants who enter the country and begin the process of living the life of an American resident would lose the protections guaranteed by the Constitution.

Employers would be given the go-ahead to discriminate by a bill that does not enforce current immigration requirements and citizenship verification. Employers would be allowed to exploit workers by weakening civil rights protections and gutting wage and law enforcement.

This bill is not about immigration reform, it's about punishing women and children who play by the rules and represent the very best in our country. Most legal immigrants work hard for low to moderate wages, with little or no health insurance. Should the family need Federal assistance, too bad. Because if one of these workers ends up in the hospital and cannot pay his bill, and the sponsor cannot pay his bill, that worker will be deported. Never mind that he has been paying taxes for the past few years. Suddenly, it just doesn't matter that he has contributed to our economy and has followed our laws.

It doesn't stop there. It isn't just the worker. It's his family, his children. If his child needs medical care and he can't pay, his tax money suddenly isn't available. This bill sends the child to school sick, with the fear of deportation always looming in the background.

Legal immigrant children must have their sponsor's income deemed for any means-tested program. This effectively bars these children from child care, Head Start, and summer jobs and job training programs.

What does reducing a legal resident's access to health care and Federal benefits have to do with restricting illegal immigration I would argue—nothing. Absolutely nothing. Because this is not about reducing illegal immigration. If it were, I would not be standing before you asking these simple questions.

For these reasons, I encourage my colleagues to oppose this blatant offense to our sense of fairness, justice, and equal protection for every American resident.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. BILBRAY].

Mr. BILBRAY. Mr. Speaker, let us talk about playing by the rules.

If this bill is not passed, those who have broken immigration law and entered this country legally have more rights than those who are waiting patiently at the ports of entry to enter into this country. That kind of confuses me, because my colleagues on the other side of the aisle have no problem with an immigration agent turning away somebody at the port of entry if they are coming to a legal port of entry, without a judge's rulings, without court cases, without lawyers. But if somebody jumps the fence, breaks the law, then they want to continue to empower these people with more rights than those who are playing by the rules.

I have to say, this is the absurdity of Washington, that we are even discussing this issue. But they are saying, what if this legislation passes, what could happen?

Let me tell the Members, as somebody who lives on the border, let me say what happened today and what has happened in the past. San Diego County, when I was a supervisor, spent $30,000 sending people back to foreign countries in body bags, because of how many people are dying because of this problem.

The fact is, there are law-abiding citizens who are doing without in their hospitals because the Federal Government is actively dumping patients onto working-class hospitals and expecting those communities to pay the bill that Washington has played the deadbeat dad and walked away from. This bill will finally correct that.

Mr. Speaker, I think the chairman of the committee said quite clearly, we want to have a welcome mat out for legal immigration, but there is a difference between having a welcome mat and being a doormat. Our taxpayers have a right to expect that citizens do have rights and should be first in our priorities for social programs and for the taxpayers' dollars; the fact that illegal aliens should not be given preference over legal residents and citizens.

Mr. Speaker, if our colleagues from the other side of the aisle want to walk away from this issue, then they are walking away from a major mandate, not just from the people of California, but across this country. We had bipartisan support at finally addressing the issue of the absurdity of welfare, and we passed a welfare reform bill the President signed. It is time to be bipartisan. Pass this bill. Give the President the chance to sign this bill, too.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. FOLEY].

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I commend the chairman of the subcommittee for his hard work on H.R. 2202.

Mr. Speaker, let us just say everybody is in bipartisan support of this bill. The House passed the bill 333 to 87. The Senate bill passed 97 to 3. This bill secures our borders, cuts crime, protects American jobs, and saves taxpayers from paying billions of dollars in benefits to noncitizens.

The conference report doubles the number of Border Patrol agents, expedites the removal of illegal aliens, increases penalties for alien smuggling and document fraud, prohibits illegal aliens from receiving most public benefits, and encourages sponsors of legal immigrants to keep their commitment of financial support.

My grandmother came from Poland with a sponsor, a job, and a clean bill of health. We should expect no less from any other person coming to this country. We must stop illegal immigration. We must stop the waste of Treasury dollars towards people who come here illegally. We need to clean up our communities. This bill goes a long way to doing it.

Again, I commend the gentleman from Texas for his leadership on this issue.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 15 seconds to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. STEARNS].

(Mr. STEARNS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. STEARNS. Mr. Speaker, I would just say to my colleagues, coming here the wrong way is not the American way. I support this bill. I compliment the gentleman from Texas [Mr. SMITH] for the work he has done.

As a Representative from a State heavily impacted by our Nation's immigration policies, I strongly urge all of my colleagues to support the immigration in the national interest conference report. The sweeping reforms in H.R. 2202 will stem illegal immigration, secure our borders, and encourage personal responsibility for legal immigrants.

While America is a nation of immigrants, its borders must be protected from illegal immigrants. According to INS there are 4.5 million illegal aliens in the United States. By doubling the number of border patrol agents, H.R. 2202 protects legal residents from the social and economic burdens of illegal immigrants.

H.R. 2202 improves legal immigration policies to ensure those who sponsor immigrants have the means to support them. If we don't require sponsors to fulfill their financial obligations, taxpayers will continue to pay $26 billion annually for legal immigration. Sponsors must honor their obligations so legal immigrants may become self-reliant, productive residents of the United States rather than dependents of the welfare state.

Again, I urge all of my colleagues to support H.R. 2202.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. RIGGS). The gentleman from Texas [Mr. BRYANT] is recognized for 15 seconds.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I simply want to say that Members should vote for the motion to recommit. All of the things that will strengthen this bill are in it, plus the things that have been talked about by the other side.

Second, I regret the gentleman from Texas [Mr. SMITH] and I we did not work together on this bill at the end. He is a good friend of mine. I appreciate so much the spirit in which we began. I look forward to working with him on something we agree on in the future. I thank the gentleman very much.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Texas [Mr. SMITH] is recognized for 1 minute and 30 seconds.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Texas for his generous comments. I feel the same.

Mr. Speaker, for the sake of American families, American workers, and American taxpayers, we have to pass immigration reform right now. To secure our borders is a worthy effort. If we secure our borders, we are going to reduce crime, we are going to reduce the number of illegal aliens coming into the country, we are going to protect jobs for American workers, and we are going to save taxpayers billions and billions of dollars.

In addition to that, we have to distinguish and say to legal immigrants, we want you if you are going to come to contribute and work and produce, but you cannot come to take advantage of the taxpayer. I urge my colleagues to vote for this conference report, and against the motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. All time has expired.

Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the conference report.

There was no objection.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is the gentleman opposed to the conference report?

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Yes, I am, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. BRYANT of Texas moves to recommit the conference report on the bill H.R. 2202 to the committee of conference with instructions to the managers on the part of the House to take all of the following actions:

(1) ENHANCING ENFORCEMENT OF PROTECTIONS FOR AMERICAN WORKERS.—

(A) Recede to (and include in the conference substitute recommended by the committee of conference, in this motion referred to as the ''conference substitute'') section 105 of the Senate Amendment (relating to increased personnel levels for the Labor Department).

(B) Recede to (and include in the conference substitute) section 120A of the Senate Amendment (relating to subpoena authority for cases of unlawful employment of aliens or document fraud).

(C) Recede to (and include in the conference substitute) section 119 of the Senate Amendment (relating to enhanced civil penalties if labor standards violations are present).

(2) PRESERVING SAFEGUARDS AGAINST DISCRIMINATION.—

(A) Disagree to (and delete) section 421 (relating to treatment of certain documentary practices as unfair immigration-related employment practices) in the conference substitute and insist, in its place, and include in the conference substitute, the provisions of section 407(b) (relating to treatment of certain documentary practice as employment practices) of H.R. 2202, as passed the House of Representatives.

(B) Disagree to (and delete) section 633 (relating to authority to determine visa processing procedures) in the conference substitute.

(C) Insist that the phrase ''(which may not include treatment for HIV infection or acquired immune deficiency syndrome)'' be deleted each place it appears in sections 501(b)(4) and 552(d)(2)(D) of the conference substitute and in the section 213A(c)(2)(C) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (as proposed to be inserted by section 551(a) of the conference substitute).

(3) PRESERVING ENVIRONMENTAL SAFEGUARDS.—Disagree to (and delete) subsection (c) of section 102 (relating to waivers of certain environmental laws) in the conference substitute.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas (during the reading). Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the motion to recommit be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to recommit.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to recommit.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

Pursuant to the provisions of clause 5 of rule XV, the Chair announces that he will reduce to a minimum of 5 minutes the period of time within which a vote by electronic device if ordered, will be taken on the question of agreeing to the conference report.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 179, nays 247, not voting 7, as follows:

Ms. KAPTUR changed her vote from ''aye'' to ''no.''

Messrs. KIM, BROWN of California, and HOSTETTLER changed their vote from ''no'' to ''aye.''

So the conference report was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, today I missed the vote on the rule covering debate on the Immigration Act conference agreement. At the time of the vote, I was presenting testimony before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission on a matter of utmost importance to the people of the State of North Dakota. Resolution of the matter currently before the Commission will likely determine the continued viability of the Great Plains Synfuels Plant in Beulah, ND, a unique facility which converts lignite coal to synthetic natural gas and which brings tremedous economic benefit to our State. It was critical that I be present before the Commission—along with North Dakota's two distinguished Senators—to advocate on behalf of this facility. Mr. Speaker, I regret having to miss any vote in this Chamber and I regret my unavoidable conflict today.

AUTHORIZING STATES TO DENY PUBLIC EDUCATION BENEFITS TO CERTAIN ALIENS NOT LAWFULLY PRESENT IN THE UNITED STATES

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 530 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 530

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider in the House the bill (H.R. 4134) to amend the Immigration and Nationality Act to authorize States to deny public education benefits to aliens not lawfully present in the United States who are not enrolled in public schools during the period beginning September 1, 1996, and ending July 1, 1997. The bill shall be debatable for one hour equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on the Judiciary or their designees. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CHAMBLISS). The gentleman from Colorado [Mr. MCINNIS] is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. FROST], pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 530 is a simple resolution. The proposed rule is a closed rule providing for 1 hour of general debate divided equally between the chairman and the ranking minority member of the Committee on the Judiciary or their designees. Finally, the rule provides for one motion to recommit.

House Resolution 530 was reported out of the Committee on Rules by a voice vote.

Mr. Speaker, we are all very familiar with the issue addressed in the underlying legislation. During consideration of the comprehensive immigration bill, the gentleman from California [Mr. GALLEGLY], offered an amendment which was adopted by a record vote of 257 to 163. The Gallegly amendment allowed States the option of providing free education benefits to illegal aliens. Because the President threatened to veto the immigration conference agreement if it contained the Gallegly amendment, even in a modified form, the modified form of the Gallegly amendment has been introduced as stand-alone legislation, H.R. 4134.

H.R. 4134, unlike the original Gallegly amendment, will ensure that it impacts only prospective illegal immigrant students. The grandfather provision provides that a State must provide free public education through grade 12 for illegal aliens enrolled in any public school at any time during the current school year.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this simple rule and the underlying legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the Republican majority seems to have no shame when it comes to playing political games. The fact that this House is being asked, at what seems to be the 11th hour of this Congress, to consider this very bad bill—and under a closed rule—that's right, a closed rule—ranks right up there with some of the worst legislative chicanery I have seen in the 18 years I have been privileged to serve in this body.

Mr. Speaker, it is no secret why this proposition is being brought before us today. It does not take a rocket scientist to figure out that this bill is under consideration in a futile attempt to save a faltering and failing Presidential campaign. Mr. Speaker, the Gallegly amendment threatened to bring down the whole immigration conference report and so it was excised and relegated to the trash heap. But now, like the phoenix, it rises from the ashes and this House is being asked to vote once again on a proposition that directly attacks some of the most vulnerable in our society.

Mr. Speaker, whether these children should or should not be in this country is really beside the point. The fact is that every child, no matter his or her race, creed, nationality, religion, or immigration status should have a desk in a school. Every child living in this Nation should be entitled to an education. Denying the children of illegal immigrants access to education will not solve the problem of illegal immigration and seal our borders.

What good does it do to punish children? Is that what this Republican-controlled, and family friendly Congress is to be remembered for? Mr. Speaker, I cannot be party to standing in the schoolhouse door as the Republican leadership seems so willing to do. I urge each and every one of the Members of this body to reject out of hand this closed rule and this very bad bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

□ 1530

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California [Mr. ROHRABACHER].

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the rule and strong support of the Gallegly amendment.

In California alone we spend $2 billion, that is $2 billion every year, educating illegal alien children. That is $2 billion that is equal to what we spend on the entire University of California system.

Is this right? No, it is absolutely wrong to spend $2 billion on the children of foreigners who have come here illegally. That $2 billion should be going to benefit the children of the people of the United States of America.

That is what this vote is all about, it is to determine what our priorities are. Our priorities should be what is in the interest of the people of the United States. We can care for the children of foreigners, we can care about their well-being, but we must first care about our own children, our own families.

It is very clear to me that the people on the other side of the aisle who are opposing this and have opposed us every step of the way, and in the Clinton administration, have their priorities all screwed up.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BRYANT].

(Mr. BRYANT of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, we began considering immigration legislation after the Jordan Commission gave us a report outlining the problems and proposing to us a set of bipartisan solutions. In no part of the Jordan Commission report, or in any other study, for that matter, that is credible, has anyone ever found that the fact that an illegal alien child might be able to get into school causes people to leave their homes, walk, ride, swim, if necessary, across very, very threatening territory to get into the United States.

No study has indicated those people come here because they think they might be able to get their kids into school. In fact, the police agencies, the educational agencies, every expert that has looked at this problem has said this is a mistake.

Do not be led by hot rhetoric on the part of those who see a political opportunity, in my view, to make people think that somehow this is a solution. Instead, be guided by common sense. There will be no impact on illegal immigration if this passes. There will be an impact on our communities because notwithstanding the attempts to water it down, the fact is the school districts would have to check the citizenship of every single child. They do not have the resources to do that. And if there is one child in a family that cannot come to school, none of them will come to school. We need every kid out there being in school.

The solution to stopping illegal immigration is to stop employers from hiring illegal immigrants and to stop illegal immigrants at the borders. Leave these kids alone.

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I think initially here it is clear that the discussion that is going to take place over the period of time that has been allotted to us to debate the rule is going to get into the substantive issues of the bill, so I think it is important that we address what the gentleman from Texas has just said.

First of all, remember that this bill allows every State to make their own decision. This is not a mandate upon the States, Mr. Speaker. In fact, this bill takes the mandate off the States that is not being paid for by the Federal Government.

What happens right now is Washington, DC, has gone to the States and said, we know what is best for you and we want you to pay for it. And Washington, DC, has said to States like Texas, or to States like Colorado, you pay 95 percent of the tab, we are going to force you to put these kids into your school.

All this bill simply does is to say to the State of Texas or says to the State of Colorado, you now have the option. If you want to undertake this Federal mandate and pay for 95 percent of the cost, then you may choose to do so.

This does not prevent the State of Texas from continuing to educate the children of illegal aliens, and I think it is clear that we justify that substance.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MCINNIS. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding. I would just pose this question. Does the gentleman think the States should be given the power to decide whether or not the schools should be integrated?

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I would respond to the gentleman's question by saying, does he think the States should pick up 95 percent of the cost?

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Answer my question first.

Mr. MCINNIS. I yield to the gentleman to respond to mine.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Well, I asked a question of the gentleman: Does he think the States should have the power to decide whether or not the schools are going to be integrated?

Mr. MCINNIS. Let me say I think every State has a right to determine whether or not the Federal Government can mandate upon them an expenditure of which they pay 95 percent, as the gentleman just heard from the gentleman from California. It is an extensive expense in the State of California.

So the answer is, yes, I do think that States should have the right to determine their own future, especially when it comes to an issue as important as education.

Now, would the gentleman respond to my question? Should the States respond to 95 percent of the tab or would the gentleman be willing to have the Federal Government pay for what it mandates?

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. In fact, the Federal Government ought to pay the full cost of it. The bill included that but the Republicans took that out of the bill. So, there.

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas [Ms. JACKSON-LEE].

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague, the gentleman from Texas, for yielding me this time and for his kindness.

I think it is quite misrepresenting to all of us to put this smoke-and-mirror legislation on the floor of the House. There is no one that does not agree that we want to be fair to all of America, and we certainly want to be fair to our children and fair to our communities and how they hold the responsibility of educating our children. But I take great issue with someone who comes on the floor of the House to say that we need to be taking care of our American children, we need to be taking care of the children of the United States.

I say to my colleagues that these are children of the United States. And I agree with the gentleman from Texas, we can help fund those States that have serious problems with overburdening of children in their school systems; but what about the child that comes over that is 9 months old? They are still in this community, this State, when they are 5 years old. Are we now going to deny them the right to a public education, an education that has been considered part of our basic human rights as signed by many countries around the world?

What about if there is a family that has a child that is a citizen and one that is not a citizen? How do we respond to educating one child and not the other?

And then my Republican friends talk about crime. They want to repeal the assault weapons ban, the Brady bill, and now they do not want children to be educated. They just want a bunch of people running around uneducated, without the opportunity to be able to access the virtues of this Nation.

And so this is a smoke-and-mirrors legislation. It is something to make someone else feel good. Well, we do not come to the Chambers of the U.S. Congress to make people feel good. We come here to pass good legislation. The legislation is to educate our children, to help the States who are heavily burdened by such educational needs, and to be fair to all American children, all children on this soil, and to recognize that this country was founded on the backs of immigrants.

I will not be like the Little Rock nine, standing in front of the schoolhouse, keeping children from going to school.

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I think that any argument using children as a pawn has no merit on this House floor. I think the issue that is important here, and I do not know how we got on to the assault weapons bill, the issue is very clear here. I do not think I could find a Congressman on the Democratic side or on the Republican side that does not believe in a good solid education for children. So I wish my Democratic colleagues would quit trying to claim the issue of the children as their issue.

Let us talk about who pays the bill. If we want to talk about smoke and mirrors, the smoke and mirrors in this situation is where Washington, DC, which by the way think they have a monopoly on common sense, reaches beyond the Washington, DC, city limits and says to the rest of the country, we mandate upon you that you will educate these people.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MCINNIS. No, I will not yield. The gentlewoman can request time, however, from the gentleman from Texas.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. I would like the gentleman to yield on the point——

Mr. MCINNIS. I am sure he would be happy to yield to the gentlewoman. But, in fairness, both of us have an equal amount of time, and she can do that.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. I thank the gentleman for his kindness.

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, my point here is very clear. If the Federal Government wants to put this burden, if Washington, DC, wants to force the States in this country to accept this demand, then the Federal Government ought to pay for it.

We know what happens. The Federal Government comes into Colorado, for example, mandates this program, demands that Colorado institute it, demands that Colorado pay 95 percent of it, and what does it do? It dilutes that money. It dilutes the money that needs to go to these children.

So, in summary, let me say I think that the gentlewoman's speech, while it was well spoken, certainly does not allow the gentlewoman to claim the guardianship of children in this country.

I think we have to address the real substance of this bill, and the real substance of this bill is to allow the States to make their own decisions.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. I thank the gentleman. I wanted to respond if he would have yielded.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. RIGGS). The gentlewoman from Texas is not recognized.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Texas [Ms. JACKSON-LEE].

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Texas for yielding me this time.

I appreciate my good friend from Colorado's response, and let me suggest to him that under the Constitution of the United States and the equal protection clause, there is a right to treat all individuals on our soil equally.

As I indicated, we would be more than happy to be a partnership with local government, both the local school districts and our States' governments, as my colleague from Texas, Mr. BRYANT, who was one of the leaders on this issue of immigration, by helping to fund and respond to those States who are heavily burdened by this issue. But we know the Republicans did not want to do that, for they wanted to have this kind of legislation to present and divide our country.

What I am suggesting is that I do not want to dominate our local school systems and I do not want to burden our States. I do not believe in unfunded mandates. I do believe in the right of children to be educated.

And where I got the assault weapons ban from is that all of what I hear our Republican friends doing, repealing the assault weapons ban, repealing the Brady bill, has a lot to do with promoting crime.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentlewoman from Texas has expired.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. When people are not educated, it has a lot to do with not allowing them the opportunity to pursue the American dream.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentlewoman's time has expired.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. This is a foolish piece of legislation that should not prevail before the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentlewoman will proceed in order by desisting.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. I yield back and I thank the gentleman for the time.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair would advise the gentlewoman from Texas she will proceed in order and abide by the rules of the House when her time for recognition has expired.

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. BILBRAY].

Mr. BILBRAY. Mr. Speaker, again, as someone who has lived on the frontier and close to this issue all my life, I need to ask of our colleagues to do a reality check here.

The fact is that the existing system is wrong, and I would ask my colleagues to recognize that in my community, where I went to school, in my schools, in my high school, there were legal and illegal immigrants going to school there. But under the existing law that this body talks about, and we talk among ourselves, and this is not where the message is we need to send, we need to send it out there, it is illegal to enter the country illegally and go to school for free in San Francisco. But if someone crosses the border illegally, then they have the guaranteed right from the government for a free education.

And for those individuals who say this has nothing to with people coming here illegally, we have documents showing, in fact testimony that showed up in the paper where an illegal woman was caught at the border with three letters form a school district that said your children will get a free education even if you are here illegally.

Now, Mr. Speaker, in the words of this lady, she said, you want us here. You want us to come here illegally. You would not reward us and give us free education.

Mr. Speaker, the message that needs to be sent not here in these Chambers but to the rest of the world and America, is that, no, the days of encouraging illegal immigration is over. We are not going to reward people for breaking the law. We are not going to punish those who play by the rules and reward those who break the rules.

I would ask every Member to consider the fact that 4062 says let us reimburse for the cost if we do not want to drop the mandate.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from North Dakota [Mr. POMEROY].

□ 1545

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I voted for the preceding legislation to come to this floor because I believe it is appropriate to toughen the Nation's response to illegal immigration. But as to the matter that this rule would present before the House, I take a very serious exception. I think it is time that we just step back a minute, take a deep breath and think about what we are doing here.

Do any of us possibly think that the illegal activity of a parent ought to be taken out on the kid? I think if any of us were asked that question, we would say, of course not. You cannot hold the kid, the little kid responsible for the illegal acts of the parent.

That is precisely, however, what the bill this rule would bring to the floor would allow. In fact, the scenes that I would create are horrible to contemplate. I envision education officials, maybe even INS officials, going down the rows of first grade classes trying to single out whether Johnny stays, this one leaves and I just think it is, it would be awful. Imagine the scene, imagine those of us who have children in grade school, what they would think of a little boy or a little girl pulled out of their chair, hauled out of class crying because they are being sent out of school. That is not something that ought to occur in any classroom in any public school in the United States of America.

We think about the family friendly Congress. What kind of family friendly Congress would send a 6-year-old home to a house that maybe there is no one there because both parents are working, but there is nowhere for that 6-year-old to go because they are holding that 6-year-old responsible for the illegal acts of its parents.

We worry about gangs and juvenile crime, yet this would take those young people that want to learn and put a bar in front of the schoolroom door, leaving nothing but gangs and street corners and idle time that would in all likelihood be the result of barring these people from the opportunity to pursue an education.

Then finally I worry about the implementation of this strategy because how in the world are you going to sort out legals from the illegals when you are looking at first graders.

The thing that comes to my mind is those that look a little different. I am the adoptive parents of two children of different races, a different race from me. I love these children as much as I love anything, as much as any father could love his kids. The fear that my children might be pulled out of a classroom because of an inane act of Congress that this rule would bring before the House, allowing school officials to toss little kids out into the street rather than educate them in their schools, is too horrible to contemplate.

I do not love my kids any more than any other parents love their kids. The fear of parents across this country that putting their children, any children that do not look, that might look like they are somehow at risk of being illegal in the face of being interrogated and research as to their background, this is just a bad, bad idea and we ought to reject it. We should reject the rule and not even bring it to the floor.

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I know the gentleman very well from the Dakotas. I have a great deal of respect for the gentleman. I know that he is compassionate and cares about his children and the other children that he represents. But so does everybody on this House floor, whether you are Democrat or Republican.

I think it is a diversion for someone to stand up here and say that this bill somehow throws young kids out onto the street, that it denies them school. What I would do is refer any of my colleagues that somehow have been convinced by this argument, I would refer them to something very simple, read the bill. Look on page 5. It is very simple. No State shall be required by this section, no State shall be required by this section to deny public education benefits to any alien not lawfully present in the United States. It is very simple.

What we are doing with this bill is saying that the Federal Government ought to pay for what it is demanding the States do. That is all. Why should the States have the option if the Federal Government is not going to pay for it. If the gentleman from the Dakotas is that concerned, he has an opportunity under this rule to offer a motion to recommit to do exactly what he is concerned about. But do not be taken or diverted aside by these excited statements that say we are going to throw kids out of school. That is purely, simply a diversion. It is away from the substance of this bill, and it is away from the rule on the bill.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4½ minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. GALLEGLY].

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, the bill H.R. 4134 is a modified version of the Gallegly amendment which passed by a margin of almost 100 votes on this House floor during a debate on immigration reform just last March. Like the Gallegly amendment which was passed overwhelmingly by a bipartisan majority, H.R. 4134 does nothing more than remove the Federal Government's ability to force States to provide a free public education to persons who are not legally in this country. This legislation would allow all States full discretion in the way they want to handle the public education of illegal immigrants.

However, unlike the original Gallegly amendment, this bill has been modified to ensure that it impacts only prospectively illegal immigrant students. This grandfathered provision provides that all illegal aliens currently enrolled in any public school at any time during the current year up to July 1, 1997, a State could not deny a free public education through grade 12. It only ends the current policy by which the Federal Government guarantees all future illegal immigrants in every State a free public education at the expense of the taxpayers in perpetuity.

In other words, even if a State determined that they would like to deny free public education to illegals, they would only be permitted to deny future entrants or future illegal entries to be enrolled. Those currently enrolled would be exempt.

Let me make one other important point. For instance, if my friends from the State of Texas, Oregon or New Jersey decide they want to provide a free public education to all illegal immigrants, even those that arrive here illegally in the future, they would be still perfectly entitled to do so under this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is good for California and it is good for the Nation. We must end a policy that encourages future illegal immigration which further depletes our funds for public education and results in overcrowded classrooms. There has been a lot of debate about the children. But we have forgotten about the children that have a legal right in this country, whether they are legal residents or citizens.

In California our State continues to spend millions and millions of dollars every year, more than the previous year, and we have gone from number 4 or 5 in the Nation based on scholastic scores and the quality of education to number 43 in the Nation.

Let me remind my fellow colleagues, we cannot forget these children either. This Congress must continue to dismantle the system of public benefits that convinces people to come here illegally. It must continue to decentralize the Federal Government and shift the power to States.

This revised version of my amendment accomplishes both of these critical objectives. The only thing that this amendment does not do is provide an entitlement in perpetuity that guarantees that anyone that might come here illegally in the future, the Federal Government would force the States to provide them with a free public education. It eliminates that guarantee after July 1997.

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GALLEGLY. I yield to the gentleman from Colorado.

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would just like to ask the gentleman, it takes away that entitlement, but it allows every State to have what options?

Mr. GALLEGLY. It allows the States to continue to educate anyone they want, legal or other wise. The only thing that it does do is after 1997, it puts those illegally entering this country or considering illegally entering this country on notice that they may not be provided a guarantee to a free public education in the State of their choice.

Mr. MCINNIS. Which is exactly what we are saying here; that is, the States now will have this option, where before they had to pay the bill and had no option even to debate this within the boundaries of their own State.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Absolutely. One point I think is very important to further note. This does not turn any school teacher into a border patrol agent or a law enforcement person. All it does is provide the person that enrolls students at the beginning of the year the same right of asking to verify what their status is in this country as they verify immunization records, as they verify residency, and so on, to determine whether they live on the right side of the street as to whether they go to this school or that school. This does not turn anybody into removing anybody from school now or in the future.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. BECERRA].

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Speaker, first let me respond to the issue of no costs would be involved if this legislation were passed. Let us just debunk it right now because if there were no costs involved, then you would not have organizations like the California School Board Association that represents every single school board in California opposed to this legislation. You would not have most of the law enforcement agencies in this Nation opposing this particular legislation. You do because they know the costs would be tremendous, tremendous to the schools because someone would have to administer it, tremendous for law enforcement because someone would have to watch these kids that would not be in school but on the street. These organizations know what happens in real life practical terms and they are opposed to it.

We can say all we want, but until you are going to put some money where your month is, it is going to cost and someone will pay and the locals will have to pay the price.

Let me read from a few of the letters, just a few of the many that have come in. The International Union of Police Associations:

> Make no mistake, our position is not based on partisan election year politics.

They are opposed:

> It is not based on broad social theory. But we do clearly object to denying any child access to schools and education within our borders regardless of origin. We base our position on immediate pragmatic concerns that can only come from collective years on the streets of America. How can anyone advocate throwing thousands of children onto the street without supervision where they will become both victims and criminals? Local law enforcement officers, our members will be overwhelmed at a time when we can ill afford the extra pressure.

That is, as I said, the International Union of Police Associations.

CLEAT, the Combined Law Enforcement Association of Texas, says:

> Numerous officials and organizations within the law enforcement community have contacted you and other congressional conferees in a unified position of opposing the Gallegly bill. This issue as we see it is very simple. We must do all we can to support every child's right to receive an education. Legislation that promotes the notion of keeping children out of school is only going to act as another avenue of increasing the already unacceptable practice of placing more children on the streets.

I could go on and on. The city of Elmhurst in Illinois, the National Association of Police Organizations, which represents over 185,000 law enforcement officers and 3,500 police associations, opposed to this bill. The Sioux City, ID, police chief, the city of Chicago's police chief, the city of San Jose's police chief. The 47 Senators, Democrat and Republican, who signed a letter asking that the Gallegly bill be defeated. It goes on and on and on.

Let us be real. We can set policy in this Chamber, but we can talk politics. This was a measure, an amendment that was included in the immigration bill that we just voted on that passed by a pretty wide margin. It was pulled by the Republicans yesterday. Why? Because they were afraid it would jeopardize the entire immigration bill. Now we have it. Miraculously, in less than a day we have a bill go from inception to the floor.

Folks, understand this, whether you are on this floor getting ready to vote or watching on television, this is a bill that is on the floor being debated today when we have hundreds of other bills that will never be heard because we are about to end the session that went from nothing, because it was not a bill we were considering, to all of a sudden being debated on the floor of the House. It did not go through the committee. It never was heard in the committee on jurisdiction. But here it is being debated on the House floor. We could have debated it in the immigration bill that we just passed, but it was pulled because there were some discussions that had been taking place over the last several months.

A lot of them were with Bob Dole in his campaign about how to do best to politically structure this debate, and what do we have? It is this debate on the floor. We know the President is going to veto this bill, so what are we doing? Why are we wasting this time when we are really at the end of this session and we have other things that are more important to deal with?

Well, there is a point to be made here, there are some political points to be made here, and unfortunately what we are going to run into is a situation where, damn the cops, damn the school administrators, damn the teachers, damn, the least important of which, I guess, in many people's eyes, the children; let us do this because there are points to be had. It is fortunate that practical people are against this bill. We should be against it, too.

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I think there is an obligation for accuracy for statements made on this floor, and let me tell the gentleman, the preceding speaker, that there certainly was a meeting last night in the Committee on Rules. No, the gentleman did not find time to be there, the gentleman was not there. But for a statement to be made that this was not discussed thoroughly in a committee meeting is not accurate.

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MCINNIS. No. I will not.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from California [Mr. GALLEGLY].

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Colorado for yielding——

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Speaker, point of personal privilege. I believe the gentleman said——

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman may not raise a point of personal privilege.

Mr. BECERRA. Parliamentary inquiry then? When would a point of personal privilege be——

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. MCINNIS] yield for a parliamentary inquiry?

Mr. MCINNIS. I do not. In fact, Mr. Speaker, I think the floor belongs to the gentleman from California [Mr. GALLEGLY] to whom I yielded 30 seconds.

Mr. BECERRA. I would ask the gentleman from California [Mr. GALLEGLY] then to yield for 10 seconds.

Mr. GALLEGLY. To yield for a parliamentary inquiry?

Mr. BECERRA. Parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from California.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California for yielding for a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman may state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. BECERRA. My parliamentary inquiry would be, at what point would it be appropriate to raise a point of personal privilege when the gentleman from Colorado indicated that I inaccurately stated some facts, when I think I stated them correctly when I said the committee of jurisdiction never heard this bill? I never spoke of the Committee on Rules.

So I am asking, when would a point of personal privilege be appropriate?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The remedy of a Member is to engage in debate as it is not appropriate to raise a point of personal privilege at this point.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield, it is my intention, when they are through, to yield some additional time to the gentleman in the well.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from California [Mr. GALLEGLY] has expired.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California [Mr. BECERRA].

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding the additional time, and I will not take much time, I will not consume it other than to say that I appreciate what the gentleman from Colorado is attempting to say, but I do not believe I misstated any fact, because when I said that this bill has not gone through committee, I said the committee of jurisdiction, which is the Committee on the Judiciary, upon which I sit. It may have gone through the Committee on Rules at about 8 o'clock at night on, perhaps, 3 hours' notice, that is true, when a number of us had many things pending throughout that night of work.

I will say this though. In all the months, and we have been debating the immigration bill since last year, and my friend from California knows this, the originator of the amendment knows this because he is on the committee with me in Judiciary: Not once did we debate the substance of his amendment in the Committee on the Judiciary when we had a chance to do so.

But my point here is, we have a bill that has gone through the process in less than 12 hours, or 24 hours, when we have a lot of substantive legislation that affects the lives of Americans in this country that will never see the light of day because we are going to run out of time.

Let me yield back my time, and, as the gentleman from Colorado said, we each have time to yield.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield? I just want to respond to one comment.

Mr. BECERRA. I yield to the gentleman from California if it is a brief comment.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, when the gentleman said we have not had an opportunity to debate this, I would remind the gentleman that we debated this for 2 hours on the floor of this House, which is a bigger committee and a broader committee than any individual committee. It was debated; it was included in the bill; it passed by a 100-vote margin on a bipartisan level; it was taken out at the conference committee level.

So with all due respect to my good friend from California, this bill has had the attention, and for the sake of expediting the overall bill, I suggested that we have it as a stand alone. That is the reason it came. This is where it should be.

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the comments of the gentleman from California. He is correct that it was debated on the floor, never having gone through committee, but it did get debated on the floor.

I will say this. While it got debated on the floor, at least it came up through the process of the immigration debate. This came up as a result of having been extracted from an immigration bill. We could have debated it in the bill that just took place, because it was there, Mr. GALLEGLY. The gentleman and I know it. It was taken out, for whatever reason.

Mr. GALLEGLY. If the gentleman would yield, we did not want to give our President an excuse to kill a very important bill.

Mr. BECERRA. He is still going to, I hope, veto this. But the point remains that back when we debated it earlier and today, law enforcement organizations, the school board associations, a lot of folks are saying this is not a practical bill, this is not a way to go, it is not only going to deny kids an education, but it is going to put kids on the street to either be victims of crime and perhaps even be criminals themselves, and for that reason my colleagues continue to see objections from the folks who will have to administer this.

It is not a good piece of legislation, and it should be defeated for those reasons, least of which are the procedural matters, which I believe violate the spirit of democracy.

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from California [Mr. GALLEGLY].

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Colorado for yielding this time to me.

I would just like to respond to my good friend's, the gentleman from California [Mr. BECERRA], comments, and he is a good friend. We agree to disagree on many things, and this happens to be one of them.

He mentioned the list of people that were opposing this provision. Let me give my colleagues a list of some of those, a partial list, that are supporting it: Fraternal Law Enforcement, California, Arizona chapters; Law Enforcement Alliance of America, the largest law enforcement organization in the Nation; Hispanic Business Round Table; Republican Governors Association; National Taxpayers Union; Americans for Tax Reform; Traditional Values Coalition; Eagle Forum; the Congressional Task Force on California; and on and on and on.

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, we are prepared to yield back the balance of our time if the gentleman from Texas would like to do so.

Mr. FROST. The gentleman has no more speakers?

Mr. MCINNIS. We are prepared to yield back at this time.

Mr. FROST. At this point then, Mr. Speaker, we yield back the balance of our time and ask for a no vote on the rule.

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of time, urge a yes vote, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid upon the table.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 530, I call the bill (H.R. 4134), to amend the Immigration and Nationality Act to authorize States to deny public education benefits to aliens not lawfully present in the United States who are not enrolled in public schools during the period beginning September 1, 1996, and ending July 1, 1997, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The text of H.R. 4134 is as follows:

H.R. 4134

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. AUTHORIZING STATES TO DENY PUBLIC EDUCATION BENEFITS TO CERTAIN ALIENS NOT LAWFULLY PRESENT IN THE UNITED STATES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Immigration and Nationality Act is amended by adding after title V the following new title:

''TITLE VI—AUTHORIZING STATES TO DISQUALIFY CERTAIN ALIENS NOT LAWFULLY PRESENT IN THE UNITED STATES FROM PUBLIC EDUCATION BENEFITS

''CONGRESSIONAL POLICY REGARDING INELIGIBILITY OF ALIENS NOT LAWFULLY PRESENT IN THE UNITED STATES FOR PUBLIC EDUCATION BENEFITS

''SEC. 601. (a) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—Because Congress views that the right to a free public education for aliens who are not lawfully present in the United States promotes violations of the immigration laws and because such a free public education for such aliens creates a significant burden on States' economies and depletes States' limited educational resources, Congress declares it to be the policy of the United States that—

''(1) aliens who are not lawfully present in the United States are not entitled to public education benefits in the same manner as United States citizens, nationals, and lawful resident aliens; and

''(2) States should not be obligated to provide public education benefits to aliens who are not lawfully present in the United States.

''(b) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section shall be construed as expressing any statement of Federal policy with regard to—

''(1) aliens who are lawfully present in the United States,

''(2) benefits other than public education benefits provided under State law, or

''(3) preventing the exclusion or deportation of aliens unlawfully present in the United States.

''AUTHORITY OF STATES

''SEC. 602 (a) IN GENERAL.—In order to carry out the policies described in section 601, each State may provide, subject to subsection (f), with respect to an alien who is not lawfully present in the United States that—

''(1) the alien is not eligible for public education benefits under State law; or

''(2) the alien is required, as a condition of obtaining such benefits, to pay a fee in an amount consistent with the following:

''(A) In the case of a State that requires payment of a fee of nonresidents as a condition of obtaining such benefits, the amount of such nonresident fee.

''(B) In the case of any other State, an amount specified by the State, not to exceed the average per pupil expenditures for such benefits (as determined by the State and selected by the State either for the State or for the local educational agency involved).

''(b) INDIVIDUALS NOT LAWFULLY PRESENT IN THE UNITED STATES.—For purposes of subsection (a), an individual shall be considered to be not lawfully present in the United States unless the individual (or, in the case of an individual who is a child, another on the child's behalf)—

''(1) declares in writing under penalty of perjury that the individual (or child) is a citizen or national of the United States and (if required by a State) presents evidence of United States citizenship or nationality; or

''(2)(A) declares in writing under penalty of perjury that the individual (or child) is not a citizen or national of the United States but is an alien lawfully present in the United States, and

''(B) presents either—

''(i) documentation described in section 1137(d)(2) of the Social Security Act, or

''(ii) such other documents as the State determines constitutes reasonable evidence indicating that the individual (or child) is an alien lawfully present in the United States.

''(c) PROCEDURES FOR SCREENING.—If a State provides for immigration eligibility screening pursuant to this section for individuals who are seeking public education benefits, the State shall provide for such screening for all individuals seeking such benefits.

''(2) A State may (at its option) verify with the Service the alien's immigration status through a system for alien verification of eligibility (SAVE) described in section 1137(d)(3) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1320b–7(d)(3)).

''(d) OPPORTUNITY FOR FAIR HEARING.—If a State denies public education benefits under this section with respect to an alien, the State shall provide the alien with an opportunity for a fair hearing to establish that the alien has been determined by the Service to be lawfully present in the United States, consistent with subsection (b) and Federal immigration law.

''(e) NO REQUIREMENT TO DENY FREE PUBLIC EDUCATION.—No State shall be required by this section to deny public education benefits to any alien not lawfully present in the United States.

''(f) NO AUTHORITY TO DENY FREE PUBLIC EDUCATION TO STUDENTS ENROLLED AT ANY TIME DURING THE PERIOD BEGINNING SEPTEMBER 1, 1996, AND ENDING JULY 1, 1997.—(1) A State may not deny, and may not require payment of a fee as a condition for the receipt of, public education benefits under this section with respect to a protected alien.

''(2) For purposes of this subsection, the term 'protected alien' means an alien who is not lawfully present in the United States and is enrolled as a student in a public elementary or secondary school in the United States at any time during the period beginning September 1, 1996, and ending July 1, 1997.

''(g) NO IMPACT ON IMMIGRATION STATUS.—Nothing in this section or section 601 shall be construed as affecting the immigration status of any alien, including the conferring of any immigration benefit or change in any proceedings under this Act with respect to the alien.''.

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of contents is amended by adding at the end the following new items:

''TITLE VI—AUTHORIZING STATES TO DISQUALIFY CERTAIN ALIENS NOT LAWFULLY PRESENT IN THE UNITED STATES FROM PUBLIC EDUCATION BENEFITS

''Sec. 601. Congressional policy regarding ineligibility of aliens not lawfully present in the United States for public education benefits.

''Sec. 602. Authority of States.''.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 530, the gentleman from California [Mr. GALLEGLY] and the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BRYANT] each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California [Mr. GALLEGLY].

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4134.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself whatever amount of time I shall consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 4134. This is a modified version of the original Gallegly amendment which passed this House by a vote of 257 to 163 during the debate of the immigration reform bill just this past March.

I might remind my colleagues that the entire immigration bill, which at the time contained the original Gallegly amendment, passed this body by a strong bipartisan vote of 333 to 87. Like the original amendment, today's bill does nothing more than ensure that the Federal Government will no longer be able to force the States to educate those who are in this country illegally.

This legislation will allow all States full discretion in the way they want to handle public education and illegal immigration. However, unlike the original Gallegly amendment, this bill has been modified to ensure that it impacts only prospective illegal immigrants. In other words, all we are trying to do through this legislation is stop an entitlement that would otherwise exist in perpetuity.

This modified version of my amendment does not kick one child out of school, but it does serve notice to those who have not yet come to this country illegally, using education as a magnet, that public school may not be available. It does not offer the States the option of closing the school door to those who have arrived there currently.

Today this education represents an enormous unfunded mandate the Federal Government imposes on the States. California alone spends an estimated $2 billion annually providing education to illegal immigrants. That is enough to hire 51,000 new teachers or put 1 million new computers in every classroom. If we fail to act, States will be forced to provide a free public education to illegal immigrants until the end of time, and that is not right.

As the primary funders of public education, State lawmakers and the State taxpayers they represent should have the ability to decide whether illegal immigrants should continue to receive a free public education.

This Congress must continue to dismantle the system of public benefits that convinces those in foreign lands to come here illegally. It must also continue to decentralize the Federal Government and shift the power to the States. The revised version of the Gallegly amendment accomplishes both of these critical objectives, and I urge passage of H.R. 4134.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. BRYANT of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I think it would have been best, frankly, had my good friend, the gentleman from California [Mr. GALLEGLY], who I believe to be quite sincere about this, had simply brought to the floor the original amendment which says flatly that we are going to prohibit the children of illegal aliens, illegal immigrants, from going to school. This is a repackaged version which attempts to make it seem like it is a little more palatable, but it has really the same effect. I know that my friend from California would argue that point. But it has the same lack of effect as well.

Illegal immigrants do not come to the United States so they can get their kids in school. It really is, if my colleagues think about it, ridiculous to allege that they do. They come here to get jobs. The fact that we have illegal immigrants in the schools is the fault of our Federal policy which has, particularly in Mr. GALLEGLY's State and mine of Texas, border States and big border States, resulted in an awful lot of kids being in the school system; there is no question about it. It is aggravating, and it is expensive.

We put in the immigration bill a provision to require the Federal Government, who is to blame for the situation, to require them to pay the cost. It is not fair to make the schools of Texas, the school districts in Texas or California or anywhere else, pay this cost. Well that disappeared somewhere along the line in a House in which the Republicans are the majority. That is gone. The blame for that must be laid on the Republican side of the aisle.

The fact of the matter is, this is not a solution to illegal immigration. None of the studies have said that it is. A Jordan Commission report, which began this whole effort to change the immigration laws, did not ask for this kind of a measure, and that is because, as I said a moment ago, illegal immigrants do not come here to get their kids in school; they come here to get a job.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, if they are coming to get a job and they have kids, the kids are coming. Do we want, as a matter of national policy, to have these kids wandering the streets?

We might hear it said in a moment, well, the new version of this does not require that, it simply says the States can keep them out of school or can charge them tuition prospectively, beginning, I believe, with the class of next year. It does not make any difference. How many of these kids can pay tuition? Zero. They cannot pay tuition.

Second, if there is any possibility that their being in school is going to result in any type of notice being taken of them or their parents by the Immigration Service, they are not going to bring the kids to school. Some of my colleagues might say that is great, that is exactly what we want. I ask them to think again. That is not what we want. That is not what the police departments want, that is not what the school districts want. Nobody gives this a second thought.

We cannot afford to have a huge population of kids, no matter who their parents are, on the streets. Ultimately, that is exactly where this is going to lead. That is why every responsible institution in this country has said, do not pass this amendment; it sounds good, but it will cause an enormous amount of trouble. I urge Members to look twice at this.

I also urge them to take a look at how the public views this matter. I think originally everyone was quite afraid of the issue, afraid to vote against it and so forth, because they thought at election time it might come back to haunt them.

I have noticed even some Republicans are beginning to speak up and say they are against it, including, in my State, my two Senators and my Governor. All three Republicans have come out against this approach, at least the original Gallegly approach. I would have to let the gentleman speak with regard to the modified version, but certainly with regard to the original one, they were against it.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman yielding. It is my understanding that the Governor of the State, George Bush, supported the Gallegly amendment in its original form. However, he did support his right to continue to provide a free public education and said he would probably continue that policy, but he did like the idea of having the option, which is all this amendment is about.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I would simply observe that of the two of us, I am the one that reads the daily newspapers of Texas, and I believe I can produce the reports that would say differently than that.

Mr. Speaker, the fact of the matter is that the impractical result of this alluring proposal is obvious to those who study it carefully. I urge Members to do what is right for our kids, do what is right for our neighborhoods, do what is right for our police departments. Do not put another burden on the school districts, and vote against this bill.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. DEAL].

Mr. DEAL of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I think it should be abundantly clear as a result of the debate on the previous bill and on this bill here that the enforcement of our immigration laws has a very low priority in the minds of some, and perhaps not the same degree of urgency that it has in the minds of others who have appeared before this body today to speak.

I would simply say that we are dealing with two very separate and different issues here. One is truly the issue of unfunded mandates. By definition, we have traditionally thought of that as this body passing laws that have costs that are associated with other levels of government paying for them; namely, States and local communities.

Here we are not talking about passing laws, we are talking about the failure of the Federal Government to enforce its existing laws, that is, namely, our immigration laws; and by failing to do so passing on, by virtue of court decisions, the costs to States and to local communities in the cost of education.

If we are not serious about doing anything about unfunded mandates, then simply let us defeat this proposal. But if we are serious about it, then we should restore to the level of government that is having to pay for these decisions the power to make the decisions: namely, States and local communities.

My State, like most States, I am sure, divides that cost up, the cost of education. In our State of Georgia roughly half of the cost is paid by the State, the other half being paid by local property taxpayers. We have heard a lot of talk about compassion here, compassion for children. I would submit to the Members, there is another element of compassion, the senior citizen, the widow who is fighting to hold onto her home, and every year sees her ad valorem taxes go up, and part of that reason, a significant part, being the cost of education.

I would say that this is a matter of compassion, to restore to those who are paying the cost for our failure to enforce our immigration laws the ability to make a decision: Should they or should they not allow those who are illegally in our country to participate in the education system? That is a decision that they are paying for. They should have the right to make that choice. I say that is compassion. That is putting meaning into doing away with unfunded mandates.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 45 seconds.

Mr. Speaker, I would observe that the same taxpayers that the gentleman from Georgia, Mr. DEAL, was speaking of would have to pay the cost of the law enforcement which would result from having all these kids on the street, the cost of the schools checking the citizenship of every kid in the school in an effort to find a handful who might not be here legally, and all the other attendant costs. That is why these institutions all oppose this approach.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, one of the reasons the Sheriffs Association of the State of California, the largest sheriffs association in the Nation, supports this legislation is the cost of education far exceeds the cost of enforcing the law.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I would just observe that the Association of Elected Sheriffs, who are politicians like us, may have come out with a resolution like that, but the professional police departments and the school districts and those that have to deal with this really on the ground do not agree.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. RIGGS].

(Mr. RIGGS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me, and for the hard work and tremendous leadership and expertise of the gentleman from California [Mr. GALLEGLY], on this particular issue, which is of tremendous concern and importance to California citizens.

Mr. Speaker, obviously there are many things that we can do to at least reduce the tide, the flow of illegal immigration into California and our other border States, but the best way to control our border is by demagnetizing it. That was clearly pointed out in the Jordan Commission, the commission headed up by the late Congresswoman of Texas, who said we had to reduce and ultimately eliminate social welfare benefits, including a free public education, for illegal aliens, if in fact again we were going to do a good job of controlling our borders.

This is just so important in California, and it is pretty clear the direction that this Congress should take. We have to have a national policy which specifies that the Federal Government no longer can impose mandates on State and local governments by forcing them, which is what current law does, by forcing them to provide taxpayer-financed benefits to illegal immigrants. The decision should rest solely in the hands of State and local authorities to decide where their resources go. That certainly applies in the area of education.

One of the more compelling of the border magnets is the free public education California and the other border States are mandated to provide the children of illegal immigrants, who are themselves illegal immigrants. This year their education will cost California taxpayers over $1.8 billion. That is an increase of 144 percent over just 8 years. So make no mistake about it, the availability of free public education is attractive.

In the fiscal years 1988 to 1989 there were 187,000 illegal immigrant children in California. Today, there are almost 380,000. That is a doubling in just 7 years. That number continues to grow every year. That is why California voters spoke very loudly, very clearly, in 1994 when they approved the California statewide ballot initiative, Proposition 187, by nearly a 60 to 40 margin.

Let me just put this in a little different perspective, though. If not compelled by Federal mandate to spend $2 billion annually to educate illegal immigrants, California could instead hire more than 58,000 new teachers, install at least 1 million computers in classrooms. Are they listening, our Democratic colleagues in the Clinton administration? Because, of course, we have heard the President talking about linking every single classroom in the country to the Internet, making sure that everybody is on line. And with that funding we could construct 23,400 new classrooms to ease overcrowding in California public schools. That is clearly the direction that the California State Legislature and the Governor want to go, on a bipartisan basis.

One other bit of perspective on this. The $2 billion we are spending annually to educate illegal immigrants is equal to the total amount the State spends to run all nine campuses of the University of California. So the Gallegly provision is very necessary to allow California taxpayers to protect themselves from these exploding costs.

We are hearing objections from congressional Democrats and from the Clinton administration, saying California taxpayers must educate any illegal immigrant, even those who have yet to enter the country. That clearly is not what California voters want. I think those of us who are elected to this House have a first and foremost responsibility, obviously, to represent the constituents of our districts and our home States.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RIGGS. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I would just like to ask the gentleman how he distinguishes here between this and other questions.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CHAMBLISS). The time of the gentleman from California [Mr. RIGGS] has expired.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 minute.

Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman if he would respond to my question. The gentleman says that the school systems ought to decide whether or not, the States should decide whether or not this Federal issue should be dealt with locally or not. Does the gentleman think that the States should be deciding whether or not we require them to integrate the schools, or should the Federal Government require them to integrate the schools?

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Speaker, did the gentleman say integrate or immigrate?

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Integrate. The Federal Government now requires the school systems to be integrated, to permit all students to come to schools. Do you think that we should continue that policy?

Mr. RIGGS. That has been a matter of Federal policy for years, of course.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. How does the gentleman distinguish, now? We are talking about a Federal issue here. Ought it not be the same in all States also, that we require they be in school?

Mr. RIGGS. If the gentleman will continue to yield, let me put it in the words of Gov. Pete Wilson: Should a State want to commit its educational resources in this area, and I think the gentleman is correct, that is the course his home State of Texas would like to take, it would be free to do so under the Gallegly amendment, because the decision under the Gallegly amendment is left to the States.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. DOGGETT].

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Certainly it is no wonder the Speaker GINGRICH chose to elevate another anti-education proposal in these waning hours, precious hours, and to say he will place this above all the other issues that face the American working families today. For, indeed, this has been the most consistently anti-education House in memory.

We have replaced decades, if not centuries, of a bipartisan commitment to Federal aid to education with extremism, with a hatchet that goes after one program after another. This is the same crowd that in the last 2 years has attempted to cut almost $20 million from Federal student loans. It is the same crowd, this Gingrich Congress, that tried to raise the cost of going to college by $5,000. It is the same crowd that said to thousands of American citizens that we will give their children a wrong start, not a Head Start. And whether it was Head Start or college or anything in between, they went after every title in the education code, whether it was safe-and-drug-free schools bilingual education or any other provision.

So when we have a Congress that is that extreme and that anti-education, how can it be a wonder to anyone that they would want to cut off educational opportunities to the newest arrivals, because they have had little use for education for Americans who have been here for generations.

Basically, this new crowd, this Gingrich Congress, its position is that we should terminate the entire Federal commitment to education. They just plan to do it one program at a time. This is just part of the overall scheme.

As for the specific children that the Speaker wants to deny education to today, the plan is simple enough. When the kids get old enough and they have gotten above the pre-Head Start level and the Head Start level, when they get old enough to join a gang, the program being advanced here today is to give them an education, all right, give them a education in the street, education of the gang, of drugs and of crime. That is why, instead of learning their ABCs, they will learn how to break into your house or car. That is why every major law enforcement organization nationwide, almost, has come out against this provision.

Of course this nonsensical approach is antieducation, and it is not going to work in the interest of our law enforcement officers.

The supporters of this measure continue to insist that ignorance is cheaper than education. When we look back over this Congress, we look at the $1.5 billion wasted on costly government shutdowns. The legacy of destruction and ignorance in this Congress is great indeed when we look back over the costly government shutdowns. When we look at all the education programs this Congress has tried to wreck under the leadership of Speaker GINGRICH, I think we can certainly say that the cost to the American people of ignorance has been dear indeed.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 15 seconds to respond to the gentleman from Texas.

First of all, this is not antieducation, it is proeducation. It is proeducation for the students that have a legal right to be in this country, that are either legal residents or citizens. This is the most proeducation bill we have had in a long time.

And on the issue of law enforcement, as the gentleman from Texas knows, it is broadly supported by more law enforcement people across this country than it is opposed.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3½ minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. ROHRABACHER].

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, I congratulate my fellow Californian, Congressman ELTON GALLEGLY. He has fought a long and hard battle to get this issue to the floor and to have our Government come to grips with a major threat to the well-being of the people of the United States of America.

This Congressman, when I first came here in 1989, took me aside and we spoke about the illegal immigration problem, and that was back in 1989. We have worked together diligently ever since, and he has provided enormous leadership on this issue. We were never able to get this to the floor for a vote. Why is that? Because when the liberal Democrats controlled the House of Representatives and the U.S. Senate, they were not about to let any honest debate on this issue take place. Perhaps it is because there is an alliance, a political alliance somewhere that someone wants to maintain that is costing the American people the right to run their own country and the right to educate their children and the right to actually control our own borders.

The fact is that, until the Republicans took control of the House, the liberal Democrats put us down every time we tried to discuss this issue. We could never get a vote. Thank God that at last this problem is being confronted. Since Mr. GALLEGLY and I talked in 1989, millions upon millions of illegal immigrants have flooded into our home State of California and across the country as well. Those millions of illegal immigrants that have come here, they may be fine people, but they are consuming resources and benefits that are meant for the people of the United States of America.

In California, we see our health care system breaking down. We hear and see our education system breaking down. We know something must be done, but we have been prevented from doing so because the people who ran this House for all of those years refused to let Mr. GALLEGLY present a bill and get it to the floor of the House of Representatives.

I applaud Congressman GALLEGLY and the others who have worked so hard on this, because we care. We care about the people of the United States of America, and we know that the people are not going to buy the line that this is antieducation because we want education dollars to go to the benefit of our children rather than foreigners that have come here illegally. That is antieducation? Nobody buys that. That is the type of arrogance that has been rejected by the people of this country.

I hope that when they go to the polls a month from now that they realize that type of arrogance is a thing of the past and put it to bed forever. The fact is the people of the United States expect the tax dollars that are being taken from them to be used for their benefit.

The Gallegly amendment basically focuses on education, which is of major concern. For us to say that those people coming from other parts of the world do not care about their children, are not coming here to give their children a free education is ridiculous. All the Gallegly bill now does, and I do not think it should have been compromised before, I mean the fact is it was much stronger before, saying illegal aliens who are here should not get the benefit, but this bill now before us just says future illegal immigrants should not get this right of education.

Let us end this attraction to illegal immigrants. This bill at least cuts off the attraction to future illegal immigrants from taking away those limited tax dollars that we have available for education.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 minute.

I just wonder if the gentleman was reading the papers back in 1986 when the House of Representatives under Democratic leadership took up the fundamental immigration law for the first time in many, many years and passed legislation making it against the law for people to hire illegal immigrants who are in this country. The gentleman gave us a pretty hard time there talking about how all the evils of the world are a result of the fact that you could not get the Gallegly amendment up on the floor. The fact of the matter is we passed about three immigration bills in the time that I have been here which is 14 years.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. If the gentleman will yield, to answer the gentleman's question, I remember the 1986 bill. That is the one that granted amnesty to millions of illegal immigrants and sent the message out to all the people in the world, ''Come to the United States because if you get in, eventually they're going to wear down and they're going to give you amnesty.'' That bill precipitated this flaw.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. I would like to ask the gentleman further, have you not read the bill? It did not say to the rest of the world, ''Come on in, you can get amnesty.'' I do not know where you got that. But I suggest you read the bill and read some history before you come to the floor and indict the last 10 years of this Congress.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. We know what happened after that bill passed.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California [Mr. BECERRA].

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

I am going to go back a bit, because a number of speakers have come up here and said, and I suspect will get up here and say about the costs of illegal immigration and the immigrants that are coming, and California and the costs. Certainly there are costs, but it would not be a full and honest debate, I say to each and every Member that is going to get up here and say that, if you did not also say what they are contributing. Whether it is the food you eat, the clothes you wear, you are able to purchase it for a decent price because of the work that some of these folks do.

On top of that, it would not be an honest debate whether they are here legally or not. Because if they are not legally here, I think everyone agrees that they should be deported; but while they are here and working, if they happen to buy an article of clothing the way you or I do, they pay the same sales tax that you and I have paid. If they purchase a car, or furniture, they pay the same sales tax that you and I have paid. If they own property, and many of them do, they pay property taxes the way you and I do. If they do not own property but they rent, they are ultimately still helping to pay for the property tax on that property through their rent. If they own a business, and many of these folks do, they pay business taxes to the local government.

All of that, as the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. DEAL] had mentioned, all of that is the basis of the payment for education in most States. I know for a fact in California, most of the money comes from sales tax and local property taxes for the schools in our State. So please, if you are going to make an honest debate, if you are going to talk about the estimated cost because it only can be an estimated cost, what the estimated cost is of having a child go to school if he or she happens to be undocumented, also mention what is contributed by these families because they are not just languishing. Most of them are providing some payment.

Another point: In bad times or in good times, we have had folks in this country who do not have documents who are, as I said before, and everyone will agree, deportable. Bad times or good times. In good times, folks were not saying that they were costing our schools all this money and as a result our kids were not getting educated, our people were not getting their health care.

In good times or in bad times, they have been here. When the economy shot up, when the economy has shot down, they have been around. It just so happens that in bad economic times, you look for the scapegoats, and it is easy to point your finger at those individuals.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. If the gentleman will yield, I am not suggesting these are bad economic times.

Mr. BECERRA. I am not suggesting that. I am just saying whether it is good or bad times. Mr. Speaker, I suspect the gentleman will agree with me, as a Republican, that these are good economic times.

Let me continue if I may. This whole argument really, if you boil it down, is the following. I think everyone in this Chamber will ultimately agree, if you kick a kid out of school, you will not drive the parents out of the country. What you do is you kick a kid out of school and you put the kid on the street. The parent is probably here because he or she probably has a job, probably in the underground economy, is going to stay here because chances are in the home country the person would not be making as much money. In the home country there is a good chance the kid would not get educated anyhow.

So they are probably going to stay here whether or not you place a kid out on the street. The real concern, as most of the law enforcement officials and Sherm Block, the Sheriff of L.A. County, will attest to this, and he is a Republican, he is opposed to this particular provision by the gentleman from California [Mr. GALLEGLY], he will attest, it is better to have a child in school than on the street.

If this is meant to drive people out of the country who are here without documents, it is going to fail miserably. And if it is, what are the consequences? You and I will not see the consequences because we are here in Washington, DC, making the policy. The consequences will be faced by the school districts and the school boards that are opposed to this measure and most of the law enforcement officials who are opposed to this measure because it does not help them take care of their worries locally.

How much will it cost? This really is antieducation. Why? Because if you think someone is going to have their child pay tuition, this proposal says, well, these people who are undocumented can pay tuition for their kids to go to school if they want to continue using the public schools.

Let me tell you, if you are going to use $5,000 or $6,000, I guarantee you most people would send their kids to some private school for that amount of money if they could because they would avoid the problem to begin with of having their kids go to a public school and being caught. You are not going to do anything with this measure, no kid is going to be able to afford to pay the tuition for a public or private school.

Mr. GALLEGLY. If the gentleman will yield, there is no tuition in the amendment here.

Mr. BECERRA. But the real issue in terms of cost and why this is so antieducation is the following. In California, which by the way, unfortunately, our Governor has been unwilling to fund education in our schools the way it should be. We are now ranked one of the last in this country. We used to be one of the first back in he 1950's in terms of education funding. But we provide about $6,000 per pupil in California in money. That is in school.

You drive a kid off on the streets, and you are going to have come costs to the local law enforcement to try to make sure that they are making sure these kids that are on the street now are not committing crimes or becoming victims of crime. But should they become involved in criminal activity, this young child who has been kicked out of school will probably be incarcerated, not imprisoned because they do not take them to adult prisons. They take them to the youth offender facilities, which cost about $33,000 per year in the State of California.

So if you think $6,000 is expensive in our public schools, then $32,000 is surely much more expensive than that. That is what you are driving towards with this particular piece of legislation.

A couple of more points: Why we would want to set as a national policy a principle that says we are going to hit the kid, we are going to punish the kid for the acts of an adult, I am not certain. I know the courts right now are debating whether you can punish a parent for the acts of a child. Some of these delinquents, children who become delinquents, we are now having some local laws that say, OK, let us punish the parents for letting this kid become a delinquent.

The courts have not decided yet if, in fact, you can punish the parent for the acts of a child. Not only are you going beyond what the courts have even permitted, but you are turning it on its head, you are saying punish the child for the acts of the adult, as if a 2-, 4- or 7-year-old could tell his or her parent, ''Don't cross that border without documents, Mom or Dad, because, if you do so, we're in trouble.''

Be realistic. This is not sound policy. If we are going to address the issue of illegal immigration, let us do it where it most counts, at the border. We did that in the bill that just passed. We did provide additional funding to Border Patrol.

We could have done more to provide more protections at the workplace to make sure people do not work without documentation. We did not. This is just another measure that sounds good. That is why it is bottled up in California after Prop 187, because it does not work. We should be about the business of passing laws that will work, not just because they sound good but because they will work. Unfortunately, this will not work.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Oregon [Mr. COOLEY].

Mr. COOLEY of Oregon. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 4134, a bill that allows States to deny public education benefits to illegal immigrants.

This bill is only a matter of fundamental fairness. States are trying hard to balance their budgets. Meanwhile, a growing population of illegal immigrants strain the public resources of the State and local governments.

We order the States to give taxpayers funded public education, to who? To those who are here illegally. Is this not an unfunded Federal mandate, which we just passed legislation to discontinue?

Come on. At a time when we are trying to introduce common sense to Washington, DC, let us get rid of these senseless mandates. Let us have compassion for the hard-working taxpayers of this country. Let us let the people of the States decide whether or not they want to spend their tax dollars on public education for illegal immigrants.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. BILBRAY].

Mr. BILBRAY. Mr. Speaker, I have had the privilege of actually discussing and negotiating this issue at length with representatives in Mexico of the Senate and the Congress. Let me tell you, I heard the same arguments in Mexico that I am hearing on the floor right now of excuses not to do the reasonable thing.

What is interesting is I do not think any of us think that Mexico is xenophobic or antiimmigrant. But the fact is in Mexico, they have a law that says you must prove you are a legal resident, if you are not a citizen, before you even get into a private school, let alone a public school. So the xenophobic issue, I think, is pretty settled and Mexico agrees it is a reasonable approach.

But I ask you, who are the children we are talking about here? I hear people on the floor saying ''our children.'' Are they talking about the legal citizen children who are not getting their fair share of education in the States impacted? Or are they talking about ''our children'' who are the legal resident aliens, who have played by the rules, who are not getting their fair share of the revenue for their education? Or are they talking about ''our children'' as being the illegal aliens in school right now? Because this bill does not affect any of those people. It says if you are illegally here today, you can continue to go to school.

It just says that the people who are thinking of coming here to the United States, who are not here now, we will not require a free education to be given to your children.

So when you say ''our children,'' are you talking about the people here in the United States today, or are you saying this Congress represents the illegal immigrants who are not even in this country today, that are thinking of coming, that they take priority over everyone else in the educational system today.

Mr. Speaker, I ask to pass this bill, because it is for our children, both those who are legally and illegally here today, and the citizens. All it asks is that those who have not come here and made the decision to break our laws not be rewarded and encouraged to do that. That is all we are asking for.

I would ask my colleagues, when you talk about this, think about the fact that the message we are sending around the world, to my cousins in Australia who say ''We hear if you break the laws of America you get rewarded.'' It is time we stop sending that message, not just to Latin America and Australia, but the rest of the world. Let us play by the rules.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 15 seconds to observe, this bill does not relate to or exempt the kids that are not here today; it exempts the kids that are not in school today. Those kids that are not in school today would not be able to get in school in the future, and they would remain on the streets. Heaven knows what would happen to these little kids if they were left on the streets.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. CONYERS].

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I thank my good friend for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, the previous speaker, also a good friend of mine, from California, said that this cousins in Australia have heard that if you break the law in America you get rewarded.

Well, what did you tell them, Mr. Lawmaker?

Mr. BILBRAY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CONYERS. I have not finished my question to you yet. It is going to be a little more complicated than that.

If you break the law in America, you get rewarded? We have got more people in prison for breaking the law than any nation on the face of the planet, and building more prisons than schools.

We are now federally subsidizing the increase of prisons in States, and your cousins in Australia are telling you, a Federal lawmaker, that you get rewarded for breaking the law in America, and you repeat that on the floor of the House without even telling us what you told your cousin.

Mr. BILBRAY. Would the gentleman yield?

Mr. CONYERS. Not yet, I have some more to tell you about this subject, sir, and then I will be pleased to yield.

Now, it just so happens that the bill that you so avidly support here on the floor is nothing more than a mean-spirited attempt to punish children for the actions of their parents. Did you explain that to your cousins from Australia?

And, by the way, what do you think happens to all these hundreds of thousands of kids that you would exclude from schools here? What do they do? Join the Boy Scouts and the Girl Scouts? Or do they get part-time work? Or do they go the day care centers that their parents will assign to them? Or do they stay out on the streets and become criminals or victims of crime that your nephews fail to understand that you do get punished here in America? You get punished more in America than you do anywhere else in the world.

Mr. BILBRAY. Would the gentleman yield now?

Mr. CONYERS. Not yet. I have not completed.

Now, my dear friend, Mr. GALLEGLY, one of the best mayors California ever produced, how come you did not allow this great provision to remain where it was created, in the immigration bill? You have not explained that on the floor.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Yes, sir, I did.

Mr. CONYERS. No, you did not.

Mr. GALLEGLY. I will be happy to.

Mr. CONYERS. Well, you ought to be happy to. But this is the provision that came out of the immigration bill so it would have a life. And it did not come from the President or the Democrats. Guess who wanted it out?

Mr. GALLEGLY. I will tell you.

Mr. CONYERS. The Speaker of the House wanted it out. Your colleagues on the Republican side pleaded to have it taken out. And now, after it has been taken out, you march right up again telling us about all the provisions.

And now, if there is any time left, I would be happy to yield to my distinguished colleague from California for 15 seconds.

Mr. BILBRAY. If I may answer the question, what I told my cousin in Australia is: Tom, just because in the past America has rewarded people for breaking our immigration law——

Mr. CONYERS. Stop, I do not yield any more. Because if you told them that we once used to reward people for breaking the law, then you have failed your obligation as a Federal lawmaker. I am not yielding to you, sir, because you are giving misinstruction on the Federal law to your relatives in your family. Now, they ought to check with the ranking member of the Committee on the Judiciary if they want to know what happen to people that break the law in America.

Mr. Speaker, I will now yield to my distinguished friend, the subcommittee chairman on Judiciary, for 15 whole seconds.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman, my friend, and he is my friend, from the great State of Michigan for yielding, to answer his question about whose idea it was to change this. I think the gentleman would agree that this was something that I wanted in this bill or I would not have brought it to the floor during the debate in March.

Mr. CONYERS. Why was it taken out?

Mr. GALLEGLY. Let me remind the gentleman, if the gentleman will give me 10 seconds uninterrupted, I will give him a complete answer. Will the gentleman yield me 10 seconds?

Mr. CONYERS. Well, the majority of my colleagues want me to do it, so I will do it.

Mr. GALLEGLY. I thank the gentleman for yielding. The reason this was taken out is the President of the United States, our President, said he would veto any bill that gave the States anything short of an unfunded mandate in perpetuity, guaranteeing a free public education entitlement for anyone, whether they are here today or in the future. We did not want to see a very important immigration bill threatened. The President said we only had that in there so he would veto it.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, in other words, you are blaming the President of the United States for NEWT GINGRICH's decision to remove it?

Mr. GALLEGLY. It was my suggestion.

Mr. CONYERS. Is that the idea?

Mr. GALLEGLY. No, it is not.

Mr. CONYERS. It was your suggestion to remove it?

Mr. GALLEGLY. Because I would not allow the President to hold this hostage.

Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 15 seconds to finish that. I think it is very important the American people understand why this provision is a stand-alone bill. In March this provision passed overwhelmingly in the House. We brought it back after we modified it. The President said I will veto this bill, I will veto this bill.

We were not going to allow the President to have an excuse to veto this bill. I suggested we remove it, let it stand alone. I believe in the democratic process. If the people of this Congress say, GALLEGLY, your bill is bad, so be it. I do not think that is going to be the case. That is the reason it is here.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. CUNNINGHAM].

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I would say to my colleagues on the other side of the aisle, those that are going directly toward the issue, I laud that. That is fair and open debate. I think that is what this House is for.

Those that use this as a political satire to demonize the Speaker of the House, and according to the gentleman from California, GEORGE MILLER, the leadership meets once a week to take out and find ethics violations for the Speaker, and according to GEORGE MILLER, and I quote, ''He is the general, it is in our best interests to take him out,'' that is wrong.

But those that speak to the issue, I laud them, and I respect their opinion. But I disagree with it.

I would say those from the liberal left that would not support the welfare, would not support the balanced budget, and then told stories to try and scare the American people, I think that is wrong.

What I would say to my liberal left friends is that my mom once told me, ''If you lie enough, you are going to go to Hades, and I will be very happy and justified when you pass away to send you a fan.''

And this issue is costing not only taxpayers, it is costing children. I will speak to California, children in California. It is not $6,000 a year, it is $4,850 per student times 250,000 students in K through 12. That is $2 billion a year, I would say to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BRYANT]. Think in 5 years what we could do in the State of California with fiberoptics, computers, and paying teachers and the rest of it.

We have 18,000 illegal felons. When one talks about we are building more prisons than we are schools, that is one of the reasons I think, yes, the border is a good place to start. But economically, criminally, and against our poor and Medicare, we are destroying American citizens, and that is why we are supporting this, not mean-spirited.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. PACKARD].

(Mr. PACKARD asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Let me make a proposition to the Members of the Congress. Let us take American taxpayer dollars and send it to Mexico or to any other country and educate their children. Those that have chosen to stay in their country and to abide by our border laws, they probably have a better right to our taxpayer dollars to educate their children than those that break our laws to bring their children here and get an education at taxpayer expense.

Now, I think it would be a ridiculous idea to send our tax dollars to Mexico or to any other country to educate their children. But it is more plausible and more just and more reasonable than to invite them to come illegally into our country and educate the children.

Now, you think about that.

We will not send our money to foreign countries to educate their children, but I think a parent of a child that stays in their own country has a better right to our dollars then those who break our laws and bring them to this country.

Now, the argument has been how can we turn them out on the streets without being able to get a job? We can take an illegal child all the way from kindergarten through high school and graduate from high school and they cannot legally get a job in this country, so we should not use the argument that they need a job.

I have an end to the idea that this bill is antieducation. That is the most spurious of all arguments. I have 33 grandchildren, my wife and I, and every dollar that we spend on illegal alien children is a dollar that my grandchildren do not have for their education.

I do not need to tell my colleagues that in California, at least, maybe not in other States but in our State, we do not have enough dollars for education. Our children are being shortchanged. I do not want my 33 grandchildren, all in school virtually, to be shortchanged because we are spending our tax dollars to educate illegal children.

I strongly urge a vote for Gallegly.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California [Mr. MCKEON].

Mr. MCKEON. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 4134. This legislation allows each State to decide whether it should provide a public education to illegal immigrant children. Just because the Federal Government has failed in its duty to secure our borders, States should not be required to spend limited State resources on education benefits for illegal immigrants.

For example, in my home State of California, taxpayers shoulder a $2 billion burden to provide an education to nearly 400,000 illegal immigrants. Further, California's children struggle to learn in overcrowded classrooms with a limited number of teachers and few resources.

In short, H.R. 4134 restores a fundamental State right to establish its own education policy and removes one of the most costly unfunded mandates of the Federal Government.

Again, I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of H.R. 4134.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. FOLEY].

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman very much for his leadership on this issue, and I am urging my colleagues to vote ''yes'' on a modified Gallegly.

First, it ends the unfunded Federal mandate that forces States to provide free public education to illegal aliens not yet in our schools; it protects children already in schools as of July 1, 1997, and does not kick anyone out of school; and it guards against creating a new education entitlement for those not yet even in this country.

Now, folks, today, we have 35 to 40 children in every public education classroom. We are, indeed, overcrowded. In the Palm Beach County School System there are 37 languages spoken. In Palm Beach County, FL, teachers are required to complete some 300 hours of training to be prepared for English As A Second Language, to be able to assist students with other languages, taking time away from their families to learn to adapt to others who do not speak the English language.

A moment ago a colleague suggested that we do not talk about the benefits illegal aliens provide to this State and Nation, we do not talk about the taxes that they pay. Well, then, is it fair to say that we respect and appreciate drug dealers because they certainly pay taxes themselves, as well?

The gentleman from California, Congressman BONO, and I were talking a moment ago, and this is the only topic in this Congress where the word ''illegal'' is actually protected. We talk about illegal drugs and we give 5-minute speeches on the terror of drugs in our Nation. We talk about rape and murder, illegal, crimes, and we talk about the toughest, most serious punishments we will level out in this Congress. Yet we talk about people illegally coming to this country, and we are supposed to be silent. We are supposed to be quiet.

Now, some of our colleagues are defending Governors, like Governor Chiles in Florida, who is suing the tobacco companies to recover health care costs because of the tobacco deteriorating one's health and costing the States moneys. Well, I would suggest to Governor Chiles that he sue the Federal Government to recover moneys for education benefits paid to illegals. In Florida we are spending $800 million to $3 billion annually for illegal immigration.

Now, clearly, this Congress stepped up to the challenge when Mexico needed to help in its currency to the tune of $20 billion. But how are States like Florida, Texas, and California going to meet their payroll obligations, their fiduciary obligations to their taxpayers, if we do not start discussing this in an honest and fair manner?

People who come here illegally should not be rewarded. No, none of us suggests we want our children out on the street, but we have to send a message sooner or later that the United States of America is not going to accept everybody in illegally.

There are hundreds of thousands of people who are seeking to come to this country legally, that have applied to their Embassy to gain the privilege of being an American and to come to this country and participate. So we should not let others who illegally come in to this country to jump in front of that line, jump in front of those honest citizens who want to find opportunity in American society. Do not deny those people that are waiting in line to come to this country by suggesting that people who are illegally here should have all rights and privileges.

I have to think, ladies and gentlemen, of those 35 and 40 kids in those classrooms in Palm Beach County that are not getting a good education because of the overcrowded conditions.

The gentleman from California, [Mr. GALLEGLY] has worked tremendously hard on the Task Force on Immigration Reform, and in particular on this issue, because he knows well enough that California, Florida, Texas, New York, and other States have long endured the cost to their taxpayers to provide benefits for illegals.

It is time simply to stop. Not stop with the people who are here today, but stop July 1, 1997, for those who would arrive and expect something for free from this Nation.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds only to observe that I think it is all our responsibilities to take the next step and say what would be the actual result of doing what the gentleman is advocating.

Nobody wants illegal immigrants to be in this country, but the simple fact is not one single credible source believes that if we keep these kids out of school that their parents are going to leave or that they will not come here because, as the gentleman from California [Mr. BECERRA] said, they are not getting a decent education where they came from anyway.

If that is the case, what do we expect to do with all these kids on the street, first; and, second, what do we think will happen to all these kids on the street?

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. MARTINEZ].

Mr. MARTINEZ. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

First of all, there were several Members that got up that were in the State legislature, the same as I was, who decried the lack of money or education in California. Let me tell my colleagues something. The lack of money in education for California is the fault of the State legislature. The State constitution states the highest priority of any revenues collected should be for education, and yet the State has never acted that way and there are schools that are in desperate need of monies that the State has never provided for. So this is a lousy argument, that the illegal children that are being educated are depriving monies to the children of the citizens that should be educated.

I take umbrage with the statement the chairman made about Mayor Gallegly being the best mayor to come out of California, because I always thought I was.

Having said that, let me go back to the law itself. There is no Federal law that says that States must educate children of illegals. It was a court decision that acted because there was no policy statement by the Congress.

So now the Congress is making a policy statement that will only allow it to go back to the court, because the court acted under Article XIV, which really says that no State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privilege or immunity of a citizen of the United States, nor shall deprive any person of life, liberty or pursuit of happiness without due process—and now get this, this is the important part—nor deny any person within its jurisdiction, it does not say legal or illegal, any person within its jurisdiction the equal protections of the law.

I suggest that should this bill pass and become law, if the President would sign it, which I doubt that he will, it will still come back. The first time a State decides to act on our prerogative, our policy, it will still come back to the court and the court will still, under the protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, will say we have to educate children.

But what really is surprising to me is people and Members that get up in the well of the House and talk about the funds that we do not spend abroad. We spend too many funds abroad and not enough here in the United States, and maybe we should start thinking about that.

The fact is that what we are really talking about is the dignity of our country. We have talked and people have gotten on the floor here and talked about the suffering children all over the world and the starving children. And we have such sympathy for them, but yet if there are children here in the United States, we have no sympathy.

I admire the strength, the aggressiveness, the tenacity, the determination of those Republicans on that side that would get tough on immigration, get tough on the perpetrators of the illegalities we talk about with regard to the adults that are coming across, not the children.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. RIGGS].

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Speaker, I thank my good friend and California colleague, Mr. GALLEGLY, for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I want to clarify one I think fundamental issue in this whole debate, and that is that we are talking about legislation which is prospective; that is to say, the Gallegly amendment would only apply to children who are not yet illegal immigrant children, who are not yet in our public schools.

So all these objections that we are hearing basically have the effect of overriding the concerns and the feelings of taxpayers who are opposed to magnetizing our borders. Basically, our Democratic friends and the President and his administration are saying we must educate any illegal immigrant, even those who have yet to enter the country.

Now, that makes no sense. It makes no sense whatsoever for one Federal law to reward illegal immigrants from violating another Federal law, and that is what we are talking about in this debate, especially when it heaps tremendous burdens upon State taxpayers and deprives legal residents of needed services.

So I want to conclude with a letter that our governor, Pete Wilson, sent to the Speaker of the House, who I believe is going to conclude the debate here momentarily, back in March when we first debated the Gallegly amendment. And it is as applicable now as it was then.

He said in his letter, the governor, should a State want to commit its educational resources in this area, it would be free to do so under the Gallegly amendment because the decision is left to the States. On the other hand, California would be freed from this mandate, as dictated by the overwhelming passage of Proposition 187, and allowed instead to target limited State resources to meet the educational needs of our legal residents.

The gentleman from Texas [Mr. BRYANT] brought up, I thought, a fair question earlier. And the response, really, is the basic premise of the Gallegly amendment, which is to leave education decisions where they rightfully belong, at the State level. And that is very much in keeping with the longstanding American decision of decentralized decision-making in public education.

Yet unless we pass this legislation today, the burdens of this particular mandate will remain, and thousands of needy California schoolchildren will be shortchanged. I urge the House to pass the Gallegly legislation.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. GENE GREEN].

Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank my Texas friend for allowing me 1 minute to speak against this bill.

One of the reasons I voted for the immigration bill ultimately was because this amendment was removed from it. This is an amendment, Mr. Speaker, that sets the pattern that we have seen in the Congress for the last 2 years: If we are going to cut the budget, let us cut education; if we are going to punish somebody, let us punish children, and that is what this amendment will do.

People do not come to this country to put their kids in public school. The children do not come here because of their own volition. They come here because somebody brings them. And to punish a 10-year-old in Texas or a 10-year-old in California who is not here of their own volition and say they cannot go to public school, it is wrong and this is bad public policy. It is bad public policy on the State level as well as the Federal level.

I am always proud to be a Texan, but I am particularly proud to be a Texan because our Governor of Texas, who is a Republican, by the way, Governor Bush, has said he would not allow the children to be removed from Texas schools. And I admire him for that and thank him for his commitment to education. That is why this bill is so bad, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. STEARNS].

Mr. STEARNS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this bill. Let me point out to my colleagues, legal residents of this Nation cost the American taxpayers $4.5 billion. Who pays this? Most of the education, public education funds are raised almost exclusively through the taxation of State residents. The State has to tax individual families, individual people to pay for this, $4.5 billion. Therefore, it is fitting that the State decide this issue, not the Federal Government. So the gentleman's bill is simply saying let the States decide instead of forcing an unfunded mandate from the Federal Government.

It is also a case where it is only right. There are disincentives, if we pass this bill, for people to come and put their children into schools illegally. I urge my colleagues to think of it in those terms. Would Members want to be taxed to pay for the education of illegal immigrants? Why not let each State decide? If New York City or New York wants to decide one way, they can decide. I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I have only one speaker remaining, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

(Mr. BRYANT of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, we have heard a lot of talk about education here today. I would remind Members of what the gentleman from Texas [Mr. DOGGETT] observed a moment ago, that it is coming from the side of the aisle that proposed a 15 percent cut in Federal aid to education. So I wonder, really, if this is not election year rhetoric as opposed to substantive concern. I see some heads shaking. I will give them the benefit of the doubt.

We cannot leave this floor without explaining to the American people why it is that a Republican Governor of Texas, two Republican Senators from Texas, and a State very large, very much impacted, disagree with this approach; why the Republican sheriff of LA County, certainly he knows the meaning of this, disagrees with this approach; what we are going to do with all of these kids that are going to be left on the streets; what is going to happen to these little kids wandering the streets; why the majority Members think anybody is going to pick up and go home because their bill passes, when all of the studies indicate that they are wrong about that. We have got to be able to answer these questions.

All of these hot speeches we have heard out here today, they are just fine for getting reelected. They are not fine for governing the country. Everybody would like to make a speech that will draw the applause. But I will not yield. We must pass legislation that can govern this country. I do not want the illegal immigrants here either. Everybody agrees with that. But I do not want gangs. I do not want kids wandering the streets. I do not want kids kidnapped off the streets who are left defenseless on the streets.

I simply would say, we do not want the pandemonium that will be caused by this policy which looks good on the face of it but will not work, as every expert has testified. Members, please vote against the Gallegly bill.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. GINGRICH], the Speaker of the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. (Mr. CHAMBLISS). The gentleman from Georgia [Mr. GINGRICH] is recognized for 2¼ minutes.

Mr. GINGRICH. Mr. Speaker, this is, I think, actually a very simple issue. First of all, I commend the gentleman from California for listening carefully to the country and revising this. Members need to understand, any student enrolled in this school year is grandfathered until they graduate from high school. So there is not a question about kicking anybody out.

There are two core questions here: The first is, prospectively for the future, should we be saying across the planet, come to America illegally and you are guaranteed the taxpayers will provide the social services at the expense of legal immigration and at the expense of children of Americans? That is what is happening.

What is happening today in California is that 51,000 teachers are being used up by an unfunded Federal mandate. We are taking teachers, classrooms and computers away from legal immigrants in California and away from the children of Americans and we are transferring it to people from families that are here illegally.

We lock in everybody to make sure that nobody has any question. The child in school during this school year is grandfathered until they graduate from high school. But we say for the future to the world, do not come to America illegally and expect that you are going to have the taxpayers of America, the legal immigrants and those who are American citizens, pay for social services other than emergency Federal care. This Congress began in 1995 by saying we would not pass unfunded mandates. That is what this is. This is a $4.5 billion a year unfunded mandate on the children of America who have to share resources because the Federal Government has failed to do its job of stopping illegal immigration.

Let me make a second point to my friends from Texas who have been speaking. Nothing in this bill requires the State of Texas to do anything. If the State of Texas wants to pay to educate illegal immigrants, that is the right of the State of Texas. But how can any Member walk on this floor, deny the citizens of California the right to implement proposition 187, without expecting California to come right back here and ask for $3 billion from the Federal Government annually to pay California for the cost of a Federal failure?

Any Member who votes no on this bill should be prepared to go back home and tell their taxpayers that they are prepared to send California $3 billion a year to pay for what the Federal Government has failed to do. I think it is just wrong to say to the taxpayers and the citizens of California and to the legal immigrants who go to California, we are going to at the Federal level require you to ignore your own proposition 187, we are going to require you to ignore the vote of 60 percent of your citizens and we are going to make you pay out of the money that ought to go to your children, while we in Washington both fail to protect the border and fail to provide the money.

This is an important bill, it is a good bill. It is a fair bill. It grandfathers the children who are in school this year but it sends the signal to the world, do not come to America and think that taxpayers of America are going to take care of you if you are here illegally. We want legal migration. We do not want illegal migration. This bill is a vote on that core premise.

Ms. GREENE of Utah. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to H.R. 4134, the bill to deny public education to illegal immigrant children.

Earlier today, I voted for the immigration reform bill, H.R. 2202, because it makes many important improvements to our immigration system by stepping up efforts to enforce current immigration laws, taking stronger steps to promote greater self-reliance among immigrants, and holding sponsors financially responsible for persons that they sponsor to migrate to the United States.

I am particularly pleased that H.R. 2202 included an amendment I offered that encourages the Immigration and Naturalization Service to focus more resources on detecting, apprehending, and deporting illegal aliens that are involved in criminal activity, such as drug trafficking. This provision will help ensure that the INS commits enough resources to communities such as mine to combat drug trafficking by illegal aliens.

However, while I support immigration reform, I strongly oppose denying education to immigrant children. Educating the children in our communities is, in my view, as important as protecting them from physical harm. We would not stand by and allow someone to physically abuse a child who was in our country illegally. Neither should we stand by while these children pass their formative years in increasing ignorance. We should not penalize innocent children for the illegal actions of their parents, and for the failure of the U.S. Government to control our borders.

I recognize that many States are carrying a significant financial burden to educate these children. That is why I believe we must focus more efforts and resources on enforcing our borders to stop illegal immigrants from coming to this country in the first place, and improve enforcement of immigration laws to ensure that people who initially come to this country legally do not overstay their visa. For too many years, the Federal Government has failed to enforce our immigration laws, and we are paying the price for that inaction. Consequently, I believe that the Federal Government should fully reimburse the States for the costs incurred for educating illegal alien children.

I appreciate the efforts made by the gentleman from California to address the negative consequences of illegal immigration. However, I strongly oppose efforts to banish any children from the classroom, regardless of whether they are in this country legally. I encourage my colleagues to vote against H.R. 4134. However, should Congress pass this bill and the President sign it into law, I urge my State of Utah in the strongest terms to continue to provide a free quality education to all of our State's children.

Ms. HARMAN. Mr. Speaker, earlier today, I saluted the bipartisan leadership of my California colleague, ELTON GALLEGLY, and joined a majority of my colleagues in voting for tough measures to combat illegal immigration. We voted to increase control of our borders by doubling the size of the Border Patrol, to remove employment opportunities for undocumented workers, and to strengthen anticounterfeiting laws so employers can conduct fair and even-handed checks of legal status.

Mr. Speaker, the bill before us now, to allow the States to deny public education to the children of illegal immigrants, is bad public policy. As the Torrance Daily Breeze editorializes:

. . . the Gallegly amendment is plainly abhorrent. To begin with, it would do absolutely nothing to counter illegal immigration. Far worse, it would create by deliberate design a growing underclass of illiterate young people denied the opportunity to learn English, much less acquire the basic education required to get a job one day and support themselves.

Nearly every major law enforcement organization opposes this bill. They know its enactment will worsen our crime rate. Chief Tim Grimmond of the El Segundo Police told me that kicking kids out of school ''doesn't mean the families will pack up and leave * * * it will leave us with kids who have nothing to do except get into trouble.''

Mr. Speaker, illegal immigration violates one of our fundamental values: that all of us have to live and work by the same set of rules. We should punish those who break our laws—the parents. As Chief Gary Johansen of the Palos Verdes Estates Police Department told me, the bill's focus on schoolchildren is ''simply a bad idea.''

I urge its defeat.

[From the Daily Breeze, Sept. 20, 1996]

IMMIGRATION BILL IN U.S. INTEREST

ENCOURAGING SIGNS FROM CAPITOL

There are encouraging signs on Capitol Hill that Republican leaders finally are coming to their senses on immigration reform by scuttling the repugnant Gallegly amendment.

The sooner, the better.

Authored by Rep. Elton Gallegly, R-Simi Valley, the provision is the biggest roadblock to passage of a sweeping immigration bill that is critically important to California. The amendment would allow states to kick an estimated 700,000 illegal-immigrant children out of public classrooms, leaving them idle on street corners and in other crime-prone situations.

As public policy, the Gallegly amendment is plainly abhorrent. To begin with, it would do absolutely nothing to counter illegal immigration. Far worse, it would create by deliberate design a growing underclass of illiterate young people denied the opportunity to learn English, much less acquire the basic education required to get a job one day and support themselves.

The disastrous social implications of the House-passed amendment are clear to a majority of senators, including a dozen Republicans, who have announced their opposition to it. Consequently, the immigration bill will not get out of Congress unless the school provision is stripped from it.

Some GOP lawmakers would rather let the bill die than give President Clinton an opportunity to sign a measure that is popular in vote-rich California. But Senate Republican leader Trent Lott suggested Wednesday it would not be ''in the best interest of the country'' to kill the measure over the Gallegy amendment. He's right.

Republicans who control a House-Senate conference committee on the bill should jettison the education provision and get the measure to the president's desk before they adjourn for the election. Among other badly needed reforms, the legislation would double the size of the U.S. Border Patrol, stiffen penalties for document fraud and alien smuggling, and make it easier for employers to verify that prospective workers are legal.

Also Wednesday, there were rumblings on Capitol Hill that Clinton might veto the bill even if the Gallegly amendment is removed. Several liberal Democrats are raising objections to other elements of the bill and urging a veto.

Vetoing this landmark legislation would be not only bad public policy but also politically stupid for the White House. California needs this sweeping reform measure—providing the punitive Gallegly amendment is discarded.

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 4134. Congressman GALLEGLY has raised a very important issue that Congress has too long ignored: who is responsible for educating children who illegally reside in our country? But, the bill still raises some issues that, if never addressed, could be counterproductive. I will discuss those in a moment.

The real issue at hand is that illegal immigration imposes a giant unfunded mandate on States and local school districts. Failure to stem illegal immigration is a failure of the Federal Government. But the consequences of failure are paid by State and local governments. Teachers and administrators in Tucson's public schools have told me that as many as 40 percent of pupils in certain schools are illegal immigrants. California estimates the annual cost of educating illegal immigrants in that State alone at $1.8 billion. I'm sure State legislatures and school boards impacted by illegal immigration could find better uses for their taxpayers' hard earned dollars than spending money to educate kids here illegally.

Now this bill will not throw any kids out of school immediately, and some States may choose never to avail themselves of its provisions. Rather, this bill allows States to decide for themselves whether to provide free public education benefits to illegal immigrants who are not already enrolled in public schools. Further, it allows illegal immigrants already in the school system to receive a free public education through the highest grade in their current school level—although only if they remain within the same school district.

To the bill's credit, it does not force the States to adopt a particular course. States could choose to continue to educate illegal immigrants for free, charge them nonresident tuition—but not deny them an education.

However, we must work to ensure that some of the unanswered questions in H.R. 4134 are resolved. For example, will school districts be required to notify the Immigration and Naturalization Service about students and their families who are illegally in the United States—effectively making school districts into immigration police? What are the legal consequences if they do? Or if they don't? Will there be a uniform way that citizenship is determined for elementary students in each State? How about secondary students where it may not be common to give proof of birth to enroll? How will schools deal with fraudulent documentation and will they be held liable for admitting students with false identification? Will there be a different standard for special needs children? I stand ready and willing to work with my colleagues and with our Nation's State and local officials to resolve these issues that cannot be ignored.

I would add that ideally, the immigration and national interest bill which the House just passed and which I hope President Clinton will sign, should render H.R. 4134 unnecessary. It takes some big steps to address the problem of illegal immigration by keeping illegal immigrants and their families out of the United States—not by surrendering the battle at our borders and moving enforcement to the classrooms of America.

Mr. LAZIO of New York. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 4134, a bill that would merely allow the States to decide, rather than the Federal Government, whether to provide a free public education, deny public education, or charge tuition to illegal aliens. This does not apply to illegal aliens currently enrolled, or those who enroll prior to July 1, 1997.

I support this legislation despite my personal reservations regarding the wisdom of denying public education to illegal immigrants. Some argue that this is not the best approach to combating illegal immigration, and that denying education to illegal immigrant children will in the long run have the unintended consequence of perpetuating the influx of an illegal immigrant underclass within our society. I have been assured by New York Governor George Pataki that New York will continue to choose to provide a free public education to illegal immigrant children.

But what is really at issue here is who should decide whether a State educates illegal aliens within its State borders, the States, or the Federal Government. The public education of illegal immigrants is a tremendous unfunded mandate on the States. Public education has traditionally been within the purview of the States. States should have the power to decide what is best for their State educational systems, rather than have the Federal Government determine this for them.

In an area where the existence of the 10th amendment to our Constitution is being rediscovered, it is about time we trust our State legislatures and Governors and allow them to do their jobs. State capitals are closer than Washington, DC, to the problems that exist within their respective States, and I would suggest that they are in a better position to find the solutions.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong opposition to H.R. 4134.

This bill would allow States to deny public education to children whose only crime is that their parents came to this country illegally.

Mr. Speaker, there is a reason that this terrible provision was left out of the conference report on H.R. 2202, in fact there are several. Barring children from public schools will pose a serious burden on the community and create safety hazards. Many of these children will be left with nothing to do during the school hours, posing a danger to themselves and others. It will be more difficult for parents to keep their children safe and out of mischief. Are we suggesting that organized gang activity is better than organized public education?

This bill will create added burdens for schools. Teachers and educators are nearly unanimous in opposition to changing their mission from education to border enforcement. The Federal Government should not force its responsibility to enforce immigration laws onto our already overburdened schools.

In addition, excluding children from public schools will be costly in the long run. Keeping children out of our schools will not magically transport them elsewhere. This bill threatens to create a class of persons within our communities who have grown up in this country permanently hobbled by lack of formal education. Moreover, denial of elementary education is likely to scar a child's ability to perform the most basic public responsibilities and to contribute fully to society at large. It is for this reason that, in the United States, education is compulsory, and it is a crime for a parent or guardian to keep his or her children out of school. For the same reason, elementary education has been officially recognized as a fundamental human right, explicitly affirmed in the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights, of which the United States is a signatory.

Finally, the most logical reason of all to vote against this bill is that it will not impact illegal immigration. Kicking little children out of school is not one of them. This measure does nothing to cure illegal immigration. If some States have a greater need for assistance than others, then the Federal Government can provide monetary assistance. Don't stand at the schoolhouse door to stop children from being educated.

I urge all my colleagues to avoid making scapegoats of innocent children under the guise of immigration reform—vote against H.R. 4134.

Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to oppose H.R. 4134 on behalf of a generation of children who will be left to twist in the wind because they have been denied an elementary education.

I agree that measures should be taken to discourage and prevent undocumented individuals from entering our country. I will not support, however, any meanspirited, punitive attempts to secure our borders that will devastate numbers of children because of the sins of their parents.

Are we as a body going to reduce ourselves to mistreating little children because we are angry that their parents have not complied with our laws? The obvious recourse would be to punish their parents or proactively prevent them from immigrating here unlawfully. What good will it do to ban their children from attending public school? In the long run, it is the children of American citizens that will also be punished, because they will be forced to deal with the tragedy of a population of uneducated immigrants.

It sickens me to think of the discrimination that will inevitably result as parents will be forced to prove that there children are indeed legal. Unfortunately, those children who look foreign will be forced to prove that they are, in fact, Americans. Be assured that the children whose ancestors are Irish, or British or Dutch or French won't be asked to prove their legality—they can easily pass as American.

Since the Civil Rights Act of 1964 was implemented, we have made enormous strides in our quest for an egalitarian society. This bill will only take us back to a dark period in our Nation—one in which those who looked different from the majority were treated as second-class citizens.

What good will it do us to leave a generation of children—most of whom were born here and are American citizens—uneducated, unskilled, and downright hopeless? In an era when we are intent on reducing crime, cutting Government spending and helping American families strive for a better living standard, relegating thousands of children to a lifetime of virtual poverty as a consequence of their lack of education is morally reprehensible, politically irresponsible and fiscally imprudent.

Need I remind my colleagues of the numbers of organizations, including every major law enforcement organization in the United States are opposed to this measure. They recognize that putting thousands of kids on the streets will not decrease illegal immigration but only promote crime, gangs and drugs and place enormous strains on the cities and countries that will be forced to deal with these problems.

I ask my colleagues, Will you feed, clothe, house and offer work to this generation of uneducated adults? Certainly my colleagues on the other side of the aisle have not fully ingested the ramifications of this potentially devastating legislation. I urge my colleagues to vote against H.R. 4134.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this legislation granting States the option to deny public education to undocumented alien children. This provision is strongly opposed by the Fraternal Order of Police and the vast majority of law enforcement organizations because it will kick children out onto the streets, where they are likely to become victims of—or parties to—crime.

As a matter of fact this bill represents yet another in a long series of Republican proposals which are weak on crime—from trying to repeal the assault weapons ban, to trying to repeal 100,000 cops on the beat, failing to ban cop-killer bullets, opposing extending the Brady bill to apply to domestic violence, and failing to get tough on terrorists by placing taggants in explosive materials or giving law enforcement the investigative tools they need.

The Republicans have a miserable record on crime, and this bill would only make it worse by making our street more dangerous.

It's an insult to this body that we are voting on this measure. If the House approves it, it will likely die in the Senate. Even if it doesn't, it faces certain Presidential veto.

The only reason we are considering the bill is pure politics. Republicans are trying to inject this divisive issue into the Presidential election. Well in the closing days of this Congress we have far better things to do than spend our time on partisan political issues which are going nowhere.

No matter how the Republicans try to repackage it, the bill will have the same dangerous consequences as the original proposal. This bill remains a mean-spirited attempt to punish children for the actions of their parents. Any money the States save from denying education benefits will be spent on the increased costs of crime.

In addition to being bad policy, the bill is unconstitutional. When Texas and California adopted similar provisions they were held to be unconstitutional denials of equal protection. If we enact the same policy at the Federal level it's still going to be unconstitutional.

This bill is tough on innocent children, and is just as bad as the provision we dropped from the conference which was opposed by Democrats and Republicans alike. I urge the Members to vote no.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 530, the previous question is ordered.

The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the passage of the bill.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ''ayes'' appeared to have it.

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 254, nays 175, not voting 5, as follows:

There was no objection.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. MASCARA. Mr. Speaker, the President was in my district this morning for an event at Robert Morris College. He gave a great address and received a very warm welcome from the people of the 20th District of Pennsylvania.

However, as a result, I was detained in my district and missed several votes. If I had been here, I would have voted ''no'' on the rule for the immigration conference report, rollcall No. 430, ''yes'' on the motion to recommit, rollcall No. 431, and ''yes'' on passage, rollcall No. 432.

JOINT EXPLANATORY STATEMENT OF THE COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE

The managers on the part of the House and the Senate at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 2977) to reauthorize alternative means of dispute resolution in the Federal administrative process, and for other purposes, submit the following joint statement to the House and the Senate in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the managers and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The Senate amendment to the text of the bill struck all of the House bill after the enacting clause and inserted a substitute text.

The House recedes from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate with an amendment that is a substitute for the House bill and the Senate amendment. The differences between the House bill, the Senate amendment, and the substitute agreed to in conference are noted below, except for clerical corrections, conforming changes made necessary by agreements reached by the conferees, and minor drafting and clerical changes.

The conferees incorporate by reference in this Statement of Managers the legislative history reflected in both House Report 104–597 and Senate Report 104–245. To the extent not otherwise inconsistent with the conference agreement, those reports give expression to the intent of the conferees.

Section 3—House recedes to Senate amendment with modifications. This section clarifies that, under 5 U.S.C. section 574, a dispute resolution communication between a party and a neutral or a neutral and a party that meets the requirements for confidentiality in section 574 is also exempt from disclosure under FOIA. In addition, a dispute resolution communication originating from a neutral and provided to all of the parties, such as Early Neutral Evaluation, is protected from discovery under 574(b)(7) and from disclosure under FOIA. A dispute resolution communication originating from a party to a party or parties is not protected from disclosure by the ADR Act.

The Managers recognize that the intent of the Conference Agreement not to exempt from disclosure under FOIA a dispute resolution communication given by one party to another party could be easily thwarted if a neutral in receipt of a dispute resolution communication agrees with a party to in turn pass the communication on to another party. It is the intent of the Managers that if the neutral attempts to circumvent the prohibitions of the ADR Act in this manner, the exemption from FOIA would not apply.

As with all other FOIA exemptions, the exemption created by section 574(j) is to be construed narrowly. The Managers would not expect the parties to use the new exemption as a mere sham to exempt information from FOIA. Thus, for example, we would not expect litigants to resort to ADR principally as a means of taking advantage of the new exemption. In such a case the new exemption would not apply.

Section 7—Senate recedes to House with a modification. This section requires the President to designate an agency or to designate or establish an interagency committee to facilitate and encourage the use of alternative dispute resolution. The Managers encourage the President to designate the same entity under this provision as is designated under section 11 (regarding Negotiated Rulemaking). This would promote the coordination of policies, enhance institutional memory on the relevant issues, and make more efficient the use of ADR and Negotiated Rulemaking.

Section 8—House recedes to Senate amendment with modifications. This section permits the use of binding arbitration under certain conditions, and clarifies that an agency cannot exceed its otherwise applicable settlement authority in alternative dispute resolution proceedings.

The head of an agency that is a party to an arbitration proceeding will no longer have the authority to terminate the proceeding or vacate any award under 5 U.S.C. section 580. However, it is the Managers' intent that an arbitrator shall not grant an award that is inconsistent with law. In addition, prior to the use of binding arbitration, the head of each agency, in consultation with the Attorney General, must issue guidelines on the use and limitations of binding arbitration.

Section 11—House recedes to Senate amendment with modifications. This section permanently reauthorizes the Negotiated Rulemaking Act of 1990. The President is required to designate an agency or interagency committee to facilitate and encourage the use of negotiated rulemaking.

In addition, this section requires the Director of the Office of Management and Budget to take action to expedite the establishment of negotiated rulemaking committees and committees to resolve disputes under the Administrative Dispute Resolution Act. It is the understanding of the Managers that the Federal Advisory Committee Act (FACA) applies to proceedings under the Negotiated Rulemaking Act, but does not apply to proceedings under the Administrative Dispute Resolution Act. The Director also is required to submit recommendations to Congress for any necessary legislative changes within one year after enactment.

The Managers deleted language in paragraph (b)(1)(B) determining that property accepted under this section shall be considered a gift to the United States for federal tax purposes because the Managers determined that the language merely repeated current law.

Secton 12—House recedes to Senate amendment with modifications. This section consolidates federal court jurisdiction for procurement protest cases in the Court of Federal Claims. Previously, in addition to the jurisdiction exercised by the Court of Federal Claims, certain procurement protest cases were subject to review in the federal district courts. The grant of exclusive federal court jurisdiction to the Court of Federal Claims does not affect in any way the authority of the Comptroller General to review procurement protests pursuant to Chapter 35 of Title 31, U.S. Code.

This section also applies the Administrative Procedure Act standard of review previously applied by the district courts (5 U.S.C. sec. 706) to all procurement protest cases in the Court of Federal Claims. It is the intention of the Managers to give the Court of Federal Claims exclusive jurisdiction over the full range of procurement protest cases previously subject to review in the federal district courts and the Court of Federal Claims. This section is not intended to affect the jurisdiction or standards applied by the Court of Federal Claims in any other area of the law.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM] and the gentlewoman from California [Ms. LOFGREN] each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM].

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 3852.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the Comprehensive Methamphetamine Control Act of 1996 represents a major, bipartisan effort to respond to the national methamphetamine crisis confronting our Nation today.

Back in October 1995, the Crime Subcommittee held a hearing on the rapidly growing problem of methamphetamine. The testimony given by Federal and State law enforcement witnesses painted a grim picture of a problem that is no longer regional, but national in scope, and devastating some communities much like cocaine did in the 1980's.

The witnesses also testified about the unique problems associated with meth. The profits involved in the meth trade are enormous; meth causes longer highs than cocaine, with many users becoming chronic abusers. Meth is processed in clandestine labs, often located in remote areas, making them difficult to detect. Mexican traffickers, now the major force in meth production and trafficking, have established clandestine labs throughout the Southwest, and have saturated the Western U.S. market with high-purity meth, leading to lower prices. The 1994 mathamphetamine-related murder of DEA agent Richard Fass is a sober reminder of the violence associated with meth trafficking. In short, methamphetamine represents a dangerous, time-consuming, and expensive investigative challenge to law enforcement.

H.R. 3852 is the most comprehensive congressional effort ever mounted to respond to the meth crisis. It was introduced by Representative HEINEMAN of the Crime Subcommittee, who cannot be with us today because he is busy making a recovery from intestinal surgery. This bill is nearly identical to S. 1965, introduced by Senate Judiciary Chairman HATCH and a large, bipartisan group of Senators, including Senators, BIDEN, DASCHLE, and FEINSTEIN. Representatives RIGGS and FAZIO, also introduced bills almost identical to the one before us today.

On August 7, 1996, the DEA sought to respond to the problem of over-the-counter-drugs being diverted to manufacture meth when it published a final rule, to take effect on October 7, 1996. The rule would remove the exemption for certain over-the-counter pseudoephedrine and phenylpropanolamine, or PPA, products from the regulatory chemical control provisions of the Controlled Substances Act.

H.R. 3852 achieves the same objectives as the DEA rule by providing for the regulation of over-the-counter products when they are shown to be diverted to make meth. Its five titles, taken together, are a tough, smart, and balanced attack on the manufacturing and trafficking of meth.

Title I calls on the Attorney General to coordinate international drug enforcement efforts to interdict methamphetamine precursor chemicals, and imposes tough penalties on those who manufacture precursor chemicals outside the United States with the intent to import them into the United States.

Title II permits the seizure and forfeiture of certain precursor chemicals, and calls on the Attorney General to conduct a study and report to Congress on measures to prevent the diversion of agents used to produce meth. The title also increases the penalties for the possession of equipment used to make controlled substances and requires the Sentencing Commission to ensure that the manufacture of meth in violation of this section is adequately punished. Importantly, title II declares the DEA rule to be null and void. The DEA has agreed to this provision because of the other improvements made to the bill which make the rule unnecessary.

Title III increases the penalties for trafficking meth so as to make them the same as those provided for trafficking crack cocaine, with 5 grams of meth triggering a 5-year mandatory minimum prison sentence and 50 grams triggering a 10-year mandatory minimum prison sentence. Importantly, the Justice Department's National Methamphetamine Strategy calls for the same sentence increase. The President even wrote to the Speaker 10 days ago and criticized the House for not passing these penalties. Let the record be clear: These increased penalties are being blocked by a small handful of Democrat Members in the other body. Unless a couple of Senators change their minds, the American people will not enjoy the additional protection and deterrence provided by tough mandatory prison sentences for trafficking meth, the penalties even the President wants to see pass.

It's my hope that the President will pick up the phone and call those Members of the other body opposed to these penalties, and ask them to drop their opposition.

Title III also increases the penalties for trafficking in listed precursor chemicals, and requires the Sentencing Commission to ensure that the sentencing guidelines adequately punish violations of environmental laws resulting from clandestine meth labs.

Title IV establishes a so-called ''safe harbor,'' which provides that lawfully manufactured over-the-counter drug products that contain pseudoephedrine and PPA are exempt from regulation unless the Attorney General finds the need to control them because they're being diverted in large quantities. Under this title, if the Attorney General determines that ordinary, over-the-counter products containing pseudoephedrine and PPA are being widely used as a significant source of precursor chemicals used to manufacture methamphetamine, the Attorney General may establish a single transaction limit of 24 grams. Importantly, this bill requires the Attorney General to report to the Judiciary Committees of the House and Senate any finding of diversion before the single transaction limit is imposed. Under the bill, the DEA can begin to collect evidence of diversion of over-the-counter products upon the enactment of the act. Any delay in such data collection must be avoided so as to ensure prompt action against diversion. Both the DEA and the pharmaceutical industry have worked long and hard with the Congress on this provision. I believe this title strikes a careful balance between providing Federal law enforcement the regulatory authority it needs to restrict diversion of over-the-counter products, and ensuring that the millions of annual consumers of cough and cold products have access to the products that bring much-needed relief.

Finally, title V creates a methamphetamine interagency task force, headed by the Attorney General, to design, implement, and evaluate methamphetamine education, prevention, and treatment practices.

Mr. Speaker, this is a smart, tough bill. The gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. HEINEMAN] could not be with us today, but he should have been proud, and I know he was, to introduce this bill.

The chief and his staffer are to be congratulated on their work on this bill. We urge him a speedy recovery, and we urge, I certainly urge, the adoption of this very fine bill he has crafted. It is a long overdue bill, to give us some real teeth in the laws against this horrible drug trafficking in the product known as methamphetamine; more commonly known to the public as speed.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, there is not a single Member of this Chamber who does not detest the evil of illegal drugs. Parents bury children killed by other children, locked into a deadly cycle of drugs and guns and gangs and violence. Fathers and mothers abandon children because they are driven mad by their addiction. Entire neighborhoods are laid waste. Every single Member of this Congress wants to stop this national sickness. So, we all support being tough on drug trafficking that is killing our young, destroying families, and damaging society.

Most of us will support this bill. We will support it because we know that methamphetimine is dangerous and growing fast in cities, suburbs, and towns all across America. But, Mr. Speaker, there are some among us who take principled exception to one feature of the bill, the imposition of mandatory minimum penalties.

Some of them will speak against those penalties, and some of them may even vote against the bill. I urge all of us to listen to their position carefully and to resist the temptation to engage in cheap theatrical politics, as if this principled opposition to mandatory minimum penalties were evidence of some kind of softness of drugs.

On the contrary, Mr. Speaker, those who will speak against mandatory minimums will do so because they have seen firsthand the impact in their own communities, and they believe that the impact of this bill is futile as to mandatory minimums.

With that, Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to vote for this bill, but to listen respectfully to the views of those who object to one of its features.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

□ 1800

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. BURR].

Mr. BURR. I thank the gentleman from Florida for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I am here today to speak on behalf of my colleague, the gentleman from North Carolina, FRED HEINEMAN, who, unfortunately, is not here because of intestinal surgery. Congressman HEINEMAN has dedicated the last 6 months to working on this issue. I really regret that he cannot be here to speak on his own bill.

As all of us know, speed is a highly addictive, illegal drug which may cause brain damage in long-term users. It can cause users to go into deep depressions and violent rages. In fact, in Arizona, Phoenix specifically, local police attribute a 40-percent increase in homicides directly with an increase in methamphetamine production. As a former police chief, let me assure my colleagues, FRED HEINEMAN understands the relationship between drugs and crime. It is time that Congress addresses this issue in a real way.

One of the obstacles that law enforcement faces in dealing with methamphetamine production is that two of our most common cold, flu, and allergy drugs can be used to make speed. Congressman HEINEMAN's bill meets this challenge head-on. It protects consumers' rights to buy cold and allergy medicine off the shelf, while at the same time increasing the penalties for manufacture, sale, and distribution of speed, making them equivalent to the penalties for crack cocaine.

FRED HEINEMAN worked closely with the Drug Enforcement Administration, the Clinton administration, and the pharmaceutical manufacturers on this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, this has broad bipartisan support and I urge my colleagues in Congressman HEINEMAN's absence, support this bill, stop the production of speed in this country, and save the future generation of our children. With this legislation, we can do that.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Virginia [Mr. SCOTT], a member of the committee.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the bill. We all agree that we need to address the problem of methamphetamine manufacture, sale, and use. The question is whether we address it in a way that is clearly effective in reducing the problem or whether we address it in a way that is calculated only to enhance our political posture.

This bill relies on mandatory minimum penalties as the primary vehicle for reducing the manufacture and use of methamphetamine. Yet there is no evidence that such penalties will have any impact on reducing drug use. In fact, Mr. Speaker, the 5-year mandatory minimum for crack cocaine has not demonstrated any effect in switching drug users from selling crack to powder cocaine, for which they can get probation for 99 times more drugs.

Mr. Speaker, if we are going to look at the best way of reducing the use of speed, all of the credible evidence indicates that drug treatment is many times more effective and cheaper than mandatory minimum sentences. The drug court program has indicated that the costs of drug court is not only cheaper but more effective in reducing crime. In fact, using rehabilitation rather than prisons, we found that prisons cost five times more and result in much more crime.

A drug study in California showed that $7 was saved in prison costs for every dollar put into drug rehabilitation. According to an impact statement, Mr. Speaker, we are going to spend $100 million in additional prison costs if we pass this bill.

Mr. Speaker, those opposing the bill want to return it to the Committee on the Judiciary so that we can seriously address the best way of reducing the use of methamphetamine rather than this last-minute waste of the taxpayers' money.

So, Mr. Speaker, I would hope that we would save money and reduce crime by defeating this bill.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. COBLE].

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Florida for yielding me this time. He and the gentleman from North Carolina have pretty well given Members a good review of this proposed legislation.

Chief HEINEMAN, as the gentleman from Florida said, is recuperating from intestinal surgery. Mr. Speaker, he may have a hole in his intestine but he has fire in his belly when it comes to diligent work for law enforcement. He is a former New York cop, a street cop, a former chief of police in Raleigh, the capital city of my State, and he has worked diligently on this methamphetamine control act bill as well as on the telemarketing fraud bill which we will discuss subsequently.

Meth, or speed, is highly addictive and can cause permanent brain damage, as has already been indicated. Secret labs around the country have begun to manufacture speed with chemicals that have legitimate medical uses. Rogue chemists, Mr. Speaker, I am told, can easily convert cold and flu medicines into meth. Representative HEINEMAN's bill strikes a balanced approach to combat this problem by, A, increasing penalties for possession and trafficking of meth, while at the same time establishing a safe harbor for ordinary over-the-counter products containing the relevant chemicals.

It is a good piece of legislation, Mr. Speaker. I urge its passage.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. WATT], a member of the committee.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this bill. There are a number of reasons that I could oppose it and do oppose it, but I want to speak to two or three of those in this debate since my time is limited.

First of all, we asked the Justice Department, as is our prerogative, to give us a prison impact analysis of this bill. Their analysis indicates that over the next 5 years, this bill will cost the taxpayers over $268 million. This is money which, as the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. SCOTT] has indicated, could be better spent on preventing drug use rather than building more prison space and locking up more and more people and still not addressing the underlying problem.

Second, my Republican colleagues know that this bill is going nowhere. They are just playing politics with this issue. The Senate has agreed to and passed a methamphetamine bill which does not contain mandatory minimum penalties and they have stated that they will not pass one that does have mandatory minimum sentences. We are too late to conference a bill, so passing a different bill in the House than the one that has passed in the Senate gets you, in the final analysis, absolutely nothing, and that is exactly what my Republican colleagues want. They do not want any bill. They just want to make political points.

The third reason I oppose this bill is because they just absolutely abandoned the process. We were in the middle in the Judiciary Committee of marking up this bill. All of a sudden they took the bill from committee, vaulted out on the floor, put it on the suspension calendar and just absolutely disregarded the process that we should be going through. We are rushing to judgment on something that is a serious, serious issue, building another disparity in our sentencing mechanism just like the one that we have between crack cocaine and powder cocaine, ignoring the fact that prevention works better than prisons and doing something shortsighted that is simply political.

Oppose this bill today.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I simply want to respond very briefly to the gentleman from North Carolina. He and I have had a long-standing difference of opinion, though I respect his opinion, over the question of these minimum mandatory sentences in crack and powder and so forth. What we are doing in this bill is very important with regard to minimum mandatory. We are setting the same minimum mandatory tough standards for methamphetamine that we have now for crack. A very small quantity of meth is even more potent than crack. Speed can do even more damage. A small quantity is all it takes, 5 grams, to do enormous damage to somebody. Because it is so, so, so bad, we need to send a message of deterrence out there. We need to take people off the streets who are dealing in this quantity. It is not a lot but it is enough to mean that anybody who has this amount on their person, just as is the case with crack, is a dealer, is a trafficker, is not simply a user. That message needs to be there. There is no other way you can send a message of deterrence than with a minimum mandatory sentence, and I believe in them for limited purposes. This is one of those purposes. That is why it is in the bill.

As far as the process is concerned, we are here today because this is the only way we can get this bill on up in a quick period of time and consider it by the full House with what is left in this session of Congress. We do not want to just accept the other body's bill. This is our body doing our will.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MCCOLLUM. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, the question I want to ask of the gentleman is if we are sending a message, has the message worked on crack cocaine? You have not deterred a thing with the failed policies of building more prisons, and so all we are doing now is spending $268 million more on prisons to send some other message that has already failed. This is a failed policy that we are pursuing.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. If I could reclaim my time, if your President would put the resources necessary for interdiction of cocaine coming into this country that are needed and to just say no to drugs and send that message out to the kids, if we had been doing that these last 3 years, we would have a lot better statistics on crack and cocaine and all of the other drugs in this country.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the President of the United States is all our President, just as Reagan was my President and Bush was my President. He is my President, not your President.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. CUMMINGS].

Mr. CUMMINGS. I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, the eradication of drug use and distribution in our communities is one of my highest priorities. Illegal drug abuse has created havoc on my congressional district of Balitmore and the entire country. It has led to increased crime rates, untimely and unnecessary deaths, gun violence, and skyrocketing health care costs.

Our communities are being hard hit, with no relief in sight. Our precious resources are being depleted in this war against drugs. I believe in drug prevention to thwart drug abuse and treatment to assist struggling addicts. And I believe that we must prosecute drug dealers to the fullest extent that the law will allow. However, I believe that we must have parity in the penalties that we place on illegal drugs.

Mr. Speaker, crack cocaine, powder cocaine, methamphetamine, LSD and heroin all ravage and devastate our communities. Their destruction is undiscriminating. This body should be just as undiscriminating when assessing penalties for their abuse. This body should not create drugs of choice by calling for stiffer penalties on some illegal drugs and not for others. The sale, distribution and use of all illegal substances is abhorrent, and I too want to be tough on all illegal drugs, but we must not continue to fill our prisons with poor persons involved in less expensive substances like crack and methamphetamine while the wealthy abusers dealing in more expensive drugs wreak havoc on our communities.

This measure is not a solution to our drug epidemic. It is election year politics at the expense of poor, undeserved communities. Mr. Speaker, it is these kinds of unncesseary battles that prevent us from winning the war on drugs.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Nebraska [Mr. CHRISTENSEN].

Mr. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this legislation. I would first like to thank my colleague, the gentleman from North Carolina, Congressman HEINEMAN, for his hard work and vision on this piece of legislation. I think he is in our thoughts, in each one of our thoughts, as he is on his way to a speedy recovery.

Mr. Speaker, there is an epidemic taking place across this country, an epidemic that is casting a long, dark shadow over our land. The epidemic that I am referring to is this dramatic increase that we are seeing in the production, distribution, and consumption of methamphetamines.

This is not an east coast or west coast problem, it is not an urban or rural problem, it is a national problem, and the statistics show an alarming increase in the use of meth.

Overall, the United States has seen an 80-percent increase in drugs under a President who would inhale if again he had the chance. In fact, Mr. Speaker, in a national survey released today by the Parents' Resource Institute for Drug Education, or PRIDE, as it is commonly referred to, shows that teen drug use has hit the highest level in the survey's 9-year history. An appalling one in five high school seniors now uses illegal drugs on a weekly base. Almost 1 in 10 high school seniors say they use illegal drugs every single day.

The methamphetamine epidemic has hit home, particularly in America's heartland. The Nebraska State Patrol is seizing methamphetamine at alarming rates. The amount seized has gone from less than 1 pound in 1992 to more than 5 pounds in the first 9 months of 1996. In 1995 law enforcement officials found crank in nearly six times the items than just 2 years earlier.

The number of Nebraska arrests by law enforcement officials jumped from 23 in 1990 to 370 in 1995. Unfortunately, convictions have not been on that same percentage increase because of slick criminal trial lawyers getting them off on legal loopholes and technicalities. But these are unconscionable statistics, statistics we can no longer afford to ignore.

The ingredients used to make this drug are available in States like Nebraska that have a strong agricultural base. Interstate 80 has long been a drug pipeline for methamphetamine. This is a good legislation, and I urge the committee for its passage.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from California [Mr. FAZIO], a member who has a long history of fighting methamphetamines and an author of a companion bill, H.R. 3908.

Mr. FAZIO of California. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend, the gentlewoman from California, for her help on this bill and for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of the bill before us, H.R. 3852. The Comprehensive Methamphetamine Control Act of 1996 is the product of many long hours of complex negotiations between industry representatives, members of the Drug Enforcement Administration, the Department of Justice, and many Members of both the House and the Senate.

Before I speak to the merits of this fine bipartisan legislation, I want to thank a number of individuals: My Senator, DIANNE FEINSTEIN of California; the gentleman from Illinois, Chairman HYDE; Chairman HATCH; the gentleman from Florida, Chairman MCCOLLUM; and the ranking member, the gentleman from New York, Mr. SCHUMER, for their work on this bill and for their determination to see this bill passed before the adjournment of the 104th Congress. Also I would like to thank my colleagues and coauthor, the gentleman from North Carolina, Mr. HEINEMAN, for his work on this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I am very proud of the legislation before the House today. For many of us, both in the Congress and in the law enforcement community, it represents the culmination of many years of hard work on this issue.

I have been working on legislative solutions to the problems created by methamphetamine since the 101st Congress, when I introduced the Regulated Precursor Chemical Act of 1990. While we have enacted antimeth legislation in almost every subsequent Congress, the illicit manufacturers and sellers of this drug have remained a step ahead of law enforcement and devised new ways to produce methamphetamine. In addition, Mexican drug cartels are now involved in the importation of many of the precursor chemicals used to manufacture meth. These cartels present additional problems and burdens for law enforcement, requiring a truly national approach to this problem's solution.

As a result, production and usage of methamphetamine in the United States has grown at alarming proportions over the last several years. According to the DEA, it has been the most prevalent clandestinely produced drug in the United States since 1979. Unfortunately, much of this production is centered in my home State of California and throughout other Western and Southwestern States.

Methamphetamine has caused a dramatic escalation in the number of overdoses, emergency hospital admissions, and drug shootings, from America's largest western cities to our most rural areas. Crack is more potent, more addictive, and much cheaper. It represents a tremendous challenge. It is a public health and law enforcement crisis of truly epidemic proportions, and we must respond to it now.

I believe this bill, H.R. 3852, offers the right solution to this crisis. It includes tough enforcement provisions which increase the penalties for production and trafficking of methamphetamine, enhanced penalties for the possession and trafficking of precursor chemicals and the equipment used to make meth, and more stringent reporting requirements on the sale of products containing precursor chemicals.

The bill also contains provisions which will make a better coordinated international effort, and strengthens provisions against illegal important of meth.

Finally, this bill requires all levels of law enforcement, in addition to public health officials, to stay ahead of the meth epidemic by creating a national working group which would educate the public on the dangers of meth production, trafficking, and abuse.

The story of our failure to foresee and prevent the crack cocaine epidemic is one of the most significant public policy mistakes in our recent history. We now face similar warnings with methamphetamine. We are seeing the destruction of families all across America as a result of the abuse of crack, and we must act now to stop it, for without swift action, this sad history may repeat itself.

The Fazio-Heineman-McCollum legislation is the comprehensive tool that we need to stay ahead of the meth epidemic and avoid the mistakes made during the early stages of the crack cocaine epidemic. I urge all my colleagues to support this much-needed legislation and vote for this bill, giving the opportunity for it to be taken up for a final vote on the morrow.

Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend from Florida for his assistance in making it possible to bring this bill to the floor.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas, Ms. SHEILA JACKSON-LEE, a distinguished member of our committee.

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding time and thank her for her service on the Committee on the Judiciary.

This is a difficult topic, primarily because all of us face the rising tide of drug use, and I do not think this is now a time to suggest who said, ''Just say no,'' who said, ''Just don't do it.'' All of us who are parents and all of us who are members of our community clearly want to be on the side of expressing to our teenagers, in particular, the devastation of the impact of drug use.

H.R. 3852 has good intentions. Having just listened to an array of leaders in my community at a drug hearing, I do realize that there is cause for concern. But to a one, starting with the special agent of the Drug Enforcement Agency in my community, the U.S. attorney, police officers and, yes, those involved in prevention and treatment, they emphasized more than mandatory sentencing that we need to now focus, if you will, on treatment and prevention.

One of the concerns I have about this legislation is that it does not address what we have been discussing with the U.S. Sentencing Commission, a bipartisan commission that argued vigorously to change the disparate sentencing between crack and cocaine. This was ignored by the Republican Congress, for they wanted to leave and go home and beat their respective chests to talk about how they are tough on drugs.

We have young people dying every day. They do not die because we lock up people in jail. We realize that people must be incarcerated. They are dying because we do not have a serious prevention program and education program. We are not getting to the bottom question, of getting those to not buy into slogans, but buy into a commitment to save their lives by staying off drugs.

Methamphetamine is a dangerous drug. So is crack, so is cocaine, and so is heroin. But there must be an opportunity to have our Federal judges have discretion, to penalize those who are suppliers but yet to have some sort of response to those who are addicted, and as well be served by treatment.

I am also here to suggest that we have a major problem in dealing with a real problem in our community, and that is the recognition of the allegations made in the report in the San Jose Mercury newspaper in California, that alleges that individuals associated with the Nicaraguan contra rebel group sold cocaine to gangs in the south central area of Los Angeles. These news articles indicate that the CIA used the proceeds from these drug sales to purchase weapons for the contras to overthrow the Sandinista Government in the 1980's.

These allegations need to be investigated. Several Members of this House have gone to the CIA Director requesting the CIA and the Justice Department as well as this House investigate it. I think if we are serious about drug prevention, we will get to the source of those drugs in Los Angeles and other cities around the Nation and emphasize prevention and treatment. That is the way we should go.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentlewoman from California [Ms. WATERS], a respected member of the Committee on the Judiciary.

(Ms. WATERS asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the gentlewoman from California for yielding me this time and for providing some leadership on this issue.

Mr. Speaker, there has been an awful lot of discussion about drugs of late. It is in the campaign now, with candidate Dole accusing President Clinton of not paying attention, somehow blaming on him the fact that there appears to be an increase in the use of drugs by teenagers.

We watch this political debate and we begin to watch legislating and legislation come forward at this time that really does not do justice to this issue. It should not be about politicking. It should not be about trying to make the public believe that something important is really happening as we look at the drug problem.

The fact of the matter is there has not been a war on drugs, and there will never be a war on drugs as long as we do this kind of legislating. We debated for hours about the disparity in crack cocaine and powder cocaine sentening. We have mandatory sentencing, and the prisons are filling up with young black and Latino males, for the most part, got with one rock cocaine, small amounts of cocaine, thrown into the Federal system in prison, prisons just running over.

Where are the big drug dealers? Where are the people who bring in the huge amounts of cocaine? Where are the big time manufacturers of crack? They are not really talked about. We do not really understand, or do we not care perhaps, where and how this gets into the communities in the first place.

If we really want to do something about drugs, we will stop this penny ante legislating and we will do some real studying. We will get to the bottom of where the precursors are, how do they get involved in the manufacture of crack. We will get down to who the big guys are, so we can really take it off the street.

This does not do this that. This is simply on of these little piecemeal bills at election time, trying to make the public believe we are doing something about drugs, and we are not.

I think we are better legislators than this. I think we are better public policy makers than this. I think we should stop, we should focus, take this out of the political arena, come back here in January, and get together and really develop some public policy that is going to help the children and the young people of this Nation.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, a number of comments have been made, and accurately made, in the course of this debate. The gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. WATT] pointed out that the committee process was truncated midway and this bill brought directly to the floor, and that is the truth.

There have been comments made that prevention and treatment is the most effective tool against drugs in America, and I think that it is clear that is true. Our own Governor Wilson's administration released a report last year showing that treatment and prevention efforts were massively more successful in fighting drugs than just pure law enforcement.

However, that does not mean that we should not pass this bill today, and I highly recommend it.

I agree with the speakers who said that sentencing for crack and powdered cocaine should be equalized. I agree with that. But that is also not about this bill.

Unfortunately, speed and methamphetamine is an equal opportunity drug. You will find it being manufactured in suburban and rural areas all across California. It is a very dangerous drug, not only to the users, but to neighborhoods. In my own district, I can recall just a short while ago a lab bursting and exploding into flames, posing threats not only from the scourge of drugs but also to firefighters and police officers and neighbors from the conflagration that ensued.

A lot of people in America do not realize that this bill deals very severely with the precursor drugs that are used by those who would make methamphetamines illegally for sale to the young and others in our communities.

What is that? Well, I sometimes have allergies, especially in the spring, and I must confess I take Sudafed and the generic equivalent with some frequency when that happens, and I like to buy it in the little bottle so I do not have to struggle with the little bubble caps. After this bill is enacted into law we are all going to have to struggle with the little bubble caps, because one of the things we are going to do is to make it harder to buy the precursor chemicals so that people cannot manufacture this drug.

That is going to involve some inconvenience for consumers across this country, including myself, and I think it is a small price to pay in order to take effective efforts against this drug.

As I said at the opening of this discussion, we have many principled Members on our side who have spoken quite eloquently on the issue of mandatory minimum sentencing. I know each one of these individuals well. I know that perhaps even more than those of us who may not represent areas that have been targeted for drug sales, they and their constituents know the heavy price paid by those who are involved in drugs and how terrible the dealing of drugs is.

I again respect that the issue over mandatory minimum sentences really says nothing about their concern to fight drugs. I urge that we pass this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I want to concur with a lot of what the gentlewoman from California just said. This is a bipartisan bill. There are a few disagreements among some of the Members over the minimum mandatory sentences in this bill and perhaps with some other features in it.

The bottom line though is we need to pass this legislation tonight. We need to get it enacted into law, because methamphetamine, better known as speed, is a really dangerous drug. It give you a higher and longer high, they tell me, than crack cocaine does. It is commonly found, it is pretty darn cheap, and it is manufactured synthetically and manufactured with chemicals, we call them pseudoephedrine, which is a big word, but basically is found in most of our cough and flu medications in the drugstore, the grocery store, whatever.

It takes large quantities of this and normally and historically those large quantities have been acquired through chemical plant sources from abroad or elsewhere, and they have been done illegally and surreptitiously, but more recently we have been seeing the folks in the United States, and that is where this is made usually, are going to the drugstore or going somewhere and buying very large quantities of off-the-counter, over-the-counter I should say, off-the-shelf products, and that is not good. We need to stop that.

This bill goes a long way toward stopping that, while still providing access for every American to have their flu and cough medications found in the so-called pseudoephedrine product line.

In addition to that, it takes care of being sure that we have the right kind of sentencing in here. While some may disagree with it, and I have heard somebody say this is penny-ante legislation and somebody else say it is too expensive, I would suggest it is neither one. There is nothing that would be too expensive, in my judgment, to stop the kind of crisis we are getting in this particular drug.

We have already heard about the statistics that are so alarming about our young people tonight, generally with drugs, in this Nation. We are seeing this dramatic increase in the last couple of years in 12- to 17-year-olds using drugs, period. Over the last 3 years I think the figure is close to a 100-percent increase in drug usage among teenagers of that age group in this Nation. And it is very, very high with cocaine, 166 percent in 1 year, while it is also very, very high with methamphetamine, which is becoming a choice drug over crack cocaine, even more popular in some parts of the country than cocaine.

So tonight's bill is not a small, penny-ante bill. It is not too expensive. It is just right. It is the formula to give our law enforcement community the tools they need to try to stop the use of methamphetamine and the production of methamphetamine, better known as speed. If we can give them more tools, there is nothing in this bill that would be too expensive.

Frankly, there is no money involved in this bill. It is a bill, however, that does contain minimum mandatory sentences. Those minimum mandatory sentences are very tough because small quantities, 5 grams, just like with crack, are trafficking quantities of meth. It does not take much to do the job, and I do not think anybody here should be ashamed to vote for 5 years minimum mandatory sentence for somebody caught with 5 grams of this stuff because they are trafficking in it. They are causing hardship and death in some cases to our young people, and they are the villains in this process.

We cannot lock everybody up, but we can certainly lock up the drug traffickers. If somebody is the big, big, big drug dealer, we have the death penalty for that. We have a lot harsher punishment for them. What we need is the will to go carry out those laws and to come and do the interdiction, the ''just say no'' education programs for young people, the drug treatment and the work abroad, where that is necessary, in a balanced war against drugs.

When need to come together as a Nation. This is a good step in the right direction tonight. It is a bipartisan product. Democrats and Republicans alike have worked on this bill, and it is a bill which the President should sign.

I hope that when this gets over to the Senate, if President Clinton will pick up that telephone and call those Senators who say that they are going to try to block this bill from passing over there, and it does not take very many of them in the other body to do that because they have procedural problems at the end of a session, I hope he will get on the phone and call those members of his own party who say they are going to block it over these minimum mandatory sentences. I urge him to do that tonight, and if he does it, we will have a bill. It will get passed into law, and the Nation will be far better as a result of that and we will have many better law enforcement tools.

Mr. Speaker, again I urge the passage of this bill.

Mr. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, in recent years, Sacramento County has been increasingly troubled by the prevalence of the drug methamphetamine. Last year, the Sacramento Sheriff's Department made 1,117 arrests for methamphetamine charges, a number that greatly exceeded the amount of arrests for cocaine, marijuana, and heroin combined. The Sheriff's Department also discovered and dismantled seven methamphetamine labs, a significant accomplishment but one that drained the county government of approximately $40,000 of its valuable resources.

This year, the Sacramento Sheriff's Department conducted an investigation that led to the arrest of four individuals and the seizure of 80 pounds of methamphetamine, valued at $2.9 million. Although law enforcement officials have made great progress, there is much more work to be done.

I am proud to support the Comprehensive Methamphetamine Control Act of 1996, which takes a big step in addressing this very serious problem. In light of the public health, safety, and law enforcement challenges posed by methamphetamine in California and elsewhere in the United States, this bill represents an effective means of attacking its production, distribution and use. It is my hope that we will soon rid Sacramento County and the rest of the country of the terrible consequences of this dangerous drug.

Mr. BLILEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 3852. The legislation increases penalties for trafficking and manufacturing methamphetamine substances or other materials used to produce methamphetamines. The bill also establishes an interagency task force to design, implement, and evaluate methamphetamine education, prevention, and treatment practices.

Section 207 also contains a provision which permits judges, as a condition of sentencing, to require those convicted of running an illegal methamphetamine lab to (1) pay for the costs of cleaning up any toxic wastes, (2) reimburse the government for any costs it incurs in cleaning up any toxic waste at the site, and (3) to pay restitution to any person injured by a release of toxic substances at the site. Unlike Superfund's system of strict, joint and several, and retroactive liability, this is a ''polluter pays'' provision which makes sense—someone who acts illegally should be held responsible for the costs to clean up the mess that they made.

I support the legislation; however, I must point out that the bill has not been fully considered by the committees of jurisdiction. H.R. 3852 was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary and the Committee on Commerce. The Crime Subcommittee has considered the bill, but the full Judiciary Committee has not; in addition, the Commerce Committee has not considered this legislation. Given the limited time remaining in this session of Congress, I will not object to this bill moving forward. In doing so, however, the Committee on Commerce in no way is yielding any of its jurisdiction on this and other similar matters.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, this Member is pleased to support H.R. 3852, the Methamphetamine Control Act. Methamphetamine is a powerful drug that is relatively easy to manufacture. The use of this dangerous drug is escalating rapidly due to its low cost and highly addictive qualities.

Methamphetamine use is expanding into the Midwest. According to the Nebraska State Patrol, in 1991, Nebraska had 25 arrests for possession of methamphetamine or delivery. In 1995, there were 374 methamphetamine arrests. This is a 350-percent increase. Communities along the I–80 corridor are the hardest hit. The severity of the problem in Nebraska was highlighted last spring by the tragic death of a teenager in York, NE, at his prom from an overdose of methamphetamine. It was a shock and wake-up call to this prototypical county seat community of 7,500 and to all of Nebraska.

The Methamphetamine Control Act increases penalties for trafficking and manufacturing methamphetamine substances or other materials used to produce methamphetamines. It appropriately establishes mandatory minimum sentences for methamphetamine trafficking. For trafficking 5 to 49 grams of the drug there will be a 5-year minimum sentence. The bill requires a 10-year minimum sentence for trafficking 50 or more grams. These new penalties are crucial to efforts to decrease the availability of this dangerous and proliferating drug.

In closing, Mr. Speaker, we must pass this bill in the short time left in this session of Congress. It must also be passed by the Senate with these tough but appropriate sentencing provisions so that it can be sent to the President for signature. The Nation must become serious and effective in combating this very serious problem. This bill must become law this year in order to do all we can to fight the use of this dangerous drug.

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of the Methamphetamine Control Act of 1996. This is a bipartisan bill designed to attack the production, distribution, and use of methamphetamine in the United States.

Methamphetamine poses a serious and growing public health concern in this country, and requires immediate government attention. While regulations recently promulgated by the Drug Enforcement Administration provide a first step towards combating methamphetamine trafficking, further action is needed to close loopholes in those regulations and provide a more complete response to control methamphetamine in this country.

H.R. 3852 would combat this drug scourge by giving the law enforcement community the muscle it needs to fight trafficking in methamphetamine and its precursor chemicals. To this end, the bill restricts the importation of methamphetamine and precursor chemicals into the United States; increases criminal penalties for methamphetamine manufacturers and traffickers; cracks down on the ability of rogue companies to sell bulk quantities of precursor chemicals that are diverted to clandestine laboratories for the manufacture of methamphetamine; and expands regulatory enforcement of all precursor chemicals used to make methamphetamine, which, in turn, will plug a loophole in current Drug Enforcement Administration regulations that apply only to a narrow range of products that could potentially be diverted to illegally manufacture methamphetamine.

Importantly, the Methamphetamine Control Act balances these critical law enforcement objectives with the need to protect consumer access to over-the-counter medicines.

Thus, while imposing measures to decrease the availability of precursor chemicals, the legislation does not restrict the ability of law-abiding citizens to use common remedies for colds and allergies. Nor does the legislation subject sales of such legal products to onerous record keeping requirements at the retail level.

Finally, the bill institutes a number of programs to improve and expand existing education and research activities related to methamphetamine and other drug abuse, and to monitor methamphetamine abuse in the United States and improve reporting of suspicious precursor chemical orders.

Mr. Speaker, I have received letters in support of the Methamphetamine Control Act from law enforcement and health officials across California. Among those who have contacted me are Jim Maready, Sheriff-Coroner of Del Norte County, and James Tuso, Sheriff-Coroner of Mendocino County. Both jurisdictions have experienced increases in violence related to the trafficking and use of methamphetamine.

The tragic death of 14-year-old Raina Shirley in March of this year as the result of methamphetamine furnished to her focused national attention to the problem in Northern California.

As cosponsor of the original version of Methamphetamine Control Act, I strongly endorse the measure before the House today. H.R. 3852 represents a comprehensive response to this spreading national menace. It is my hope that Congress will move rapidly to enact the bill, and help prevent future tragedies like the one that methamphetamine brought to Raina Shirley and her family.

Mr. Speaker, I include the letters referenced earlier.

COUNTY OF DEL NORTE,
OFFICE OF THE SHERIFF,
Crescent City, CA, September 18, 1996.

Re Methamphetamine Control Act of 1996.

Congressman FRANK RIGGS,
Longworth Office Building,
Washington, DC.

HON. CONGRESSMAN RIGGS: I understand that the Methamphetamine Control Act of 1996 bill is making its way through Congress and came up for mark-up in committee last Wednesday. Ideally, the fewer changes made to the bill, the better. This will help facilitate passage through the Senate.

Methamphetamine at this stage in our society, even in small rural counties, is in many cases to the young people of today what marijuana was to the same age group in the '60's and '70's.

The precursers used in the process of manufacturing methamphetamine are readily available to those that wish to manufacture the illegal drug. In addition, the new processes used in the making of the drug is much less sophisticated, thus novices can manufacture the drug in a very short period of time.

I would urge any new sanctions that could be used in fighting this invasive drug that is crippling many of our young people. I am in constant contact with the young people of our community through my office as Sheriff, coaching high school football, D.A.R.E., and other civic involvements. Please do not hesitate in contacting me if I can be of any assistance.

Sincerely,

JIM MAREADY,
Sheriff-Coroner.

OFFICE OF THE SHERIFF-CORONER, COUNTY OF MENDOCINO,
Ukiah, CA, September 16, 1996.

Congressman FRANK RIGGS,
U.S. Congress,
Longworth Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN RIGGS: I am in receipt of Senator Feinstein's correspondence in regards to the Methamphetamine Control Act of 1996, and will be most honored to endorse this proposed legislation and offer any assistance for it's successful passage. In Mendocino County, methamphetamine continues to be the drug of choice, and as such, presents a most serious and dangerous problem for law enforcement and community members.

Here in our county, the Mendocino County Major Crimes Task Force has conducted 832 investigations involving methamphetamine during Fiscal Years 1992–1993, 1993–1994, 1994–1995, and 1995–1996. From these investigations, 719 arrests were made and 58 clandestine laboratories were seized.

Our Major Crimes Task Force reported witnessing an increase in the number and sophistication of clandestine laboratories in our county. Out-of-county methamphetamine laboratory operators are paying lab-site brokers to secure areas to manufacture methamphetamine. The property owners are paid a fee to allow the process to occur. Once the cooking process is complete, the clandestine laboratory is moved. Some of these cooking processes yield up to 350 pounds of methamphetamine.

1995–96	21

Like other jurisdictions, Mendocino County has experienced an increase in violence related to the use and trafficking of methamphetamine. Our most heinous act of violence occurred on August 23, 1993, when 21 year old Ronald Trever Harden shot and killed his mother, father, sister and 16 month old niece while under the influence of methamphetamine. He then took his own life.

The tragic death of 14 year old Raina Bo Shirley in March of this year as a result of the ingestion of methamphetamine furnished to her brought national attention to our small county due to the circumstances surrounding her disappearance and death. As you know, the suspect is still being sought in her death. In another tragedy, 17 year old Angel Ann Miller died from methamphetamine toxicity after being furnished the drug by a male friend, who has since been arrested for murder as a result of her death.

Therefore, it is without hesitation that I offer my support to your efforts in seeking legislation to further enhance our ability to curb methamphetamine production. If necessary, we can provide testimony to what we have encountered.

Sincerely,

JAMES TUSO, Sheriff-Coroner.

Mr. HEINEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank Crime Subcommittee Chairman BILL MCCOLLUM and his staff for all their assistance in getting this vital legislation to the floor. I introduced H.R. 3852, the Comprehensive Methamphetamine Control Act of 1996 because of the growing scourge of meth. Senator HATCH introduced companion legislation, S. 1965, which passed the Senate earlier this month.

Meth, commonly known as speed, is highly addictive and causes permanent brain damage in long-term users. Meth has become a public health crisis in California and the Southwest and is moving East. DEA records indicate a 57-percent increase in meth lab seizures from January to May of this year alone. In 1994, California experienced a 49-percent increase in meth-related emergency room admissions. In Phoenix, police link a 40-percent increase in homicides directly to the sudden rise in meth production. Meth produces a euphoric high, but also produces deep depression and violent rages. In one particularly gruesome incident, Eric Smith of Chandler, AZ, binged on meth for 24 hours and then beheaded his son and tossed his son's head from the window of his van onto a busy highway.

Secret labs manufacture meth from chemicals with legitimate medical uses. Two of the most common precursor drugs—ephedrine and pseudoephedrine—are common ingredients in cold, cough, and flu medications. More than 100 over-the-counter cold and allergy medicines contain pseudoephedrine. These products are used by more than 90 million Americans and account for $1 billion a year in lawful sales. However, rogue chemists can easily convert these cold and allergy medicines containing pseudoephedrine into meth.

While I am committed to eliminating meth, I believe that we can do so without forcing drug stores from removing cold and allergy medication from their shelves because of overlyburdensome regulations. As written, the DEA regulations apply new recordkeeping requirements to retailers, forcing individual clerks to engage in complicated calculations concerning base chemical quantities. Failure to comply or make correct calculations can result in $30,000 in fines or incarceration. Instead of complying with these criminal regulations, drug stores will simply remove most cold and allergy medicines from the shelves. This will dramatically affect the 90 million consumers who rely on this medicine. My bill revokes these DEA regulations.

This is a nonpartisan issue. Ranking member CHARLES SCHUMER wrote DEA Administrator Tom Constantine on February 28, 1996, to express the very same concerns regarding DEA's proposed regulations that Congressmen MEL WATT and HOWARD COBLE and I raised in a March 19, 1996, letter. In addition, I was pleased to work closely with Congressman VIC FAZIO from California who introduced similar legislation. The administration is also on record as being supportive of this bill. This is indicative of the bipartisan nature of this legislation.

As a 38-year law enforcement veteran, I have seen epidemics of heroin, LSD, cocaine, and crack infect our cities and communities. We must take immediate and dramatic action to ensure that meth is eradicated, while at the same time enabling consumers access to cold, flu, and allergy medication. That is why I introduced H.R. 3852, which:

Increases penalties for possession and trafficking of methamphetamine, making them equivalent to the penalties for crack-cocaine

Increases penalties for illegal possession and trafficking of precursor chemicals used for the manufacture of methamphetamine and other controlled substances.

Reduces single transaction reporting requirements for all sales other than ordinary over-the-counter pseudoephedrine or phenylpropanolamine containing products from 1 kg to 24 grams.

Creates a safe harbor for ordinary over-the-counter products containing pseudoephedrine or phenylpropanolamine to cover those products packaged in package sizes of not greater than three grams of pseudoephedrine or phenylpropanolamine base and packaged in blister packs. This will effectively combat shelf sweeping.

Establishes new reporting requirements for firms that sell pseudoephedrine or phenylpropanolamine products via mail order.

Imposes tougher penalties on those who import meth or its precursor chemicals with the intent to distribute them within the United States.

H.R. 3852 represents a common sense approach to a dangerous problem. It fairly balances the concerns of consumers with those of law enforcement so that meth can be eliminated. It is my sincere hope that the President joins our antidrug initiative and signs H.R. 3852 into law. I urge my colleagues to support this tough, bipartisan legislation. Pass H.R. 3852!

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HEINEMAN. Mr. Speaker, today I am pleased that the House is poised to pass my bill, H.R. 1499, the Telemarketing Fraud Punishment and Prevention Act of 1996. H.R. 1499 protects senior citizens from a sophisticated type of white collar criminal—telemarketing scam artists who target vulnerable elderly citizens.

These crimes are among the most outrageous in society because telemarketing scam artists prey on the most vulnerable—seniors who can least afford to lose their limited savings. In fact, Members have already spoken against telemarketing fraud once before, and many of my colleagues thought that the job of getting tough on these kinds of crimes was already completed. However, the job is only half done. The 1994 crime bill included important language cracking down on telemarketing fraud. Today we will pass legislation which completes what was begun in the 1994 crime bill, legislation that takes the tough sentences included in the 1994 crime bill and makes certain that telemarketing scam artists actually receive tougher penalties.

H.R. 1499 was approved unanimously by the Subcommittee on Crime together with a technical amendment offered by Chairman BILL MCCOLLUM. This legislation was developed in consultation with the Department of Justice and staff of the U.S. Sentencing Commission. It is a reasonable, bipartisan bill, and I want to thank my colleagues on both sides of the aisle who have expressed their support for this legislation.

Why is this legislation needed? Telemarketing fraud against seniors is on the rise, but the average sentence for this kind of crime is only 18 months. The 1994 Crime bill directed the U.S. Sentencing Commission to review the Federal sentencing guidelines and report back to Congress on amendments to the guidelines that would ensure tough sentences for telemarketing frauds. Unfortunately, when the Sentencing Commission reported back to Congress in March of 1995, it concluded that no enhancements for telemarketing fraud were needed.

This past April, the Subcommittee on Crime heard the tragic testimony of senior citizens who lost their life savings to telemarketing scams. One of my constituents, Mary Ann Downs from Raleigh lost over $74,000. In Durham, NC, an elderly woman was victimized for $212,000. The FBI estimates that U.S. consumers lose over $40 billion a year to fraudulent telemarketers.

My legislation directs the U.S. Sentencing Commission to amend the sentencing guidelines so that sentences for general telemarketing fraud offenses are enhanced by 4 levels, and telemarketing fraud offenses committed against seniors are enhanced by 8 levels.

According to staff of the U.S. Sentencing Commission, a 4-level enhancement for telemarketing frauds would equal roughly 11 months, or a 60-percent increase from the average 18 months sentence currently received. An 8-level increase would equal roughly an additional 25 months, or a 140-percent increase from the current average 18-month sentence for these frauds. This still falls short of the full extent of the 5 years and 10 years additional prison time envisioned by the 1994 Crime bill, but it is a critical step in combating telemarketing fraud.

The bill also includes a sentencing enhancement of 2 levels for frauds committed by defendants in a foreign country. This is in response to the fact that increasing numbers of telemarketers are moving their operations to foreign jurisdictions in an attempt to evade prosecution in the United States. In addition, H.R. 1499 provides for criminal forfeiture of the proceeds of telemarketing scams.

I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 1499, the Telemarketing Fraud Punishment and Prevention Act of 1996 and help protect their senior constituents from telemarketing predators. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DICKEY). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM] that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3852, as amended.

The question was taken.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 5 of rule I and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on the bill under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, they call it ''the forget pill'' or ''the date-rape drug.'' Technically known as flunitrazepam, better known by its trade name Rohypnol, this inexpensive drug is being used by sexual predators to incapacitate their victims before they are raped.

Rohypnol is colorless, odorless, tasteless and dissolves quickly and easily in alcohol. In fact, alcohol enhances the drug's intoxicating effects, and leaves the victim utterly helpless and vulnerable to rape.

Mr. Speaker, what makes the use of this drug even more vile and contemptible is that victims are likely to suffer amnesia. This makes it impossible for them to recount to law enforcement the circumstances surrounding the rape. These victims suffer the knowledge that they have been sexually assaulted—they just can't remember or explain how it happened.

The distribution and abuse of this drug is a particularly big problem in my home State of Florida, From 1990 to 1992, there were 14 State and local law enforcement cases involving flunitrazepam, and the drug was found almost exclusively in the Dade County area. By 1995, the number of cases had escalated to in excess of 480. Moreover, as law enforcement encounters indicate, the drug has now spread all over the State of Florida.

This drug has been frequently found at nightclubs and college parties. It is also horrifying to learn that distribution of this drug has been discovered at junior and senior high schools—in Florida, as well as in numerous other States. The drug has also been adopted by street gang members across the country. In Texas, street gangs have been known to administer Rohypnol to females in order to commit gang rape as part of the initiation into a gang.

Although it is approved in other countries for short-term treatment of anxiety and sleep disorders, this drug is not currently approved by the Food and Drug Administration for marketing in the United States. According to the Drug Enforcement Administration, Rohypnol is being smuggled in from Mexico and other Latin America countries.

This drug is currently listed as a Schedule IV drug on the Controlled Substances Act. Schedule IV drugs are drugs with accepted medical uses and low potential for abuse. The DEA has suggested that the drug be moved to Schedule I—which are drugs with no currently accepted medical uses in the United States and which have a high potential for abuse. The difficulty in deciding whether to reschedule flunitrazepam is that the drug has some accepted medical uses—it is prescribed legally in 64 other countries. This bill will substantially increase the penalties for manufacturing or distributing flunitrazepam, to give law enforcement the muscle it needs to prosecute these cases. However, it also directs the Administrator of the DEA to conduct a thorough study on the appropriateness and desirability of rescheduling flunitrazepam to a Schedule I controlled substance. The Administrator is given 6 months to conduct this study, and I fully expect Congress to revisit this issue when that report is completed. As chairman of the Crime Subcommittee, I intend to hold a hearing on the DEA's report shortly after it's received.

It is entirely possible that other drugs may now exist, or may come along in the future, which have the same properties as Rohypnol. This legislation address those drugs, by making it illegal to posses a controlled substance with the intent to administer that substance to facilitate a crime of violence. If a victim is under the age of 14, the penalties are even higher. This bill ensures that whatever new ''date-rape drug'' may come along, the penalties are there for any sexual predator who may try and use it.

The bill also directs the Sentencing Commission to recommend additional penalties for the distribution of various quantities of flunitrazepam, and authorizes the Attorney General to create educational materials regarding the use of controlled substances in furtherance of rapes.

Mr. Speaker, we have a short time left in this Congress, and it would be a tragedy if we did not pass such a significant and important piece of legislation. This bill can help put a stop to the abhorrent practice of incapacitating woman for the purpose of sexual assault. I commend the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON] for being the force responsible for getting this bill to the floor today. I strongly urge my colleagues to support this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the bill, even though I believe that it does not go far enough.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is aimed at an alarming growth in the domestic abuse of a drug popularly known as ''the date rape drug.''

This drug, technically known as flunitrazepam is a sedative and a hypnotic. Although it is marketed abroad, it is not legally available in the United States.

It is marketed under a variety of trade names, the most widely used being Roche Pharmaceutical's ''Rohypnol.'' It is known on the street by slang names such as ''roofies,'' ''ropies,'' and ''ropes.''

Rohypnol enters this country through a variety of channels, and substantial evidence of abuse has emerged. This abuse includes: use by high school teenagers and college students to increase and prolong highs from alcohol; use by heroin addicts to boost heroin highs; use by cocaine users to parachute down from a cocaine binge, and use as an aid in the commission of rape. This abuse has earned it the infamous names of the date rape drug.

The use of Rohypnol in rape stems from the fact that the drug—especially in combination with other depressants—puts the victim in a virtual stupor, with profound sedation, impaired motor control, and adversely altered mental judgment and behavior. And it also induces amnesia, so that the victim cannot accurately remember what happened to her.

Mr. Speaker, the bill before us is a watered down version of what the full Judiciary Committee approved just last week. At that time, the committee voted to raise the drug's classification from what is known as schedule four—with relatively weak penalties—to schedule one—with the toughest penalties applicable to any controlled substance.

Somehow, between then and today, the majority was persuaded to weaken this bill, and to take out the rescheduling provision. There is no way to describe this but a cave in to the demands of the pharmaceutical industry.

I regret that the majority backed down in the face of heavy, behind-the-scenes lobbying and brought this weak measure to the floor.

Nevertheless, because it does substantially increase penalties for the use of controlled substances in crimes of violence, including rape, I will support the measure and urge my colleagues to vote for it.

However, I hope that the next Congress, perhaps with a change in leadership, will stand up to the special interests and get even tougher on this dangerous drug. Maybe we will even do it without a change in leadership because it is the right thing to do no matter who takes over.

□ 1845

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Texas [Ms. JACKSON-LEE].

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York, Mr. SCHUMER. And might I say that there is much to say about this, but I will certainly contain my remarks.

This is a very serious matter that is made more serious by a recent incident in my community. I hope this brings home the importance of this legislation, albeit I am concerned with the mysterious way that it has changed from being a schedule 4 circumstance to a schedule 1.

That is, a young lady, a teenager, healthy, academically inclined, an athlete, respected in her community, had much life before her, tragically lost her life in the last 2 months because of a so-called date rape drug.

Having come home from a volleyball camp and just wanting to spend some time with her friends at one of the local teenage clubs, where no alcohol, might I say, was served, but having spent a few hours there and drinking whatever the soft drinks were that were there, went home around midnight and failed to wake up. The tragedy was even prolonged, for it took a month before it was determined, the cause of death.

All of her family members were shocked. They certainly knew that this was not a drug abuser, and they certainly knew that this young lady had much to live for. But tragically, it was determined, after law enforcement notified some of the officials dealing with the autopsy, that they might just look into this so-called date rape drug, and there it was, that this particular healthy teenager died because of a tragic use of this type of drug.

So it is very important to recognize that we can say no, we can say, just do not do it, but this is a drug that needs the pointed focus of this House of Representatives.

The drug is odorless, it is colorless, it is tasteless, and it causes sedation and euphoric effects within 15 minutes. In the instance in my community, this young lady had a terrible headache. Afraid to tell her parents what had happened, that she had been out when she should have been at home, she tragically went to bed and did not wake up.

The effects are boosted further by alcohol use or marijuana. Most offensively, this particular drug has become a tool of predators who spike the drinks of unsuspecting young women and then rape them. In this instance, that did not occur. But tragically, this is what occurs on many occasions. So we must recognize the dangers of the Rohypnol drug.

The FDA has begun the administrative process of moving this drug from schedule 4 to schedule 1, to put the drug in the same category that carries the same penalties as LSD and heroin. But, unfortunately, we found that even after this bill passed through the Committee on the Judiciary, it seems to have been reworded and reworked, and so this drug today remains a schedule 4 drug, not because anyone actually believes it is safe as the other schedule 4 drugs like Valium, but because a drug company has successfully lobbied, to the detriment of women and girls across the country.

I will simply say, Mr. Speaker, that I certainly have the confidence that we will go back and correct this. I certainly hope the life of this young, and vigorous young lady, does not go in vain. I also hope that we add to this effort certainly the importance of prevention and education, programs like the Safe and Drug-free Schools, DARE programs, explaining to our teenagers that the utilization of any drug is not the way to go, but recognizing that the date rape drug is usually dropped on an unsuspecting victim.

It is important that we focus on this drug, focus on this legislation, and in fact, maybe at another day, emphasize the level that it should be at, which should be schedule 4.

I thank the gentleman for his kindness and his leadership, and I hope that we can work together in a bipartisan manner, and I thank the chairman for his work in passing this legislation through. I am just concerned that we move it to a stronger penalty at this time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 4137. Unfortunately, violence against women is a major problem in our country today and one of its most devastating forms is that of date rape. While this is an issue that has plagued us for a long long time, it is the emergence of a drug called Rohypnol, which was the catalyst for this legislation. This legislation also applied to "GHB" another such drug that caused the recent tragic death of a teenager in Texas.

To reiterate for my colleagues, Rohypnol is a drug used in many foreign countries for the treatment of tension, stress and insomnia, but it has not been certified for prescription in the United States. This is a drug almost identical to other FDA approved drugs currently prescribed by doctors in the U.S. and has several legitimate and practical uses.

Regardless, like many other illegal drugs, it is now being smuggled in from Mexico and South America and it is being used in the execution of the most horrible crimes possible—those of sexual assault against another person.

While this drug represents a particular problem within a larger issue this bill is much broader since it criminalized the use of any controlled substance with the intent to commit sexual assault. This bill also sets stiff penalties for those who are convicted of such crimes and attempts to protect children by inflicting prison sentences of up to 20 years for those perpetrators whose victims are 14 years old or younger.

I applaud the efforts of Mr. SOLOMON to address this dire social issue at least partially, if not completely. For it cannot be refuted that while Rohypnol is used for the purposes of sexual assault, its use represents only a small fraction of sexual assaults.

Regardless, I support this bill and what it attempts to do. I stand with the other Members on both sides of the aisle, in the fight against violence against women, in whatever form it takes. This bill is only another battle in the long, arduous war that we are fighting and that we will one day win.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON], the author of this legislation.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman, and I commend the chairman of the Subcommittee on Crime, the gentleman from Florida, Mr. BILL MCCOLLUM, for the outstanding job he does as chairman of that subcommittee and particularly for his support dealing with this heinous crime of date rape.

I would also like to commend my colleague, the gentlewoman from New York, Ms. SUSAN MOLINARI, for her recognition of this problem and her cosponsorship of the bill to punish people who use this drug to commit rapes.

Also, I would like to thank the gentleman from Georgia, Mr. BOB BARR, for his support and the gentleman from North Carolina, Mr. FRED HEINEMAN, a young marine, 45 years ago, that went through boot camp with me, for his assistance with this bill in the committee. Unfortunately, Mr. HEINEMAN is ill and recovering from surgery and could not be here to lend his support tonight.

Mr. Speaker, the use of any illegal drug as a tool to commit sexual battery and rape is as loathsome as using a weapon. It seems to me that this kind of manipulative drug use is just as dangerous and just as loathsome as holding a knife to someone's throat and should be dealt with accordingly. That is what we are attempting to do with this legislation.

In response to the growing use of date rape drugs and the use of other drugs in violent sex crimes against women and children, the bill before us today increases the penalties for anyone who possesses a drug with the intent to commit a crime of violence, including sexual battery. That is what this is all about.

Our bill increases the maximum penalty to 15 years in prison for using any controlled substance to commit a crime of violence, and greater penalties are imposed on someone who is sick enough to use the drug to rape a vicitm 14 years of age and younger.

This legislation marks the first time, the very first time, the use of a controlled substance will be viewed as a weapon anywhere in the United States. That is the importance of this legislation. The stiffer sentences in this bill focus on the criminal intent of the individual possessing that drug.

Mr. Speaker, it is important to point out that illegal drugs have been at the very root of the social ills facing our society today. Consider this fact, Mr. Speaker: Approximately 75 percent of all of the violent crimes in America today against women and children are drug related, 75 percent. In other words, in three out of four violent crimes against women and children, some irresponsible adult or juvenile is getting high on drugs and then committing a despicable act against a helpless woman or child.

That is bad enough. But this bill focuses on even more sinister problems, another kind of low-life who uses drugs as a weapon against unsuspecting, helpless women or young girls, someone who fully intends to commit an act of sexual battery against another with the help of a controlled substance. Mr. Speaker, there are literally dozens of drugs, especially sedative, hypnotic drugs, that could be combined with alcohol and used to commit such a crime.

Our bill is not limited to punishing one particular drug. There is no single date rape drug. Earlier this year we heard the reports of how the drug, Rohypnol, known on the streets as roofies, was being slipped into the drinks of unsuspecting women with the intent to induce extensive blackout periods and make them susceptible to sexual crimes without them even knowing it. The use of this drug continues to be a real concern for law enforcement, for drug counselors, for teachers and parents.

According to the Drug Enforcement Administration, Rohypnol has merged as a significant abuse and trafficking problem in the United States. Between 1985 and 1991, the DEA experienced three cases or less each year involving this drug, only three cases back during the years 1985 to 1991. By 1993, that number climbed to 15, primarily, as the chairman of the subcommittee, Mr. BILL MCCOLLUM, said before, in Texas and Florida. And by 1995, the DEA had 38 Rohypnol investigations. This year, the DEA has initiated 108 cases and the U.S. Customs Service has 271 cases. So you can see the progression that is taking place now.

Given this disturbing trend, our bill increases the penalties for possessing drugs like Rohypol to levels comparable to cocaine, heroin, and LSD. The bill also requires the DEA to study whether Rohypnol should be moved to schedule 1 and to submit a report to Congress with its recommendations within 6 months. Regardless of the end result on the side issue of rescheduling, the public at large will be protected now with stiffer penalties imposed for possession of roofies.

Mr. Speaker, any drug like Rohypol that is odorless, colorless, tasteless, which renders someone defenseless, potentially could be the next date rape drug. For instance, I have an article which appeared in the September 11 issue of the San Francisco Chronicle. This article describes how a young 17-year-old girl died after someone slipped a drug called gamma y-hydroxybutyrate into her drink.

That particular drug is not even a controlled substance; it is an allowed drug in this country. Yet that drug is an odorless and almost tasteless drug that was slipped into an unsuspecting victim's drink, and, in this sad case, she did not even survive. This is exactly why we must have an approach that is broader that just one drug. This is why we must be careful not to fool ourselves by branding a particular the date rape drug. We need to go after all of them.

The bill before us today is a common sense, tough response by this Congress to protect the safety and sanctity of young women and children. It sends a very powerful message to any sex offender, anywhere, and any other violent criminal, for that matter, that you will get the book thrown at you for using these kinds of drugs in committing a crime of rape.

So on behalf of Congressman FRED HEINEMAN, the major cosponsor of this bill, and Chairman BILL MCCOLLUM, I ask Members to vote yes on this vital legislation that will stop this heinous crime of date rape. I really do appreciate the support of BOB BARR, who now has taken over management of this bill, for his strong support for the bill.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, much has been said quite eloquently, most recently by the gentleman from New York, about the background of this legislation and why it is necessary. I would simply like to take a few moments to commend him, to commend the chairman of the Subcommittee on Crime, Mr. MCCOLLUM, to commend the other cosponsors of this legislation on both sides of the aisle, for putting forward a piece of legislation in a bipartisan manner with broad-ranging support which it deserves.

Mr. Speaker, the ability or the imagination of drug abusers and criminals to figure out or fashion or come up with or imagine new ways of using controlled substances, mind-altering drugs, that is, is unfortunately limitless. The Congress of the United States, therefore, Mr. Speaker, needs to be vigilant in working with our law enforcement officials to identify these new problems as they develop, not all of which can be foreseen, to maintain the flexibility to meet the challenges posed by new and dangerous uses of drugs and the development of new drugs, given the state of technology to manufacture new drugs.

We have to do so, Mr. Speaker, in a way that addresses a specific problem yet maintains the proper jurisdictional bases and the proper concept of federalism in the developing of that new legislation to meet these new challenges posed to law enforcement.

This piece of legislation before us today, Mr. Speaker, is a textbook example, I believe, of how to responsibly meet that challenge in a very timely manner and without running afoul of important concepts of federalism. A problem was identified. It has become a crisis to law enforcement. They have come to the Congress, citizens have come to this Congress, and said there is a problem here, please help us. We have met that challenge in a bipartisan manner, Mr. Speaker, in a way that does not expand Federal jurisdiction. It just recognizes that there is a new facet of existing Federal jurisdiction.

I was very honored last week to propose this amendment to a piece of legislation then under consideration in the Committee on the Judiciary, and working with the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON], with the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM], with the gentlewoman [Mrs. SCHROEDER], and with others, we were able to present this matter to the Committee on the Judiciary in such a way so that it obtained the support by voice of that great committee.

We have before us today that piece of legislation, which obviously has bipartisan support, as it enjoyed bipartisan last week in the Committee on the Judiciary, and I would ask for its favorable consideration.

Mrs. KELLY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 4137, legislation which seeks to addressing the growing and disturbing problem of drug-induced date rape.

Mr. Speaker, rape, regardless of the circumstances, is a terrible act of violence against women. But what is particularly troubling is a growing trend of sexual violence against women who are unknowingly drugged and then sexually assaulted. Sexual predators have found a dangerous weapon in certain kinds of drugs, and we must recognize and respond to this growing problem.

H.R. 4137 will increase criminal penalties for the possession of certain drugs with the intent to use them to commit crimes of violence, including rape, against another person. The bill puts special emphasis on a drug known as Rohypnol or ''roofies,'' which is commonly used in date rape cases, and also directs the Justice Department to make available educational materials on the use of drugs in rape and sexual assault cases.

Mr. Speaker, the Drug-Induced Rape Prevention and Punishment Act sends a clear message that we will not tolerate crimes of violence against women. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this important legislation.

Ms. DUNN of Washington. Mr. Speaker, a special thanks to Mr. SOLOMON, Ms. MOLINARI and all of my colleagues who worked so diligently to move this legislation forward.

As my colleagues know, the incidence of violence and crime against women continues to escalate daily. Criminals and would-be criminals keep finding new ways to victimize women. This bill represents one of the many steps that need to be taken in order to help stop the violation of innocent women. I urge my colleagues to take this vital stride forward.

First and foremost this legislation would impose tough minimum sentences on first-time offenders who distribute what are referred to as ''date-rape drugs'' with the intent to rape. This is only right, Mr. Speaker. These drugs render women helpless. When criminals administer drugs like Rohypnol, their victims are not aware it has been added to their drink because the drug is tasteless and odorless. Rohypnol is intended for use in treating people with severe sleep disorders and is 10 times more powerful than Valium. Unfortunately, it can induce amnesia as a side effect, which in date-rape cases obviously impairs the victim's ability to relay what transpired and to recall who raped them. Rapists prefer Rohypnol because it is fact-acting. It's effects begin within 30 minutes, peak within 2 hours and may persist up to 8 hours or more. Often times, the effects have lasted as much as 24 hours after ingestion.

Mr. SOLOMON's ''Drug-Induced Rape Prevention and Punishment Act'' proposes minimum sentences of not less than 20 years for Rohypnol traffickers and would-be rapists.

Mr. Speaker, this stiff penalty is justified to combat this problem. No parent should have to send a daughter off to college afraid that she might be drugged and victimized by a rapist. We should give those parents whose children have left home reassurance that we have done all we can to deter this criminal behavior.

No woman should have to worry about this heinous act affecting her life. No woman should live in fear that the next beverage she consumes will render her a defenseless victim. That is why this House should stand up today, for women across the country, and say to the cowardly individuals who commit this crime: no more. We must establish zero-tolerance for rape and the use of drugs to commit rape.

I urge passage of this important bill.

Mr. BLILEY. Mr. Speaker. I rise in support of H.R. 4137. We recently have heard several tragic instances of women being sexually assaulted after their drinks were laced with potent sedative drugs. The bill imposes stiff penalties for the unlawful distribution and trafficking of Rohypnol and extends criminal penalties to anyone convicted of using a controlled substance with the intent to commit a sexual battery.

I support the legislation; however, I must point out that the bill has not been fully considered by the committees of jurisdiction. H.R. 4137 was referred to both the Committee on the Judiciary and the Committee on Commerce. Neither committee had an opportunity to report the bill. Given the limited time remaining in this session of Congress, and the importance of this issue, I will not object to this bill moving forward. In doing so, however, the Committee on Commerce in no way is yielding any of its jurisdiction on this and other similar matters.

Mrs. FOWLER. Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in support of this important measure. This is an issue that is too important for politics—especially for someone like me, who has a college-aged daughter.

Drug-induced date rape is the ultimate crime of cowardice. It is intolerable, and this bill sends the message that it will not be tolerated—regardless of what drug is used.

By most accounts, Rohypnol is currently the drug of choice for sex offenders. It is powerful, it is odorless, it is tasteless, and it is cheap. This issue is not just confined to Rohypnol, however: Alcohol has always been and probably will remain the primary date-rape drug.

The real problem here is sex offenders—and we know that if they cannot get Rohypnol they will use something else. That is why H.R. 4137 applies schedule I penalties for the possession of Rohypnol, and also imposes tough penalties on sex offenders who use other drugs to render their victims helpless. Think about your daughters and support this bill.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DICKEY). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM] that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4137.

The question was taken.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 5 of rule I and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH] and the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. MORAN] each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH].

(Mr. SMITH of New Jersey asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I first of all want to thank the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM] for allowing us to sandwich our bill because of a scheduling conflict in between his other bills that are scheduled and to especially thank the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. MORAN] for graciously agreeing to be here tonight and to join us in hopefully passing this important legislation.

Mr. Speaker, very briefly, this legislation is nine provisions, human rights and refugee related. It is a bipartisan bill. It is cosponsored, I am happy to say, by our committee chairman, full committee chairman, the gentleman from New York [Mr. GILMAN], the ranking member, the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HAMILTON], the gentleman from California [Mr. LANTOS], who is ranking on my subcommittee, the gentleman from California [Mr. BERMAN], the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. HYDE], the gentlewoman from Florida [Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN], the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GOODLING], and others.

It is a consensus bill about what needs to be done in a number of important human rights areas. It also provides some authorities that the State Department would like to have, one especially dealing with machine readable fees to finance border security programs at no cost to the U.S. taxpayer and an authority of the United States to stabilize the channel of the Rio Grande River in accordance with international agreements, and there are also some provisions dealing with USIA.

Mr. Speaker, I do think it is a good bill, and again I ask to put my full statement into the RECORD.

The statement referred to is as follows:

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to begin this discussion of the Human Rights, Refugee, and Other Foreign Relations Provisions Act of 1996. This act, which I am proud to sponsor along with BEN GILMAN, LEE HAMILTON, TOM LANTOS, HOWARD BERMAN, HENRY HYDE, ILEANA ROS-LEHTINEN, and BILL GOODLING, consists of nine provisions that were originally included in H.R 1561, the Foreign Relations Act for Fiscal Years 1996 and 1997, which was passed by the House and Senate last year.

Several provisions of the act extend or enhance authority to conduct important programs that are already underway. Two of these authorities relate to the security of our Nation's borders: The State Department's authority to use machine-readable fees to finance its Border Security Program at no cost to U.S. taxpayers, and the authority of the United States to stabilize the channel of the Rio Grande River in accordance with international agreements.

The act extends the authority of USIA to include Tibetan and Burmese exiles in its scholarship programs, and requires USIA to take appropriate steps to involve pro-democracy and human rights leaders in exchange programs with countries whose people do not fully enjoy freedom and democracy. It also requires that the State Department's Country Reports on Human Rights Practices include reports on each country's votes on resolutions before the U.N. Human Rights Commission, as well as its treatment of refugees. The latter provision is designed to enhance efforts to persuade other countries in the Western Hemisphere and elsewhere to accept their fair share of the world's refugee population, rather than leaving the brunt of the burden on the United States and a few other nations.

The act extends for 1 year the current law relating to refugees in certain high-risk categories, such as Jews and evangelical Christians from the former Soviet Union and Southeast Asians who have suffered persecution for their wartime associations with the United States. It also clarifies the law with respect to forced abortion, forced sterilization, and persecution on account of resistance to such forced procedures. It requires periodic reports on the Castro government's methods of enforcing its immigration agreements with the United States and its treatment of people returned to Cuba in accordance with these agreements.

Finally, the act provides that the United States should not give foreign assistance, other than humanitarian assistance, to Mauritania unless that country rigorously enforces its laws against human chattel slavery. This is a vicious form of persecution—it involves racial discrimination against blacks, religious persecution of Christians, and the worst forms of degradation of women and children. The policies of our Government toward Mauritania must be calculated to put a speedy end to this heinous practice.

None of these sections was a source of controversy in the conference or on the House or Senate floor, and none was alluded to in the statement accompanying the President's veto of H.R. 1561. Several sections have been modified slightly to address concerns expressed by the administration. The act does not authorize expenditures for foreign assistance. We have worked with the administration and with Democrats on the International Relations Committee to meet their concerns. I have been assured that the administration does not oppose this bill and that it actively supports several important provisions of the legislation. Major provisions of this bill are also supported by a broad range of human rights organizations and other groups including the Council of Jewish Federations, the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society, the Union of Councils for Soviet Jewry, the Lawyers Committee for Human Rights, the U.S. Committee for Refugees, the United States Catholic Conference, the Christian Coalition, the Family Research Council, and the International Campaign for Tibet.

I urge a ''yes'' vote on this important human rights bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume to say that this bill has been modified so that it is truly a bipartisan product. It is supported by a number of the senior ranking members on the Committee on International Relations. It does some good and important things in the area of international human rights, many of which have been described by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH]. As a result, the minority has no objection and urges passage of the bill.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, H.R. 4036 was introduced by my friend, the chairman of the Subcommittee on International Operations and Human Rights, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH]. I want at this time to thank him once again for his steadfast support in Committee during this very eventful Congress.

This bill consists largely of items culled from the conference report on H.R. 1561 that help enforce human rights around the world or make other, needed changes to the laws involved in the foreign relations of the United States.

Among the matters that are taken up are the extension of the so-called Lautenberg amendment, which provides for expedited consideration for Christians and Jews still in jeopardy in parts of the former Soviet Union, extending the authorization for the State Department to collect the special machine readable visa fee which goes for border security operations, extending certain authorities for the International Boundary and Water Commission's operations on the U.S.-Mexican Border, and several human rights provisions relating to Mauritania and other places.

This bill has wide, deserved support and I commend the gentleman from New Jersey for his perseverance in shepherding it to this point. I urge my colleagues to support the bill.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 4036, the Human Rights, Refugees and Other Foreign Relations Provisions Act. I support the provisions of the bill that reduce the discretion of U.S. immigration authorities to deny political asylum to individuals who claim coercion by a foreign government to participate in population control programs. This provision will make it easier for immigrants to claim asylum on this basis.

Furthermore, I support the prohibition on economic and military assistance to the Government of Mauritania unless our President certifies that Mauritania has taken action to eliminate slavery.

Another important provision of the bill orders the President to submit reports to Congress regarding the voting record of the U.N. Commissioners on Human Rights on country-specific resolutions. We need to continue to make human rights a major factor in the formulation and implementation of our foreign policy. The President's report must also include information on each country's effort to protect refugees.

With respect to human rights, I would have preferred that the bill contain provisions relating to human rights problems in Ethiopia. While the current government in Ethiopia is much better than the previous government in the area of human rights, there is still much work to be done. I am concerned by reports that academicians, journalists and opposition leaders are being persecuted for their beliefs and efforts against the current government. The State Department should continue to carefully monitor human rights progress in Ethiopia as we allocate funding to Ethiopia in fiscal year 1997.

I urge my colleagues to support this legislation

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to rise in support of this legislation which would ensure passage of several important provisions which are included in the Immigration bill. Should partisan differences continue to hold up the Immigration bill, we would still be able to address the serious issues of U.S. support to Tibetan and Burmese exiles and reclassification of resistance to reproductive persecution as constituting political persecution under the refugee definition. In addition, this bill will provide continued authorization for one of the most successful aspects of our refugee and asylum law: the protection of high risk refugees such as Soviet Jews.

These measures have already received the support of this House in other legislation. H.R. 4036 will provide a stop-gap to ensure their continuation. I urge my colleagues to support this most worthwhile legislation.

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH] that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4036, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

The title of the bill was amended so as to read: ''A bill making certain provisions with respect to internationally recognized human rights, refugees, and foreign relations.''

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4036, the bill just passed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM] and the gentlewoman from California [Ms. LOFGREN] each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM].

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on the bill under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, older Americans have rapidly become the preferred targets of fraudulent telemarketers. Some of them are lonely, and appreciate having someone to talk to during the day. Many of them are just trusting, and they simply cannot tell a legitimate telephone sales pitch from an illegitimate one.

These elderly victims are tricked into giving money to phony charities, applying for bogus credit cards or paying for unnecessary repairs for their homes. Worst of all, many of them are further scammed when they receive phone calls from people claiming to be private investigators or attorneys who want to help them get their lost money back. Organizers of these so-called ''recovery-room scams'' convince the elderly person that almost all of the already spent money can be recovered—this is, provided that a few thousands dollars are mailed up front first. The cost to consumers for these and other reprehensible telemarketing schemes is currently estimated to be about $40 billion a year.

This past April, the Subcommittee on Crime, which I Chair, held a hearing on telemarketing fraud and victimization of the elderly. Subcommittee members heard from an elderly woman who was swindled by crooked telemarketers, and lost nearly $75,000—practically hear life's savings. Mr. Speaker, this woman was asked at the hearing why she let the phone calls go on for so long. Why didn't she tell her family that she was being targeted? This poor woman responded that she was too ashamed and embarrassed to tell her children. She had lost all the money that she and her late husband had so carefully saved, and she was too humiliated to admit it to anyone. Tragically, that woman's story is not an uncommon one.

Embarrassment is a weapon for these telefrauds, and they freely exploit it. Some even threaten their older victims that control over their credit cards and bank accounts will be taken away from them by their children if they tell anyone how they have lost their money. Humiliation, and the fear of losing of independence, keeps these elderly victims as easy prey for scam artists.

In response to this heartless activity, Mr. HEINEMAN introduced H.R. 1499. Unfortunately he cannot be here with us today because he is at home in this district recovering from surgery, and I know we all wish him a speedy recovery.

Chief HEINEMAN's bill strikes back at those who would take advantage of trusting or vulnerable members of our society. The bill amends §982(a) of title 18, United States Code, by requiring a defendant convicted of fraud involving a telemarketing scam to forfeit property used in the commission of the offense or any proceeds received as a result of the offense. The bill also directs the U.S. Sentencing Commission to amend the sentencing guidelines to increase sentences for telemarketing fraud offenses as defined in section 2326 of title 18, United States Code. The increase shall be at least 4 levels for general telemarketing fraud, and at least 8 levels if the defendant is found to have targeted persons over the age of 55.

Under current law, telemarketers are supposed to be getting up to 10 years in prison for seeking out and victimizing persons over the age of 55. But the sentencing guidelines have never been amended regarding telemarketing fraud, even though Congress encouraged the Commission to do so in 1994. Crooked telemarketers are spending an average of only 1 year in jail. It is undeniable that criminal telemarketers are getting off easy, and this bill will ensure that their sentences are more than doubled.

The bill also adds conspiracy language to section 2336. This addition allows Federal prosecutors to seek out the masterminds behind the boiler rooms—the places where the telemarketers conduct their illegal activities. This conspiracy language will aid prosecutors by allowing them to go after the organizers of these fraudulent activities. This provision was added at the behest of the Department of Justice.

Finally, this bill makes a small, technical clarification to section 2337(a) of title 18. Currently, section 2337 directs the court to order restitution for any offense under this chapter. The bill makes it clear that section 2336 of the telemarketing fraud chapter of title 18 is merely a penalty enhancement section, and not a new Federal offense. The Department of Justice was concerned about this ambiguity, so this language makes clear that there is no new offense under chapter 113A.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to commend my good friend from North Carolina, Mr. HEINEMAN, for his commitment to this issue, and his efforts to combat this serious problem. He introduced H.R. 1499 more than a year ago, and his dedication to protecting the elderly who are being preyed upon by greedy, heartless crooks is truly admirable. I am very sorry that he is unable to be here to see the fruits of all his efforts, and I urge my colleagues to support the bill.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the bill. This bill strikes at one of the most cynical crimes in America, fraud against older Americans. The unscrupulous crooks who run the schemes that this bill aims at has stolen the life savings of scores of honest, hard-working older Americans. They have driven thousands of others deep into debt. These con artists have turned years that ought to be spent in well-earned hours of enjoyment into hellish nightmares. Unfortunately, many of these schemes operate not only across State lines, but even across international boundaries. Often only the Federal Government has the resources and the jurisdictions to stop a given fraud scheme and punish its perpetrators.

This bill gives the Federal Government a few additional tools to go after those who prey on our parents, grandparents and other older Americans. It allows for criminal forfeiture of property used in such schemes, enhances penalties in cases of telemarketing fraud aimed at persons over 55 years of age, and directs the Sentencing Commission to increase sentencing in cases where criminals operate from foreign countries to evade prosecution.

Mr. Speaker, this is a modest bill, but an important bipartisan blow against crime. I congratulate the chairman for working with us on this measure, and I urge my colleagues to vote for it.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Texas [Ms. JACKSON-LEE], a distinguished member of the committee.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I wanted to add to the impact of this legislation as I rise to support H.R. 1499. Not only does it respond to the humiliation that occurs through our senior citizens in their sunset years of which they may be active in community life, but yet somewhat intimidated by those who might prey upon them through telephone fraud. It also impacts the mentally retarded or physically or mentally challenged and other vulnerable consumers.

If there is anything that we hear as we travel about our districts, it is some of the tragic stories that occur from some of the overly aggressive telemarketing efforts to prey upon those individuals that will be easily vulnerable to say a quick ''yes,'' and I think that this legislation helps give a minimal amount of support to those individuals who might clearly have lost their way, well-intended, wanting to be kind, generous in spirit, and yet being preyed upon by those with sinister ideas.

I do not want to see any more of our citizens and their life savings, those individuals who are mentally regarded or mentally challenged and other vulnerable consumers fall prey to these kinds of devastating acts.

So I rise to support this, and I ask my colleagues to support H.R. 1499.

□ 1915

Ms. LOFGREN. I again urge passage of this bill. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I urge passage of the bill, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DICKEY). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM] that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 1499, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM] and the gentlewoman from California [Ms. LOFGREN] each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM].

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 3456.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 3456 is the Sexual Offender Tracking and Identification Act of 1996. It is an important piece of legislation that builds on previous efforts of this Congress to ensure that reliable records are available to keep track of convicted sexual predators. H.R. 3456 amends the Jacob Wetterling Act of 1994 which requires the States to set up sex offender registry programs which require child sex offenders to register their addresses and other pertinent information with local law enforcement upon release from prison. I am pleased to report that since enactment of the Wetterling Act, all 50 States have developed sex offender registration programs and the District of Columbia is expected to follow suit this month.

The States have taken this issue quite seriously and should be commended. But despite these efforts, some child sex offenders are slipping through the cracks. Fifty-one individual State sex offender registration programs would be sufficient if sex offenders never moved out of State. Unfortunately, they do. These offenders tend to be particularly transient individuals and have already found ways of getting lost in the paperwork by simply crossing State lines. Moreover, although the Wetterling Act requires States to forward copies of their registry information to the FBI, essentially nothing is done with the information. Because the FBI was not directed to do so, it has not taken a proactive stance in obtaining this information. It is simply a receptacle.

Mr. Speaker, I think it has become clear that while the Wetterling Act has significantly improved our ability to keep track of convicted sex offenders, there are new obstacles that must be addressed. H.R. 3456, the Sexual Offender Tracking and Identification Act of 1996, will do just that.

The sponsor of this bill, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ZIMMER], deserves special recognition for his years of work to implement Federal and State recordkeeping procedures for child sex predators. Mr. ZIMMER was instrumental in fighting for final passage of the Jacob Wetterling Act in 1994, and was the original sponsor of Megan's Law, a bill this Congress passed earlier this session which strengthened community notification laws with regard to registered sex offenders. H.R. 3456, Sexual Offender Tracking and Identification Act of 1996 is yet another step to strengthen these efforts.

Mr. Speaker, let me briefly describe what the bill does: H.R. 3456 establishes a national database, using existing FBI criminal record keeping systems, to keep track of individuals who have been convicted of sexual offenses against minors or other sexually violent offenses, and who have completed their prison sentences. This initiative will ensure that these offenders, who have a recidivism rate estimated to be 10 times greater than other criminals, will be tracked by State authorities, and, as they move from State to State, by the FBI. If an offender fails to register at any time, he will be subjected to tougher penalties and—with the help of the FBI's national ''Wanted Persons Index''—be brought to justice.

Now, as some of you may recall, on August 24, 1996, President Clinton issued an Executive Order to the Attorney General to begin work on a Sex Offender Registry Network which is very similar to the type of national database program proposed in H.R. 3456. This presidential directive will ensure that the Justice Department and the FBI have a national network operational in 6 months. I commend the President on his commitment to this issue. However, this directive is only the first step. H.R. 3456 is a necessary component to the establishment of a national system and will serve to compliment and even strengthen the President's Executive Order. In addition, unlike the President's proposal, H.R. 3456 improves verification procedures by requiring offenders to provide fingerprints and a photo in addition to the signed verification form required under current law and also establishes criminal penalties for failure to meet interstate registration requirements. H.R. 3456 has received strong support from the Department of Justice and the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children.

Now, the bill in the form which is being considered today contains a few modifications from the bill as it was introduced. These modifications are largely technical and clarifying changes that were requested by the FBI. In addition, H.R. 3456, in the form that we are considering, is identical to the Senate version of the bill which passed by voice vote last July.

Mr. Speaker, sexual offenders not only victimize the women and children upon which they prey, they victimize society as a whole. As a nation, we have depleted sense of trust and security because of these individuals. It is well recognized that sexual predators are remarkably clever and persistently transient. These offenders are not confined within State lines—neither should our efforts to keep track of them. By establishing a national registration program. H.R. 3456 will serve as an effective crime fighting tool for State and Federal law enforcement across the country. Again, I commend the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ZIMMER] for sponsoring this bill, and I urge my colleagues to support this measure.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I rise in support of this bill. Mr. Speaker, I support this legislation, which strengthens and improves the Jacob Wetterling Crimes Against Children and Sexually Violent Offender Registration Act.

The Jacob Wetterling Act, enacted as part of the 1994 crime bill, requires states to enact laws to register and track criminals who are the most violent, the most horrible and the least likely to be rehabilitated—criminals who attack children and who are sexually violent predators.

Since the enactment of Jacob Wetterling, states have made great progress in building effective tracking systems. To make sure that these criminals are tracked however, this legislation does three important things:

First, it creates a nationwide system that will help state and local law enforcement track offenders as they move from state to state;

Second, while most States have established or are about to establish tracking systems, this legislation will ensure that there is no place—no one state—where sexual predators can hide and not register. This system will track all offenders even if a specific state does not track such criminals.

Finally, this legislation ensures that the most serious predators will be registered with law enforcement officials for the rest of their lives.

This legislation works by requiring all offenders to verify their addresses on a regular basis by returning verification cards with their fingerprints and a recent photograph. A nationwide warning will be issued whenever an offender fails to verify his address or when an offender cannot be located. There are also tough penalties for offenders who deliberately fail to register.

I am pleased that we have worked in a bipartisan fashion to protect our Nation's children from sexual predators, and I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ZIMMER], the author of this bill.

Mr. ZIMMER. I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me, and I thank him for his expeditious consideration of this legislation and for his concern, which stretches back for years, for the problem of sexual predators and the need to track their movements and to notify communities of their whereabouts.

Mr. Speaker, we have all heard some of the chilling stories. In Arlington, TX, Amber Hagerman was dragged from her bicycle and never seen alive again. Police have no suspects, but they think the crime was committed by a sexual predator. In California, 12-year-old Polly Klaas was abducted from her own bedroom and brutally murdered. Her killer had been out on parole 3 months, and twice before had been arrested for kidnaping.

In Manalapan Township, NJ, little Amanda Wengert was murdered by a previously convicted sex offender, and in Hamilton Township, NJ, 7-year-old

Megan Kanka was raped and murdered, allegedly by a twice-convicted sex offender who lived across the street from her family.

As evidenced by these tragic events, there is a need to arm communities with information about the whereabouts of previously convicted sex offenders. In many instances, lives could have been saved if only communities had known about these dangerous predators.

After the death of Megan Kanka, her parents, Richard and Maureen Kanka, mobilized New Jersey and the entire Nation in the fight for community notification of the presence of sexual offenders. Had they known that an offender lived directly across the street from them, the Kankas would have been able to protect Megan from harm, and Megan would be alive today.

On May 17, 2 years of hard work by Rich and Maureen Kanka reached their culmination when the President signed into law my Federal Megan's Law. As a result, local law enforcement agencies in all 50 States must now notify schools, day care centers, and parents, the people who need to know, about the presence of dangerous predators.

But we still have to do more. We need to make sure that when sexual predators move from State to State, we do not lose track of them. All 50 States have registration now. Forty-one have some sort of notification system, and 27 have active dissemination of this information to the public. But unless we make this a unified, seamless, national system, community notification will not be fully successful.

My bill will establish a nationwide tracking system to keep tabs on sex offenders as they move from State to State, and provide a backup system for the States themselves. My legislation requires offenders to verify their address periodically by returning verification cards, along with their fingerprints. It requires a nationwide warning to be issued whenever the offender fails to verify his address or when the offender cannot be located.

H.R. 3456 establishes tough penalties for offenders who willfully fail to register and keep up with their verification requirements, and requires the FBI to ensure local authorities are notified every time a sex offender moves into or out of the local jurisdiction.

My bill continues to preserve State authority in determining exactly what sort of notification will be required when a sexual predator moves into the neighborhood.

In July, the other body passed its own FBI sexual predator tracking bill, S. 1675, sponsored by Senators GRAMM and BIDEN. My legislation, as amended, is identical to S. 1675. The amendments made in the Senate all make this a better bill. If we pass H.R. 3456 today, it will go directly to the President, who has pledged to sign it into law.

Mr. Speaker, now that so many States have effective registration systems and tracking systems, we need to take the next step. We have to build a system where all movements of sexually violent child molesters can be tracked so that no predator can cross a State line and simply disappear.

This, in fact, is exactly what happened in the case of the predator whose case was considered by the New Jersey State Supreme Court when it upheld the validity of our State Megan's Law. He left New Jersey, and although his lawyers may know his whereabouts, no one else does.

I ask my colleagues to vote for H.R. 3456.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. WATT], a distinguished member of the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague from California for yielding me time to debate this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the bill. I guess I could sit quietly. This bill is on suspension. I am sure it will pass. I know that I am swimming against the tide. But there are some things that I think need to be said about the bill, and this is not the first time I have said these things about these kinds of bills, so I feel compelled to say them.

I know that tomorrow when I get the messages off my machine in the office, there will be a line of messages from people saying that I have stood up and defended sex offenders and that I have just lost my mind on this bill. That always happens. But somebody needs to talk about what we are doing here and approach this with some degree of rationality. I hope that at least some people will appreciate how I approach it.

First of all, this bill has not seen itself in the Committee on the Judiciary, which is where bills of this kind normally go for discussion. Not that the result would be any different. I would be the first to concede that if it had come to the Committee on the Judiciary, it would have been voted out and would have been reported to the floor favorably. But the bill in my opinion offends some sensibilities that we as U.S. citizens ought to be aware of.

There are two principles I hold very dearly, because I have been taught about them for as long as I have been in the criminal justice system as a lawyer. First of all is that once a person pays their debt to society, they ought to have the opportunity to put the offense behind them and move on. Under this bill, as under all the Megan's Law bills, there is not that opportunity because the individuals are then, after they have paid their debt to society, required to register with somebody and be basically branded with a badge for the rest of their life under this bill, because this one says that the registration process must go on for life. It used to be 10 years. Now we are extending it to life under this bill.

Second, if one does not register, that in and of itself becomes a crime under this bill, which subjects a person to a penalty of up to 1 year in prison or $100,000, and subsequent offenses up to 10 years in prison and up to $100,000, even if the person has done absolutely nothing else to offend the system. They just simply did not register under this bill.

Well, it offends me that failure to register should subject somebody to an additional penalty, be put in jail. They have not committed any crime against anybody. They just simply failed to be able to move on with their life.

There is a second concern I have about the bill, and that is a constitutional provision which presumes that every American citizen is innocent of a crime until they are proven guilty. This bill presumes just the opposite. If a person is ever convicted of a sexual offense, for the rest of their life they are presumed guilty of some violation. They cannot move into a community and put that incident behind them. They cannot refuse to register without subjecting themselves to additional penalties.

So the whole presumption of innocence goes by the board once a person commits some crime for which they have already been sentenced, served their time, paid their debt to society and yet somehow under this bill they are presumed guilty for the balance of their life. I think those two principles, in my estimation, are simply un-American.

This can be politically popular. I am sure it is. I mean, Mr. GRAMM and Mr. BIDEN, on opposite sides of the political fence. The President, I am sure, will sign the bill. Most of the public will say that this is something that we should not be concerned about, but I think we are going overboard and we are going further and further overboard the more we beat our chest and sound even tougher on these crimes, which in this bill simply happens to be, well, they did not register.

I do not want a Government that requires me, or any citizen, to register. I think that is un-American, and I think it is something that we all ought to be concerned about. I appreciate the gentlewoman yielding me this time.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 2 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, I find what the gentleman said stated eloquently as the gentleman from North Carolina usually states it in his reservations about such legislation as this where we see differently, but I think he is being a little bit too creative with regard to the presumption of innocence comments he made. Remember that the person who is registering here and being registered, or required to register, is somebody who has been convicted of a sexual offense; could well be, probably has been, a child molester of some sort. That is not unlikely under this provision to be the case. And, frankly, that person has already been convicted and this is really part of what the consequences are that go with being convicted of the acts that are delineated in the bill. And for better or for worse, the bottom line of why we need this legislation is that history shows us that people who commit these kind of crimes are likely to get out of jail and commit them again. It is not true that everybody does. But there is a high probability of that in many cases. And so consequently this is not punishment for some act that might occur in the future. This is an additional burden that somebody is going to bear as a result of the act that they have already committed and been convicted of. I would submit that the registration and in this case this bill's provision that give the FBI and so forth a chance to really follow these people across State lines is very, very important, and the gentleman from New Jersey should be commended for this, although notwithstanding I understand the gentleman from North Carolina's reservations.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 2 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, I just want to say something briefly. I strongly believe that we ought to pass this bill, but I did want to say something about my colleague the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. WATT], because, as he mentioned, it cannot be a popular position to stand up and speak what you think the Constitution calls out for. I disagree with him on the conclusion that he has reached and as the chairman has pointed out in this case, the presumption of innocence ends when the conviction is obtained under due process of law. I take the view of the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM]. I do think the recidivism rate among child molesters is the highest of any crime. I frankly would prefer life sentences for those who would prey upon children in this way, but until that happens in every State, we are going to have to deal with people who have been released from prison and who still pose threats to children.

So I did want to say that but also to note that the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. WATT], although I do not agree with him on this issue, has certainly shown integrity in standing up for what he believes the Constitution requires.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Texas [Mrs. JACKSON-LEE], a distinguished member of the Committee on the Judiciary.

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. I thank the gentlewoman from California for her leadership on these issues. We have worked together in Judiciary, and I thank the chairman for bringing this legislation, and I thank the chairman for bringing this legislation, and to the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. ZIMMER], and the bipartisan spirit that it has been brought.

The gentleman from New Jersey in his presentation offered a litany, a very tragic litany, a rollcall, if you will, of the lives of children lost around the Nation. He cited those names which many of us know because of the large amount of publicity that was given to these individuals. But for every one of those children, I imagine any one of us could go to our communities and cite just enormous tragedies that have occurred by those pedophiles, sexual offenders who have preyed upon children.

What comes to mind is, again in my community, the tragedy of a Monique Miller. She was 4 years old. The individual who was charged with the sex crime, the vicious murder that resulted in her death, was someone who was mentally challenged, if you will. And, of course, part of the defense did raise the question of this person's inability to understand what they had done.

Monique Miller, however, is dead. And in the course of the loss of her life, it was a very tragic and brutal killing. It was only after three or four trials that this individual was ultimately convicted. Can you imagine the experience of that parent who time after time to appear in that courtroom just to get a conviction?

I want to laws on this country to work. I believe that anyone accused of a crime should have due process, be treated fairly in the court system. But sexual predators who have been convicted of the most violent sexual offenses or are a repeat child sexual offender remain a threat even after they may have served their prison sentences. And I might say that the murderer of Monique Miller, no matter how long his time may be in prison, will remain a threat to this society.

It is a known fact that the scientific community has concluded that most pedophiles cannot control themselves. Some have even admitted it themselves. In fact, we have another very massively publicized incident in Texas where one of the pedophiles who was about to be released asked to be castrated. This is not a time on the floor of the House that I wish to debate that procedure, and I am not suggesting it, advocating it or encouraging it. I am saying that was a pedophile, an offender who himself wanted some procedure to occur because he felt he could not control himself. So, therefore, we are responsible as legislators to control these individuals and to safeguard our childern after these individuals leave the prison.

This bill would expand the tracking of those individuals by establishing a nationwide system managed by the FBI. That system would be made available for access by Federal, State, and local law enforcement officials. These sexual offenders will be required to register with this nationwide system. If they move, we do not lose them. We are able to track them. We will be able to again notify the system of their whereabouts. If they fall to do so, they face a stiff punishment.

It is more tragic than having these individuals be required to register for an innocent community to be preyed upon by this individual who cannot control their vicious desires. Thus the data base would track all intrastate and interstate movements of sex offenders, even States that have no offender registration. Let me commend the author of this legislation for his persistence. These offenders would provide the system with their fingerprints and photographs.

Let me say this: Anyone that moves into a community, that has been reborn, no longer has the desire, can live in peace. This legislation does not go out and seek individuals who have been released to disrupt their lives. What it does say, however, is that the commuity is notified, and the community is, in fact, the controller of our society and our environment. Why should they not have information that may disrupt their environment, their community, their children?

If this individual is in fact someone who has made amend, someone who has sought forgiveness and repentance, someone who is born again, then that person will live in peace in this community. But if they are not, if this sickness still preys upon their mind and they pose a threat, with this legislation I would simply say thank God that the local Law enforcement will not be left hapless and helpless, without any way to seek and to find this predator that now is in the community.

Violent sexual predators, repeat child abusers and repeat sex offenders will be in the system for life under this act. That only makes sense in light of the facts before us. Again let me say that I considered the idea of a reasoned civil libertarian response to following people to travel freely in this Nation.

I think it is important that we stand on the side of civil liberties. But when I think of an innocent child, one who cannot defend herself or himself, one who cannot speak for themselves, one who may be torn away from the parent, torn away from the custodian, torn away from the guardian, who is now with someone who preys upon them, then my voice raises for that innocent child against that violent sex offender, against that child abuser, against that murderer. In fact, my voice rises for all of the innocent children in this county. It rises for Monique Miller in my community and all other children that this legislation is the right way to go, the best way to go, to protect further our children in this Nation.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of this bill. It will allow local communities and the FBI to track some of the worst elements of our society. Sexual predators who have been convicted for the most violent sexual offenses or are a repeat child sexual offender remain a threat even after they may have served their prison sentences. The scientific community has concluded that most pedophiles can not control themselves. Some have even admitted it themselves. Their whereabouts after the leave prison therefore needs to be tracked to safeguard the children in the communities where they live.

This bill amends the 1994 crime law which now allows for the registration and tracking of offenders who have committed such crimes against children or sexually violent crimes. The bill would expand the tracking of those individuals by establishing a nationwide system managed by the FBI. That system would be made available for access by Federal, State, and local law enforcement officials.

These sexual offenders will be required to register with this nationwide system. If they moved, they would be again required to notify the system of their whereabouts. And if they fail to do so, they face stiff punishment.

Thus, the database would track all intrastate and interstate movements of sex offenders, even into States that have no offender registration. These offenders would provide the system with their fingerprints and photographs. The FBI can then release the information to local authorities where the offenders live.

Violent sexual predators, repeat child abusers and repeat sex offenders will be in the system for life under this act. That only makes sense in light of the facts before us. This is an important piece of legislation that can directly protect innocent lives and I urge my colleagues to vote for H.R. 3456.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I have no further speakers, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for the time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DICKEY). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM] that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3456, as amended.

The question was taken.

Mr. ZIMMER. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 5, rule I, and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

PRIVATE SECURITY OFFICER QUALITY ASSURANCE ACT OF 1996

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 2092) to expedite State reviews of criminal records of applicants for private security officer employment, and for other purposes, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 2092

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Private Security Officer Quality Assurance Act of 1996''.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds that—

(1) employment of private security officers in the United States is growing rapidly;

(2) the private security industry provides numerous opportunities for entry-level job applicants, including individuals suffering from unemployment due to economic conditions or dislocations;

(3) sworn law enforcement officers provide significant services to the citizens of the United States in its public areas, and are only supplemented by private security officers who provide prevention and reporting services in support of, but not in place of, regular sworn police;

(4) given the growth of large private shopping malls, and the consequent reduction in the number of public shopping streets, the American public is more likely to have contact with private security personnel in the course of a day than with sworn law enforcement officers;

(5) regardless of the differences in their duties, skill, and responsibilities, the public has difficulty in discerning the difference between sworn law enforcement officers and private security personnel; and

(6) the American public demands the employment of qualified, well-trained private security personnel as an adjunct, but not a replacement for sworn law enforcement officers.

SEC. 3. BACKGROUND CHECKS.

(A) IN GENERAL.—An association of employers of private security officers, designated for the purpose of this section by the Attorney General, may submit fingerprints or other methods of positive identification approved by the Attorney General, to the Attorney General on behalf of any applicant for a State license or certificate or registration as a private security officer or employer of private security officers. In response to such a submission, the Attorney General may, to the extent provided by State law conforming to the requirements of the second paragraph under the heading ''Federal Bureau of Investigation'' and the subheading ''Salaries and Expenses'' in title II of Public Law 92–544 (86 Stat. 1115), exchange, for licensing and employment purposes, identification and criminal history records with the State governmental agencies to which such applicant has applied.

(b) REGULATIONS.—The Attorney General may prescribe such regulations as may be necessary to carry out this section, including measures relating to the security, confidentiality, accuracy, use, and dissemination of information and audits and recordkeeping and the imposition of fees necessary for the recovery of costs.

(c) REPORT.—The Attorney General shall report to the Senate and House Committees on the Judiciary 2 years after the date of enactment of this bill on the number of inquiries made by the association of employers under this section and their disposition.

SEC. 4 SENSE OF CONGRESS.

It is the sense of Congress that States should participate in the background check system established under section 3.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 2092.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Georgia?

There was no objection.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in this great body in support of passage of the Private Security Officer Quality Assurance Act. I introduced this legislation in the first session of this Congress along with our colleague, the gentleman from California [Mr. MARTINEZ] who could not be here this evening, but has championed this bill not only in this Congress but in the previous Congress as well.

This bill will help ensure that private security officers undergo thorough and timely criminal background checks. The bill is straightforward and simple. It proposes an expedited procedure similar to those in use by the financial and parimutuel industries today to match the fingerprints of job applicants against records maintained by the Federal Bureau of Investigation's Criminal Justice Services Division.

Mr. Speaker, there are more than 1.5 million private security officers in the United States. The security industry is dynamic, and there is great pressure to meet ongoing need to hire qualified personnel as vacancies occur. Thorough reviews of job applicants' backgrounds are critical to employers, both to protect assets and to ensure protection for the public. Employers must depend on State and Federal agencies for criminal history information. They need this information promptly, but under existing law, Mr. Speaker, this process can take from 3 to 18 months.

Thirty-nine States now require security contractors to conduct background checks of their personnel, usually requiring fingerprint matches. To obtain a review of FBI records, a cumbersome, unwieldy process is used, leading to lengthy delays. Today an employer must submit prints to the State police agency which forwards them to the bureau where they are processed. The so-called rap sheet is then sent back to the police agency, which then sends these results to the State's agency charged with regulating the industry. That agency then must judge the fitness of the applicant for employment and a decision is made. At that point, if a permit is issued, it is sent to the applicant.

The existing system for private security employers to learn whether an applicant's criminal history disqualifies that person is often cumbersome and time consuming. The typical transaction provides many opportunities for the process to bog down. With State agencies commonly stretched thin by tight budgets, the time required for staff to forward an applicant's fingerprints to the FBI sometimes consumes months.

Still further delays can and do occur after the FBI completes the check and returns the results to the State. As I stated earlier, in many States the results of the background check review then go to a law enforcement agency, then to a separate regulatory agency responsible for security officers, thereby lengthening the process. The bottom line is that in some instances an employer may wait more than a year before learning whether an applicant has a serious criminal record.

Financial institutions were authorized by Congress under Public Law 92–544 to obtain criminal records directly from the FBI. Under that system, which needs to be authorized by law and was authorized by law, the American Bankers Association screens fingerprint cards received from banks for legibility and then forwards them to the FBI for analysis. The rap sheet is then returned directly to the bank. Under this system, the ABA has indicated the process is reduced to about 20 business days.

Congress created another so-called express lane for obtaining criminal record information with the enactment of Public Law 100–413, the Parimutuel Licensing Simplification Act of 1988. This is a similar process to the one used by the ABA, but the rap sheet is sent back to the State regulatory agency, not to the employer. This system approximates that proposed in H.R. 2092.

This bill will authorize the Attorney General to name an association to aggregate fingerprint cards, screen them for legibility, and then forward them to the FBI. The results of the record search would then be forwarded back to the appropriate State officials. By sending the records to State officials rather than to employers, we avoid potential concerns about privacy rights of job applicants. By eliminating several steps from the process, this system should result in a far more efficient system of background checks.

This system has been endorsed by the National Association of State Security and Investigative Regulators. As under current law, fees will be assessed to compensate the FBI for their costs, and there will be no net cost to the Government for this expedited procedure. We have made that clear in the language of the bill, Mr. Speaker.

The bill contains absolutely no mandates for the States. The States are not required to participate in any part of the proposed bill if they elect not to.

I strongly urge this Congress to join in support of H.R. 2092, the Private Security Officer Quality Assurance Act. In so doing, we will be filling in one small but important chink in the armor against terrorism and other crimes that plague us. As the bombing incident in Atlanta recently made very clear, though a small chink in the armor, this is indeed an important one to fill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Texas [Ms. JACKSON-LEE].

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

This bill falls into the category of lukewarm ideas that may come back to haunt us. It is strongly, strongly opposed by every major rank and file police organization in the country. The police do not like the bill because they believe it is a further step in the creeping legitimization of private uniform security forces that look like real police, but are not.

They raise a concern that all of us ought to ponder. When you go to a mall or into an office building or into an airport parking lot these days, you see a lot of uniformed police that look like policemen and policewomen, but in fact many of these police are not sworn officers of the law. They do not have the same restraints that Government imposes on sworn officers, they are not backed up by the same system of checks and balances and public liabilities that uniform officers carry and they often are not professionally trained. Yet all too often not one of us here could tell the real cop from the uniformed cop. That is a reason for caution, Mr. Speaker, and it is a reason that a measure very similar to this was soundly defeated in the last Congress when it was offered as an amendment of the 1994 crime bill. That vote was 340 ''noes'' and only 80 ''ayes.''

Additionally, the Justice Department has expressed reservations that the bill would institute procedures that would initially bypass the State criminal record system in favor of direct access to the FBI. The Justice Department believes that this procedure may inhibit the FBI from making the most efficient use of its resources.

Although there are some positive efforts behind this legislation, I think it is important that my colleagues carefully consider the views of the national police organizations when they decide how they wish to vote on this measure. I believe that we can provide guidance to our private security firms and individuals without some of he major obstacles that this legislation imposes.

Mr. Speaker, the goal of H.R. 2092, the Private Security Officer Quality Assurance Act, is to improve the oversight and regulation of private security officers. This is a laudable goal that most Members would support.

Currently, it generally takes up to 18 months for private security companies to get background checks completed. This legislation will enable State regulatory agencies to obtain easy access to the criminal histories of security guard applicants and contains a sense of the Congress provision that encourages States to develop standards for private security officers.

There are some concerns, however, which we must consider as we vote on this bill. Most police organizations have strong reservations about this bill because it seems to blur the distinctions between sworn police officers and private uniformed security guards. Private security guards do not have the same restraints that governments impose on sworn officers. In many cases, they have not been professionally trained and have not been subject to the same system of checks and balances of uniformed police officers.

Some Members of the House may also have concerns about permitting an association of employers of private security guards to conduct criminal history record checks directly with the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Additionally, the Justice Department has expressed reservations that the bill would institute procedures that would initially bypass the State criminal records system in favor of direct access to the FBI. The Justice Department believes that this procedure may inhibit the FBI from making the most efficient use of its resources.

I urge my colleagues to carefully review the provisions of this bill and make an informed choice.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 2092, the Private Security Officer Quality Assurance Act. Modest though it may be, I believe this legislation can provide a valuable first step toward assuring that only qualified individuals are hired as private security officers.

H.R. 2092 would accomplish two basic goals. First, it would allow the Attorney General to establish an association of private security guard employers that would, in turn, serve as a clearinghouse for submitting applicant information to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for purposes of doing individual background checks. This would help ensure that both the States and employers would more quickly receive important background information concerning individuals seeking to become private security officers. Second, the bill includes a Sense of the Congress that simply says that the States should participate in the background check system noted above.

I would note, Mr. Speaker, that the legislation we are considering today is a vast improvement from the bill as originally introduced. In its original form, H.R. 2092 addressed a broad range of employment issues, including a Sense of the Congress that the States should enact statutes imposing potentially onerous registration and training requirements on employers of private security officers. While I strongly support the notion of thoroughly checking the background of all private security officer job applicants, and of assuring an adequate level of training for such applicants, I found the proscriptive nature of the bill's original language—and, its suggestion that these requirements be mandated upon either the States or employers—troubling. For that reason, I am pleased that the bill before us today no longer includes those particular provisions.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I would note that H.R. 2092 was originally introduced by Representative BARR of Georgia, and was referred to the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities, and in addition, to the Committee on the Judiciary. While the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities has not reported H.R. 2092, the Judiciary Committee ordered the bill favorably reported by a voice vote on September 18, 1996. Given Congress' impending adjournment, I saw no reason to slow the legislative process; however, these actions should hold no precedence regarding the interest that the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities has regarding our jurisdiction with respect to issues raised in the bill.

Mr. FAWELL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 2092, the Private Security Officer Quality Assurance Act. I believe this legislation will help ensure that only qualified individuals are hired as private security officers, thereby improving the important public service these individuals provide.

H.R. 2092 is not broad in scope; rather, it seeks modest changes that would simply expedite the process by which States and employers can check the backgrounds of individuals applying for private security officer jobs. The bill would accomplish this in two basic ways. First, it would allow the Attorney General to establish an association of private security guard employers. This association would, in turn, serve as an industry clearinghouse that could submit applicant information to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for purposes of doing individual background checks. This would help ensure that both the States and employers would quickly receive important background information concerning individuals seeking to become private security officers. Second, the bill includes provisions expressing the Sense of the Congress that the States should participate in the background check system noted above.

It is important to note, Mr. Speaker, that the legislation we are considering today is very different—and, much improved—than the bill that was originally introduced. In its original form, H.R. 2092 included lengthy provisions declaring the Sense of the Congress that the States should enact statutes imposing numerous certification and training requirements on employers of private security officers. Although I support the concept of improving efforts to screen and adequately train private security officer job applicants, the bill's focus on achieving these improvements through proscriptive and cumbersome mandates—imposed on either the States or employers—was troubling to me as well as to other Members of our Committee. For that reason, I am pleased that the bill that we take up today no longer includes those particular provisions.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I would note that H.R. 2092, which was originally introduced by Representative BARR of Georgia, was referred to the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities, and in addition, to the Committee on the Judiciary. While the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities has not reported H.R. 2092, the Judiciary Committee did, in fact, order the bill favorably reported by a voice vote on September 18, 1996. Given Congress' impending adjournment, I agree with my committee chairman, Mr. GOODLING, that there is no reason to slow the legislative process; however, I also share his view that these actions should hold no precedence regarding the interest that the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities has regarding our jurisdiction with respect to issues raised in the bill.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I have no further speakers, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. BARR] that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 2092, as amended.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the provisions of clause 5, rule I, and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on House Resolution 535.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, for decades, section 1001 of title 18 of the United States Code has been a powerful tool in the hands of prosecutors seeking to address the willful misleading of the executive, judicial, and legislative branches. Over the years, section 1001 has been used to prosecute a wide variety of misconduct. Notable prosecutions under section 1001 include those of Colonel North and Admiral Poindexter, and more recently, the case against former Congressman Rostenkowski.

On May 15, 1996, the U.S. Supreme Court dramatically changed Federal criminal law dealing with the offense of willfully misleading a branch of Government. In the case Hubbard versus United States, the Supreme Court limited the application of section 1001 to only the executive branch, leaving the offenses of misleading Congress and the courts outside its scope.

On June 30, 1995, the Crime Subcommittee held a hearing to examine how section 1001 could be amended to ensure that those who willfully mislead any branch of the Government are held accountable. At that hearing, all of the witnesses agreed that law enforcement must have the ability to punish those who willfully mislead the Government. But they further agreed that such an ability must be weighed against our commitment to free speech, a balanced adversarial system of justice, and a genuine separation of power between the three branches of Government.

H.R. 3166 is responsive to the concerns raised at our June hearing. The bill provides us with the means of punishing those who willfully mislead the executive, legislative, and judicial branches, while at the same time avoiding unintended consequences.

The bill applies section 1001 to all three branches of the U.S. Government, with two exceptions. First, the bill has a judicial function exception, which provides that section 1001 does not apply ''to a party to a judicial proceeding or that party's counsel, for statements, representations, writings, or documents submitted by such party or counsel to a judge or magistrate in that proceeding.'' This exception applies the criminal penalties of section 1001 to those representations made to a court when it is acting in its administrative function, and exempts from the scope of section 1001 those representations that are part of a judicial proceeding. The failure to establish such a judicial function exception would allow a prosecutor to threaten his or her opposing counsel with criminal prosecution for statements made by such counsel to a judge in the case before them. Such threats would clearly chill vigorous advocacy, and, as such, would have a substantial detrimental effect on the adversarial process.

The second exception is the legislative function exception. This exception is the result of much work by Members on both sides of the aisle, and much work with the Senate Judiciary Committee. It is agreed to by all these parties. The purpose of this provision is to guard against creating an intimidating atmosphere in which all communications made in the legislative context—including unsworn testimony and constituent mail—would be subject to section 1001's criminal penalties. Such an atmosphere could undermine the free-flow of information that is so vital to the legislative process.

The legislative function exception limits section 1001's application in a legislative context to administrative matters and to any investigation or review that is conducted pursuant to the authority of a committee, subcommittee, commission or Office of Congress, consistent with applicable rules. I think it is important to note that the term ''review,'' as used here, refers to an action that is ordinarily initiated by the chairman of a committee, subcommittee, office, or commission, consistent with the performance of their oversight or enforcement activities. ''Investigation or review'' is not intended to include routine fact gathering or miscellaneous inquiries by committee or personal staff. While the operation of this provision is not contingent on any changes to the Rules of the House, certain changes to the rules may be advisable in the future to provide increased clarity regarding what constitutes an ''investigation or review'' for purposes of this section.

At the same time, section 1001 continues to apply to the many administrative filings that have been covered in the past. As such, it covers Members of Congress who knowingly and willfully lie on their financial disclosure forms, initiate ghost employee schemes, knowingly submit false vouchers, and purchase goods and services with taxpayer dollars.

Importantly, statutes such as perjury and contempt of Congress continue to provide a means of holding accountable those who knowingly and willfully mislead Congress.

I believe that the institutional interests of the Congress, and the interests of the American people, are advanced when unsworn congressional testimony and legislative advocacy occur without the fear of possible criminal prosecution for misstatements. The functioning of this body would be seriously undermined, and the people poorly served, if all statements and correspondence from constituents were subject to criminal prosecution. H.R. 3166 avoids creating such an atmosphere.

The bill includes three additional sections which, along with the amendments to section 1001, help to safeguard the legislative and oversight roles of Congress assigned to it by the Constitution. All of these sections have been worked out and agreed to by both sides in the House and the Senate.

In brief, section three responds to the D.C. Circuit Court's decision in Poindexter and clarifies that a person acting alone may obstruct a congressional inquiry. Section 4 clarifies that resistance to a Senate subpoena by a Federal employee claiming a governmental privilege must be authorized by the executive branch. And section 5 allows Congress to compel an immunized witness to testify at depositions as well as hearings.

I would like to thank my friend from New Jersey, Congressman MARTINI, for his leadership and hard work on this bill. He has been out front on this issue since the Supreme Court handed down Hubbard, and has worked with parties on both sides of the aisle to make sure that we moved a good bill through this House. Mr. MARTINI—I want to congratulate you and your staff on a job well done.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this bill overturns the 1995 Supreme Court case of United States versus Hubbard in which the Supreme Court overturned 40 years of case law to hold that section 1001 of title 18 of the United States Code does not allow prosecution for false statements made to the judiciary or to Congress. In essence, the Court's holding allows individuals to make false statements to Congress with impunity.

When this bill was originally marked up in subcommittee, I was concerned that legislative advocacy not be criminalized. At full committee, however, an amendment providing an exception for legislative advocacy was passed unanimously.

In a conference with the Senate, this exception has been further refined. As a result, statements made to Congress for the purpose of legislative advocacy will not be prosecutable. Not only Members of Congress but lobbyists and members of the public will be protected by this provision.

I believe that a legislative advocacy exception is necessary, because in the heat of intense arguments over legislation, positions may be exaggerated or overemphasized. Such statements should not be subject to potential prosecution.

This amendment will ensure that Members of Congress and members of the public will continue to engage in full uncensored debate over legislation. At the same time, this bill does not protect those who make false statements to Congress in other contexts. Lies about financial statements or other administrative matters should be subject to prosecution.

In addition, false statements made to Members of Congress or congressional staff pursuant to authorized investigations would also be subject to criminal prosecution.

In short, this bill overturns the recent Supreme Court case and, once again, makes lying to Congress a Federal crime. But it also includes an important but narrow exception designed to ensure uninhibited debate.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. MARTINI], the author of this bill.

Mr. MARTINI. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Florida for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased after months of negotiations and discussions within our own House and with the other body that we are finally able to complete the action on this important legislation.

I would like to take this moment to thank the gentleman from Florida, Chairman MCCOLLUM, and the capable Crime Subcommittee counsel Paul McNulty and Dan Bryant, and Dan Gans of my own staff, for their hard work and commitment to bringing this legislation to the floor.

Mr. Speaker, today, upon enactment of this legislation, we will finally know with certainty that individuals who knowingly and intentionally issue a materially fraudulent or false statement to the legislative or judicial branch of the Federal Government will be subject to criminal prosecution under title 18, section 1001, of the United States Code.

As I stated previously, I believe that the public has a right to know that congressional financial disclosure forms and other required congressional filings are filled out truthfully and accurately. Our service in the Congress is based upon mutual trust with the American people.

Citizens should know that Members of Congress and candidates seeking office have provided honest, complete responses on their congressional financial disclosure forms. Only an enforceable Federal false statement statute will protect that valuable trust.

In addition, when Congress receives testimony before the various committees of the House of Representatives, it is only right to expect that the information and statements provided to us by those witnesses is truthful and factual, especially in an investigative setting.

I serve as a member of the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight, which is the primary committee charged with oversight of the entire Federal Government. This past year I have sat through a number of investigative hearings without having the benefit of a viable Federal false statement statute. Having done so, I am convinced, now more than ever, of the necessity for enacting the False Statements Accountability Act.

Mr. Speaker, I have stated time and time again as we debated this issue that this is simply an issue of parity. There is no reason why we would hold false statements issued to Congress or the judiciary with any less severity than those issued to the executive branch.

Before I conclude, some of my colleagues in the House and in the other body had expressed concern that the False Statements Accountability Act needed to include a congressional advocacy exception that would exempt certain types of legislative advocacy from the scope of section 1001. These individuals should be assured that the current compromise version of H.R. 3166 adequately addresses their concerns while simultaneously protecting the veracity and legitimacy of the investigative activities of the Congress.

Mr. Speaker, last week I was concerned that, had we gone home next week without passing H.R. 3166, it would have given the perception that Congress was attempting to avoid consideration of this type of legislation.

Well, I am proud to say that this evening I am part of a Congress that does not tolerate the self-serving interest that too often went unnoticed in the past. For over a year, Congress has not enjoyed the protection of the Federal false statement statute. Enactment of this legislation will clear up any existing ambiguity in the law so that lying to Congress will once again have serious consequences.

In closing, I want to again thank Chairman MCCOLLUM and his staff, and I urge my colleagues to support this bipartisan reform bill.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, above the door to the Supreme Court Building are the words ''Equal Justice Under the Law.'' These words apply to all citizens including Members of Congress—but, the Supreme Court decision last spring placed this institution above the law. In Hubbard versus United States the Court held that section 1001 of 18 United States Code is only applicable to individuals who knowingly issue a false statement to the executive branch. This means that individuals—including Members of Congress—who intentionally lie to this institution can no longer be prosecuted under this statute. Following the Supreme Court's decision we witnessed numerous legal briefs filed to dismiss or lessen charges against former Members of Congress. We all know of one former Member that may have received a longer prison sentence for the criminal acts against the American people if Congress was under section 1001. This is not equal justice under the law. We cannot allow criminal activity to go unpunished. H.R. 3166 extends the false statement statute to all three branches of the Government.

It is very clear that individuals doing business with the Government or appearing before a committee are under this statute. H.R. 3166 makes Members of Congress legally accountable to the American people. I support this measure and encourage my colleagues to do the same.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DICKEY). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM] that the House suspend the rules and agree to the resolution, H. Res. 535.

The question was taken.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 5 of rule I and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF INTENTION TO OFFER RESOLUTION RAISING QUESTION OF PRIVILEGES OF THE HOUSE

Mr. LEWIS of Georgia (during consideration of S. 919). Mr. Speaker, pursuant to clause 2 of rule IX, I hereby give notice of my intention to offer a resolution which raises a question of the privileges of the House.

The form of the resolution is as follows:

Whereas on December 6, 1995, the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct agreed to appoint an outside counsel to conduct an independent, nonpartisan investigation of allegations of ethical misconduct by Speaker New Gingrich;

Whereas, after an eight-month investigation, that outside counsel has submitted an extensive document containing the results of his inquiry;

Whereas the report of the outside counsel cost the taxpayers $500,000;

Whereas the public has a right—and Members of Congress have a responsibility—to examine the work of the outside counsel and reach an independent judgment concerning the merits of the charges against the Speaker;

Whereas these charges have been before the Ethics Committee for more than two years;

Whereas a failure of the Committee to release the outside counsel's report before the adjournment of the 104th Congress will seriously undermine the credibility of the Ethics Committee and the integrity of the House of Representatives;

Therefore be it resolved that

The Committee on Standards of Official Conduct shall release to the public the outside counsel's report on Speaker Newt Gingrich, including any conclusions, recommendations, attachments, exhibits or accompanying material—no later than Friday, September 27, 1996.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DICKEY). Under rule IX, a resolution offered from the floor by a Member other than the majority leader or the minority leader as a question of the privileges of the House has immediate precedence only at a time or place designated by the Chair in the legislative schedule within 2 legislative days. The Chair will announce that designation at a later time.

A determination as to whether the resolution constitutes a question of privilege will be made at that later time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GOODLING] and the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. KILDEE] each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GOODLING].

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased today to have the opportunity to voice my support for a very important piece of legislation aimed at protecting the most vulnerable segment of this Nation's population—abused and neglected children. This legislation, which was crafted in a bicameral and bipartisan fashion, authorizes and makes critical improvements to the current Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act, otherwise known as the CAPTA Program.

First, let me point out some of the successes of the CAPTA Program. Since its passage in 1974, CAPTA has provided valuable research in the area of child abuse and neglect, thereby allowing us to better understand the extent and causes of child abuse, but perhaps most importantly pinpointing promising initiatives at preventing, child abuse and neglect. CAPTA has also provided a vital framework for States under which to establish comprehensive child protective service systems. In addition, CAPTA has provided extensive funding to States and localities for projects which have been instrumental in identifying the most successful strategies to preventing, identifying and responding to child abuse and neglect.

Yet, despite the best efforts of the CAPTA Program, the fact is the incidence of child abuse and neglect continues to rise. In the ''Third National Incidence Study of Child Abuse and Neglect,'' released last week, we learn that child abuse and neglect nearly doubled in the United States from 1.4 million cases in 1986 to 2.8 million in 1993. While I recognize there is some controversy in these numbers, there is no question this Nation faces a serious crisis. Clearly this issue needs to be properly addressed.

Beyond the issue of child abuse is that of child fatalities. A report issued last year found that over 2,000 children die at the hands of their own parents every year, while almost 150,000 children are seriously injured. Buried in the statistics of such studies are the very real and horrific stories of children like Nadine Lockwood, a 4-year-old girl from New York City, who just weeks ago was found to have been starved to death in her own bedroom by her own mother. Tragically, stories such as hers are all too common.

Furthermore the tragedy of child abuse is not solely reflected in statistical data. Too often abused children are left emotionally scarred, find themselves unable to cope in school and in employment, and worse yet, carry their abuse on to their own children and future generations. This vicious cycle must end.

At the same time we find an increasing number of children who are seriously abused, there is also a significant problem related to unsubstantiated reports of child abuse due to insufficient evidence on which to proceed. In fact, of all of the reported cases of child abuse, nearly one-third are never substantiated. While it is clear that some of these cases involve actual abuse that simply is unable to be proven, it is also true that many people report situations which do not constitute legal grounds of abuse or neglect. The most tragic of these cases is where an individual knowingly makes a false report. Beyond the turmoil these cases inflict upon innocent parents, they also preoccupy child protective services which in turn endangers children who are truly being abused.

I will review shortly the changes we have made to CAPTA in order to address this problem. However, let me just point out that among these changes include increased research in the area of unsubstantiated cases of abuse and the impact it is having on child protective services.

Although child abuse and neglect continues to rise in the face of prevention programs such as CAPTA, we simply cannot turn our backs on these children. We must continue to better manage child protection programs—beginning at the Federal level; learn how to respond better to cases of abuse and neglect; and we must emphasize that preventing and curbing the incidence of child abuse begins, not at the Federal level, but instead within our very own communities and neighborhoods.

The amendments to CAPTA, as unanimously passed in the Senate in July, continue this mission—while making much needed improvements. These changes include:

Simplifying and streamlining the administration of the CAPTA program at the Federal, State and local level;

Restructuring and consolidating various research functions into a single coordinated effort, thereby improving the dissemination of critical information on child abuse and successful methods to prevent it, to States, local government and communities;

Placing an increased and significant emphasis on local innovation and experimentation.

Ensuring that persons who maliciously file reports of abuse or neglect will no longer be protected by CAPTA's immunity for reporting. Only good faith reports will be protected; and Clarifying the definition of child abuse or neglect to provide additional guidance and clarification to States as they endeavor to protect children from abuse and neglect.

The House amendment to S. 919, before us today, maintains these important changes by the Senate and further improves upon the Senate bill by making significant additional changes. These House changes, which are supported by the Senate, coupled with the initial improvements in the Senate bill will further assist abused and neglected children. Under these changes:

No longer will infants who have been abandoned by their parents in hospitals or back alleys be denied the opportunity to be adopted in a timely manner by loving parents. States will be required to have procedures in place to expedite the termination of parental rights, when infants have been abandoned. Currently, when an infant is abandoned, they often end up in ''foster care limbo'' for months, even years, while continued vain attempts are made to reunify the infant with his or her parents who abandoned them in their first hours of life.

No longer will States, in overzealous attempts of ''family preservation,'' place children back into homes where parents have been convicted of egregious acts such as murder, voluntary manslaughter or felony assaults of their own children.

Finally, the changes made in the House will provide new opportunities for citizens—not just child protection bureaucrats—to play an integral role in ensuring that States are meeting their goals of protecting children from abuse and neglect.

With the changes made to CAPTA by both the Senate and the House, I believe there is new hope for a better child protection system in this nation. However, it will take much more than passage of this legislation to stop the tragic increase of child abuse and neglect. It takes responsibility and dedication from each and every citizen to be active within our communities, churches, and schools—to not only reach out and support children who are being abused but also to hold child protection services accountable within their communities to ensure that child protection agencies are effectively responding to cases of child abuse and neglect.

I want to further detail and explain the changes which are included in the House substitute to the Senate passed version of S. 919.

Under section 104, dealing with the National Clearinghouse for Information Related to Child Abuse, language was added to ensure the confidentiality of any case specific data. However, pursuant to the confidentiality language contained in section 107, as amended, we do not foresee any particular instance where the clearinghouse would have information on any case specific data. Instead, this provision is intended as a precautionary provision in the event the clearinghouse does in fact come into contact with any such information.

Under section 106, Grants for Demonstration Programs, language was deleted from the Senate passed version dealing with grants to provide culturally specific instruction. In general, there has been much sensitivity with regard to ''culturally specific instruction'' in the field of child abuse and neglect. This stems from a concern that in some instances true cases of child abuse have been disregarded as ''acceptable behavior'' in a specific culture. In light of the deletion of this provision, along with several other such references, additional language was added to section 201(a) of the Community-Based Family Resource and Support Grants. Specifically, this language adds as a purpose, ''to foster an understanding, appreciation, and knowledge of diverse populations in order to be effective in preventing and treating child abuse and neglect.'' In addition, language was maintained in section 105 of the Senate bill which will provide research in the area of ''cultural and socio-economic distinctions'' of child abuse and neglect. It is our hope that this research will shed additional light onto this important topic.

Also within section 106, language was added to limit the number of grants available for Kinship Care. Specifically, no more than 10 States may be awarded a grant to assist such entities in developing or implementing procedures using adult relatives as the preferred placement for children removed from their home.

Under section 107, Grants to States for Child Abuse and Neglect Prevention and Treatment Programs, several significant changes were made.

In general, the House amendment streamlines the State plan and the State eligibility requirements. Under the Senate bill, as under current law, the plan and requirements are separate and to a certain extent duplicative. The new language merges the plan elements under the State requirements. Senate language, which I strongly support, was also maintained to ensure coordination to the maximum extent practicable between this State plan and the State plan under part B of title IV of the Social Security Act relating to the child welfare services and family preservation and family support services.

With respect to the elements included under the State plan requirements, language was added to provide more flexibility to States in appointing a guardian ad litem, by clarifying that they need not be an attorney, but instead may be a court appointed special advocate (or both). Language was also added to clarify that the role of such individuals shall include obtaining first hand, a clear understanding of the situations and needs of the child and to make recommendations to the court concerning the best interests of the child. However, it is not intended that this be an exhaustive list of the responsibilities of these representatives. Under the current system, there are more and more cases where an appointed guardian has made virtually no contact with the child, while proceeding to make unfounded recommendations to the courts. This legislation strengthens the requirement that these representatives know and actively advocate the best interests of the children they are representing. Related to this, the House amendment adds language which will ensure more information is gathered with regard to these representatives.

Another key provision added under this section pertains to assisting abandoned infants. Specifically, within 2 years, States will be required, as a condition of funding, to have procedures in place for the expedited termination of parental rights in the case of any infant determined to be abandoned under State law. With these provisions in place, countless numbers of infants who would otherwise languish in the foster care system will have new opportunities of being adopted at a very young age by loving parents.

In addition to providing new opportunities for babies that have been abandoned, this legislation also adds balance to a system which by many accounts has moved too far towards a model of ''family preservation'' even in the face of the most egregious crimes committed by parents against their own children.

Under this legislation, States will have no more than 2 years to ensure that they do not require reunification of a surviving child with a parent who has been convicted of a serious and violent crime such as murder, voluntary manslaughter or felony assaults upon their own children. In addition, States must ensure that these felonies constitute grounds under State law for the termination of parental rights of the convicted parent as to the surviving children. However, we have clarified that case by case determinations of whether or not to seek termination of parental rights shall be within the sole discretion of the State.

Another key change in the House amendment is the addition of citizen review panels. These panels will provide new opportunities for citizens to play an integral role in ensuring that States are meeting their goals of protecting children from abuse and neglect.

Under this provision, each State is required to establish a minimum of three citizen review panels—with exception for those States meeting the legislation's ''small State minimum'' standards. Although the language includes a minimum number of such panels, it is strongly encouraged that larger States take the initiative to establish more than just three panels as not to overburden a limited number of panels within an extremely large populous.

It was recognized that indeed most, if not all, States already have in place panels in the area of foster care and to oversee cases of child fatalities. It is not the intent for this legislation to create unnecessary duplication at the State and local level which is why a provision was added to clarify that States may utilize existing panels such as foster care review panels and child fatality panels as long as they also fulfill the requirements under this legislation.

It is expected that the citizen review panels will evaluate the extent to which States are meeting their responsibilities related to the State plan, the child protection standards, and coordination with foster care and adoption programs. They will also review child fatality and near fatality cases. In carrying out these duties, language has been added which clarifies that the State provide the panel access to information the panel desires as to allow the panel to carry out its functions.

Because these panels will have access to case specific records, language was included to ensure that the members and staff of these panels be held to stringent confidentiality standards back up with civil sanctions for violating these standards.

I also want to highlight language included in section 107 from the Senate passed version. These new language will require States to submit a report on the success of their child protection system. Along with the Senate's data elements, the House amendment includes an additional requirement that data be collected on the number of children reunited with their families or receiving family preservation services, that within 5 years, result in subsequent substantial reports of child abuse and neglect, including the death of the child. In addition, information will be gathered on the number of children for whom individuals were appointed by the court to represent the best interests of such children and the average number of out of court contacts between such individuals and children. Quality data in both of these areas is lacking despite the fact that much time and effort has been invested at the Federal, State and local levels into ''family preservation'' and requirements for the appointment of individuals to represent abused and neglected children in courts. This information will provide valuable insight into these areas.

Under section 110, language was added in the House amendment to expand the definition of sexual abuse to include statutory rape in cases of caretaker or interfamilial relationships. Although rape has always been within the definition of sexual abuse this will clarify this to also mean statutory rape.

Under section 111, Authorization of Appropriations, Senate language was modified to slightly decrease the amount of funds under title I made available for discretionary activities. As a result, additional funds will be available to go directly to States in order to improve their child protective systems.

The House amendment also made several modifications to the Senate language included under title II, the community-based family resource and support grants.

Specifically, language was added under section 202, clarifying that a lead entity, as designated to administer these funds, may be an entity that has not been established pursuant to State legislation, Executive Order, or any written authority of the State. Further, language was added to ensure that States that have already designated a State trust fund advisory board to administer funds under the existing program, go through the process of again designating a lead entity taking into consideration the capacity and expertise of all entities desiring to be lead agencies.

Modifications were also made to the formula under title II of the Senate bill. As passed, the Senate's formula, as an incentive, provided more funds for those States able to leverage funds for services related to child abuse and neglect. However, according to the Congressional Research Service, the actual language would have made it difficult, if not impossible for such a determination to be made because it could potentially be interpreted as requiring the Federal Government to match any amount of funds leveraged by the State. Therefore, language was added to first, distribute a majority, 70 percent, of funds under a straight proportion based on population of children under the age of 18, the Senate bill would have allotted 50 percent based on this factor, and second to clarify that the remainder be distributed by how much a State is able to leverage as compared to the amount all other States are able to leverage for sources other than the Federal Government.

Related to the formula, the House amendment provided an increase to the small State minimum over current law, but a decrease as compared to the Senate bill. It has also come to my attention that the current small State minimum has been interpreted by the administration to first send all States the minimum amount of funding and subsequently distribute the remaining funds by the statutory formula. It should be clarified that congressional intent of this legislation is that the Secretary calculate the allotments to all States under the formula, after which, all States receiving under $175,000, be provided additional funding taken, pro rata from other State, in order to achieve the $175,000 minimum.

Language under section 204 dealing with existing grants was also modified by striking a clause in the Senate bill dealing with ''continuation grants.'' It was the opinion that the intent of this clause was adequately addressed under section 204(a).

Under section 206 Local Program Requirements, several minor modifications were made dealing with references to early developmental screening of children. Specifically, clarification was made that these services, under community-based programs, be optional and may include referral to, as opposed to the provision of these services. A similar modification related to this was added under the definition section to the definition of ''Family Resource and Support Program.'' Also under the definition section, the Senate definition of ''National Network for Community-Based Family Resource'' was deleted due to the fact that it did not appear in the Senate-passed version nor the House amendment.

Finally, with respect to the authorization levels under title II, the House amendment included a modified authorization of $66 million for 1997 and such sums thereafter. This more accurately reflects the current funding of the program.

□ 2015

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KILDEE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of S. 919, which will reauthorize the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act into the first year of the new century.

I am very gratified that we are here today with a proposal that has bipartisan backing and is supported by the professionals across this country who provide assistance to some of the most vulnerable among us—abused, neglected and abandoned children, and their families.

Mr. Speaker, we are all too familiar with the horrific high profile cases which sear our consciences and force us again and again to ask why we could not prevent the loss or scarring of such innocent lives. Unfortunately, these high-profile cases represent only the tip of a very tragic iceberg. As we all know, last week Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala released the Third National Incidence Survey of Child Abuse and Neglect which revealed that the number of child abuse cases has doubled in just 7 years. That report also points out that States had investigated only 28 percent of children identified as harmed or abused—a 16 percent drop in a 7-year period.

Shrinking State budgets have meant increasing caseloads. In most States, Child Protective Services [CPS] caseworkers have on average double the standard recommended caseload. This translates into reports that go unanswered and children that remain in perilous conditions. I sincerely hope that the Citizen Review Panels established under title I will help increase public awareness that even the most heroic caseworkers cannot possibly serve the needs of the children and families in their communities under these circumstances.

When the changes and requirements of the new welfare reform law are fully implemented caseworkers are likely to face even greater burdens. Those of us who are familiar with the child care delivery system in this country fully expect that the new work requirements of the welfare reform law will result in serious child care shortages across the country. Where child care is unavailable and children are left at home alone when parents work, child protective services will be further challenged to find remedies for such cases of child neglect. I sincerely hope that the Citizen Review Panels, which States will be required to establish, will help build a case for additional resources to child protection agencies which provide critical family support and prevention services to communities.

Mr. Speaker, the CAPTA reauthorization proposal before us today will help communities improve services to families through increased flexibility for child protection programs and reduced administrative burdens on States. The bill does not promote the status quo. It consolidates several Federal funding streams by folding four categorical programs into one community-based prevention grant to support prevention services to families. It will also help refine the role played by the Federal Government in helping States and communities to prevent and treat child abuse and neglect, including support for research and demonstration efforts to develop new approaches to prevention.

I want to thank my Committee Chair BILL GOODLING and Darcy Phelps of his staff for their consideration of issues I raised in the last several weeks. I thank Sara Davis of my staff. I also want to thank my colleagues in the other body, Senators KENNEDY, DODD, and COATES, whose staffs made very valuable contributions to this measure.

Mr. Speaker, I am very gratified that this crucial program was not ''block granted'' back to the States in the welfare reform bill. I think that would have been a serious mistake. Instead, this proposal reaffirms the strong Federal leadership role in combating child abuse and neglect. What does that mean? It means targeting funds at prevention efforts, guaranteeing essential protection for children who are the most vulnerable, providing funds for research, as well as valuable technical assistance, training, and data collection.

Finally, I would like to say this to my colleagues. This reauthorization proposal ensures that each of us will continue to have a voice for children like Lisa Steinberg and Nadine Lockwood whose voices were silenced before anyone could help.

I urge my colleagues to vote for this proposal.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the very distinguished gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. HUTCHINSON], a member of the committee.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of S. 919, the Child Abuse, Prevention and Treatment Act.

I commend Chairman GOODLING, Ranking Member CLAY, as well as our colleagues in the Senate for working together to bring this important bill to the floor.

Mr. Speaker, 2 years ago this month I received a 1,300 name petition from my constituents in northwest Arkansas regarding the child abuse case of Kendall Shea Moore. Kendall was a tiny infant who in the first 5 months of his life had virtually every bone in his body broken and his skull cracked. Finally on April 7, 1994, after the baby was admitted to the intensive care unit, authorities arrested those responsible for this horrendous abuse—the child's own father and as an accomplice, the baby's mother.

As you can imagine, this case caused an uproar in northwest Arkansas. However, the action that really incensed my constituents was when the court decided to return the baby to his mother. Just over 9 months from the day he was admitted to the intensive care unit, Kendall Shea Moore was permanently returned to his mother's custody.

In response to the outcry from my constituents, in January 1995, I hosted a meeting in my district office, bringing together Arkansas State legislators, foster parents and child advocates. I was appalled by the stories I heard from these foster parents. Time and time again they told me of children being returned to abusive situations. They told me of foster parents being aware of criminal abuse and not being able to testify in court. I was also told of doctors not being able to come forward due to confidentiality concerns. Unfortunately, I do not believe this tragic situation is unique to Arkansas.

Mr. Speaker, I am a strong supporter of the family and of doing everything we can to keep families together and encouraging the bond between parent and child. I am also a strong defender of the constitutional rights of parents.

However, we as a society have an obligation to protect the weakest and most vulnerable. There is something seriously wrong when we allow children and infants to be returned to homes where criminal abuse has occurred.

Based on the input I have received, there are several areas where we could reform CAPTA. First, we need to allow foster parents a greater opportunity to have input into the system. S. 919 requires States to establish citizen review panels to review the activities of State and local agencies. Specific duties include review coordination of child abuse prevention programs with foster care and adoption programs; and the review of cases involving child fatalities and near fatalities.

Second, we need to promote greater interagency cooperation. Very often State human services departments are not equipped to deal with cases of criminal abuse; nor should they be. These cases rightfully fall under the jurisdiction of law enforcement. S. 919 specifically encourages the cooperation of State law enforcement, courts, and State agencies in the investigation, prosecution and treatment of child abuse or neglect.

Finally, S. 919 deals with the issue of family reunification and the termination of parental rights. In cases of criminal abuse, where a parent has been convicted in a court of law, the legislation directs the States to have provisions in place protecting a surviving child from reunification with the convicted abuser. In addition, the legislation clarifies that such a conviction is grounds for the termination of parental rights.

No longer will States put children back into homes where parents have been convicted of egregious acts such as murder, voluntary manslaughter or felony assaults of their own children.

Children, like Kendall Shea Moore should never have to face the possibility of abuse again. We owe our children more than that.

Mr. Speaker, as we witness the continuing dissolution of the family in our society, I fear that the incidence of child abuse will only increase. We need to act and I strongly encourage my colleagues to support passage of S. 919.

Mr. KILDEE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Hawaii [Mr. ABERCROMBIE].

Mr. ABERCROMBIE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of S. 919, the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act amendments. These amendments are especially important for States like Hawaii that will benefit from an increase in the small State minimum for the distribution of funds under the Family Violence Prevention and Services Act.

Under the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act, services and shelter for victims of domestic violence are provided by the Family Violence Prevention and Services Act to States on a population basis. Small population States receive a minute allocation under this act of $200,000, or 1 percent, whichever is less. S. 919 would increase the minimum allocation to $400,000 so small States can receive a fair share of the new funding available under the Violence Against Women Act.

In the State of Hawaii, the percentage of homicides that were committed by family members is now seen as twice the national average, and it is my hope that increased funding and focus for Hawaii's domestic violence shelters and services can turn this frightening statistic around.

Mr. Speaker, I wanted to go over a bit of the chronology of events as to how this report now reaches us on the floor because I think it is instructive not only for the membership, but for the community at large, as to how a matter that is seen as having tremendous public impact and community impact is able to be dealt with by the Congress. I think it is a lesson, a civics lesson, if my colleagues will, Mr. Speaker, in how to deal with drastic circumstances that are not otherwise amenable to being resolved in the community minus the legislative support of the Congress.

In the course of that I want to compliment the office of the gentleman from Delaware [Mr. CASTLE], the staff in his office, and I most especially want to thank the ranking member, the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. KILDEE], and his staff, and I want to recognize and commend the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GOODLING], and his staff, for recognizing in turn how important this amendment was in seeing it through the entire conference. It is the kind of thing that can easily be lost unless there is an alert staff as well as an alert Chair and ranking member who have the good of the community at heart, and most particularly, those most vulnerable, the innocent among us, our children.

I had received a letter, Mr. Speaker, from Governor Benjamin Cayetano, the Governor of our State of Hawaii, asking for support of the amendment and indicating that he was aware of how important the change from $200,000 to $400,000 would be. I got that in July. I am citing the specific times, Mr. Speaker, because I want to show how it is possible for the Congress to act with a concerted effort and respond rapidly, and this is an excellent example of it.

I drafted a letter, a ''Dear Colleague'' letter, to Members, and I am very pleased that the gentlewoman from Hawaii, Mrs. MINK, my colleague, and the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. CASTLE, were the original signers of the letter, and we consulted with the staff of Mr. GOODLING's committee, and we sent a ''Dear Colleague'' letter out to Members whose districts and whose States were affected. We invited them to sign a letter to Chairman GOODLING of the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities in support of increasing the minimum, and I would like to quote, if I might, Mr. Speaker, briefly from the letter to Mr. GOODLING because I think it provides, again, an example and a basis for understanding how legislation can be brought promptly to the floor in a way that effectively serves the ends sought.

In addressing the chairman we wrote requesting his support for increasing the small State minimum in the distribution of funds. Small States were guaranteed a minimum, as I indicated, of $200,000. Congress recently increased the appropriation from $32 million in fiscal year 1995 to $47 million in 1996. Unfortunately, the small State minimum did not receive a comparable increase; thus States which we represented, those of us who signed the letter to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GOODLING], Alaska, Delaware, Washington, DC, Hawaii, Idaho, Maine, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Dakota, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, West Virginia and Wyoming did not benefit from the funding increase. Small States, of course, have the same pressing needs as large States to provide adequate services for women who have been the victims of domestic violence. Consequently we believed that it was imperative that the small State minimum be increased. The Senate had already increased the small State minimum to $400,000 in the Child Abuse and Prevention Treatment Act and was expected to include it.

Mr. Speaker, the Senate, as I said, expected to include this provision in the Labor, HHS and Education appropriations bill but obviously required support of the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GOODLING] and the conferees in the conference. The result, Mr. Speaker, is before us today. It has been accomplished. In other words, between July and September of this year on a bipartisan basis, we were able to deal with this crisis. Small States were recognized, and more importantly, the children and those others who come under the aegis of this act were recognized as being in need.

So I would like to close with a profound sense of gratitude to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GOODLING] and the committee and indicate that I hope that this will, if it has to be voted on, will be a unanimous vote of the Congress and offer in conclusion, Mr. Speaker, again a reference to the fact that it is possible for men and women of good will and acting in faith with the Constitution and our duties here in the House to act promptly on behalf of the children of this country.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. FAWELL].

Mr. FAWELL. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding this time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased that I rise in support of the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act [CAPTA] Amendments of 1996. Since its passage in 1974, CAPTA has provided protection and assistance for one of our nation's most vulnerable segments—children who have been abused and/or neglected. I am delighted to say that this is yet another bipartisan measure produced by the House Opportunities Committee and brought to the floor under suspension of the rules. I commend Chairman GOODLING and ranking member, Mr. CLAY and Mr. KILDEE for their fine effort in bringing this important legislation to the floor.

Mr. Speaker, for a number of years, I have sponsored the ''At-Birth Abandoned Baby Act''. The bill guarantees all babies abandoned at-birth, or shortly thereafter, the right to immediate placement and bonding with ''preadoptive parents.'' The preadoptive parents are given the right to immediately initiate proceedings for an expeditious adoption of the abandoned baby.

One of the major provisions of the At-Birth Abandoned Baby Act simply requires State welfare authorities to immediately place ''at-birth abandoned babies'' with suitable ''pre-adoptive parents'' who, in turn, will be allowed to immediately file for an expeditious adoption of the abandoned baby in the State court of proper jurisdiction.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act contains similar provisions which will provide for an expedited adoption procedure for abandoned infants. The bill requires that in order to be eligible to receive funds under the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act, States must have in place a program within 2 years which will provide ''for the expedited termination of parental rights in the case of any infant determined to be abandoned under State law''. Mr. Speaker, I strongly support the inclusion of this provision in the bill.

I would also like to mention that the bill contains a provision which will require the Secretary of Health and Human Services, in dispensing funds under the Abandoned Infants Assistance Act, to give priority to States which have developed and implemented procedures for expedited placement of abandoned infants. I believe this provision will give States the added incentive to implement this vital expedited adoption procedure.

Mr. Speaker, passage of these two commonsense provisions will give those infants abandoned at-birth at least a fighting chance for immediate parental bonding by adoptive parents and a permanent home. I strongly support this bill and urge all of my colleagues to join me in voting for its passage.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. SMITH] for the purpose of engaging in a colloquy.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, first of all I want to thank my friend from Pennsylvania, Mr. GOODLING, who is the chairman of the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities for yielding this time to me, but I also want to thank him and the many others who have helped us reach an agreement on such an important subject.

Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding that under CAPTA, States have been allowed to exempt parents from prosecution on grounds of medical neglect if the parent was employing alternative means of healing as part of the parent's religious practice. CAPTA also has required the States to have procedures in place to report, investigate and intervene in situations where children are being denied medical care needed to prevent harm.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SMITH of Texas. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, that is correct. The two provisions the gentleman has described have caused problems for some States. In recent years, the Department of Health and Human Services has moved to disqualify certain States from CAPTA funding based on the State's accommodation of the religion treatment in lieu of medical treatment.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, it is my further understanding that we have clarified that issue in the rule of construction before us.

Mr. GOODLING. Yes, we have. After a very lengthy negotiation we have reached a compromise which will both protect children in need of medical intervention while ensuring that the first amendment rights of parents to practice their religion are not infringed upon. Under this bill, no parent or legal guardian is required to provide a child with medical service or treatment against their religious beliefs, nor is any State required to find, or prohibited from finding, abuse or neglect cases where the parent or guardian relied solely or partially upon spiritual means rather than medical treatment in accordance with their religious beliefs.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Does the bill address States' authority to pursue any legal remedies necessary to provide medical care or treatment when such care or treatment is necessary to prevent or remedy serious harm to the child, or to prevent the withholding of medically indicated treatment from children with life-threatening conditions?

☐ 2045

Mr. GOODLING. Yes, it does. In addition, the bill gives States sole discretion over case-by-case determinations relating to exercise of authority in this area. No State is foreclosed from considering parents' use of treatment by spiritual means. No State is required to prosecute parents in this area. But every State must have in place the authority to intervene to protect children in need.

Let me also state that nothing under this bill should be interpreted as discouraging the reporting of suspected incidences of medical neglect to child protection services, where warranted.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will continue to yield, I also see a new section has been added that requires the States to include in their State laws, as statutory grounds for termination of parental rights, conviction of parents for certain specified crimes against children.

It also eliminates the Federal mandate that States must seek reunification of the convicted parent with surviving children. Given the crimes that have been specified, a murder or voluntary manslaughter and felonious assault, it appears what we are addressing is a parent who deliberately takes a life or seriously injuries his child.

Mr. GOODLING. That is correct. This section is intended to give the States flexibility in this area by not requiring them to seek to reunify a parent convicted of a serious and violent crime against his child with that surviving child or other children. States may still seek to reunify the family, but will no longer be required to do so by Federal law.

Second, the bill provides that these very serious crimes should be grounds in State law for the termination of parental rights. Any decision, however, to terminate parental rights even in these cases is entirely a State issue and remains so under the bill.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Would States be allowed to consider a parents' motive when deciding to terminate parental rights or seek reunification of this family, and could this include sincerely held religious beliefs of the parents?

Mr. GOODLING. Absolutely. Since this is entirely a matter of State law, States are free to consider whatever mitigating circumstances they wish.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding, and for his help.

Mr. GOODLING. I want to thank the staff on both sides, Mr. Speaker, and the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. KILDEE], the ranking member. This is just another indication, one more of those bipartisan bills that this committee has brought to the floor and acted upon expeditiously.

Mr. KILDEE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman's remarks. I have always enjoyed working with him, and we are able to achieve a great deal of bipartisan work because of our respect for one another. I think more of that would be helpful to the whole House.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act. This measure will authorize $100 million in fiscal year 1997 for child abuse prevention and treatment programs.

The bulk of this money will support the State grant program which provides child protective services where they are most effective—at the State level. This grant program helps States screen and investigate reports of child abuse or neglect; provide case management and deliver service to children and their families; improve risk and safety assessment tools and expand training for service providers and those required to report suspected cases of child abuse.

Our children are our most precious resource and we must take steps to root out and eliminate abuse and maltreatment. This bill is a move in that direction. I urge all my colleagues to support these amendments and pass this bill.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to join my colleagues in supporting the passage of S. 919, the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act Amendments. Child protection is our collective responsibility and the Congressional approval today reinforces our commitment to help our Nation's most vulnerable children and families.

The number of children reported abused and neglected has tripled since 1981. As more and more families encounter pressures, the caseloads at the child protection agencies increase. The steps we take today, in reauthorizing this program for another 5 years, will expand services to strengthen and support families in need.

Guam is currently receiving about $177,000 in consolidated grants from the Department of Health and Human Services to assist our efforts to combat this problem. Our local child protective agencies have flexibility in designing child protective services, investigations of child abuse and neglect, improvements in risk and safety assessments, and the training of service providers.

The bill will allow Guam the opportunity to apply for family resource grants and adoption opportunities grants authorized in this legislation. We can be more effective if we consolidate a number of broad-based networks of child abuse and prevention programs, family support programs, foster care and adoption initiatives. This bill expands the current program and facilitates the collaboration necessary to maximize resources.

Our children are our most important resources. We need to guarantee them a safe haven when threatened or harmed. We need to reassure children at risk that their safety net is strong and viable. And we need to reduce the incidence of child abuse and neglect. The bill passed by the Congress today moves us in the right direction.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of S. 919, the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act Amendments, better known as CAPTA.

BICAMERAL, BIPARTISAN SUPPORT FOR REFORMS

This Congress has already adopted CAPTA reforms several times, as part of welfare reform legislation. However, for technical reasons, CAPTA reforms were deleted from the welfare reform package enacted by Congress and signed into law by the President. Thus, the Senate adopted S. 919. We take it up today, having negotiated additional improvements with both parties and both Houses of Congress.

THE NEED FOR BETTER CHILD PROTECTIVE SERVICES

Since 1974, CAPTA has provided States a framework to follow with respect to child protective services. Unfortunately, child abuse continues to increase. The latest studies show reports of child abuse and neglect have doubled in the United States, from 1.4 million cases in 1986 to 2.8 million in 1993.

This is nothing less than a national tragedy. We can and must take action. We do, through this bill. Let me identify just a few improvements we are making in CAPTA to fight the epidemic of child abuse and neglect.

We are providing expanded adoption opportunities for babies who have been abandoned. This follows our previous work in this Congress to expand the adoption tax credit.

We are providing greater protection so that children will not be put back into homes where parents have been convicted of terrible acts against their own children.

We are providing new and expanded roles for private citizens in the area of child abuse and neglect.

In an area we heard a great deal about in my subcommittee hearings, this bill ensures that persons who maliciously file reports of abuse will no longer be protected by CAPTA's immunity for reporting. Under our bill, only goodfaith reports will be protected.

And we are simplifying the administration of the CAPTA program at the State and local levels.

There is much, much more in this bill that is in the best interests of America's children. Every American must take a stand that child abuse is wrong. We must stop this plague of child abuse on our land. Our bipartisan CAPTA reforms cannot stop child abuse; they give help to those people who can.

I thank Chairman GOODLING for his outstanding leadership on this issue. I urge my colleagues to support S. 919 as amended, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. KILDEE. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DICKEY). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GOODLING] that the House suspend the rules and pass the Senate bill, S. 919, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the Senate bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on S. 919, the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act Amendments of 1996.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. OXLEY] and the gentleman from New York [Mr. MANTON] each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. OXLEY].

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. OXLEY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 4167, the Professional Boxing Safety Act.

This bill represents months of bipartisan, bi-committee, and bicameral negotiations. Its primary purpose is to establish a State and privately run system for licensing professional boxers.

H.R. 4167 is identical to H.R. 1186, which was marked up by the Committee on Commerce on September 18, and reported to the full House on September 24, 1996. Since the provisions of the bills are identical, it is the intent of the Committee on Commerce and the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities that the Committee on Commerce report on H.R. 1186 should serve as the legislative history governing the interpretation of H.R. 4167.

I include for the RECORD a memorandum of understanding between Chairman BLILEY and Chairman GOODLING on this point.

The memorandum referred to is as follows:

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC, September 25, 1996.

Hon. NEWT GINGRICH,
Speaker, House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: We are writing regarding the jurisdiction and legislative history of H.R. 4167, the Professional Boxing Safety Act, which has been introduced today by Rep. Pat Williams and Rep. Michael G. Oxley and referred to the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities and in addition to the Committee on Commerce and H.R. 1186, the Professional Boxing Safety Act, which was referred to the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities and in addition to the Committee on Commerce. After negotiations between the two Committees, H.R. 1186 was favorably reported from the Committee on Commerce and agreed to be considered under suspension of the House Rules.

Subsequently and in honor of the retirement of Rep. Pat Williams, our friend and colleague, Rep. Williams introduced H.R. 4167, Professional Boxing Safety Act, which is identical to the Commerce Committee reported bill to H.R. 1186 and we have agreed to consider this bill in lieu of consideration of H.R. 1186. We now agree that the legislative history of H.R. 1186 should be deemed part of the legislative history of H.R. 4167, Professional Boxing Safety Act and that the jurisdiction of the two Committees should not be prejudiced by any of these events.

Sincerely,

BILL GOODLING,
Chairman, Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities.

THOMAS J. BLILEY,
Chairman, Committee on Commerce.

Mr. Speaker, when people think of professional boxing they imagine the multi-million dollar fight with Mike Tyson or George Foreman or Tim Witherspoon in the corner. But the vast majority of professional matches are between two little known boxers, fighting for less than $100 per round, who are often intentionally mismatched to provide the crowd with a spectacle of gore.

Unlike every other major American sport, there is no merit system in boxing for advancing to a title. Sanctioning bodies are controlled by promoters with their own agendas. Even the officials who regulate boxing through the State commissions often have personal financial interest and involvement in their own pet fighters. With fraud and corruption allowed to run rampant in boxing, it's no wonder that we've had so many boxers left penniless, with severe medical injuries, forced to depend for health care and survival on the backs of the Federal taxpayers. Boxing needs reform, and it needs it now.

This bill is not something dreamed up by Washington bureaucrats to be imposed on the States. Rather, these reforms have been specifically requested and actively supported by State boxing commissions around the country.

Commissioner after commissioner has complained to us that State suspensions are flouted by boxers who hop from town to town fighting under different names, ignoring failed drug tests and medical injuries, ultimately leaving Federal health care and welfare programs to pick up the tab after their bodies have broken down.

So long as there are no uniform licensing procedures for reviewing, honoring, and appealing commission authorized suspensions, States will remain powerless to enforce their own health and safety regulations, with the taxpayers losing out as the result.

This bill requires that no professional boxing match be held without the approval of a State authorized commission. The commission may be public or private, and no State is required under this bill to establish a commission. If a State chooses not to get involved in regulating boxing, then the promoter of a fight is allowed to contract with an authorized boxing commission of any other State to come in and supervise a fight.

This bill is not a cure-all for every problem that boxing faces. But it is a huge step in the right direction. It enacts strict conflict of interest provisions, establishes minimum protections for boxers, and empowers States to enforce their own suspensions.

I recognize that many of my colleagues believe that this compromise goes too far, while others feel it does not go far enough to involve the Federal Government in helping the States regulate professional boxing. But after decades of legislative neglect, professional boxing needs uniform State-supervision before it can clean up its act. This is a good bill, a good compromise, and a much needed reform.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MANTON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman from Montana [Mr. WILLIAMS] be permitted to control one-half of the time on this side.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. MANTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. MANTON asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MANTON. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to rise today in support of H.R. 4167. This is the same bill that was reported out of the Committee on Commerce last Wednesday, and it is a product of bipartisan cooperation among members of both the Committee on Commerce and the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities.

I would like to commend my colleagues, the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. BLILEY], the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. OXLEY], the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GOODLING], the chairman, the gentleman from Montana [Mr. WILLIAMS], and the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. DINGELL], for their hard work in moving this bill forward.

In addition, negotiations on the bill have included Senators MCCAIN and BRYAN, who demonstrated significant commitment to gaining consensus on the bill, enabling us to bring this legislation to the House floor today. By passing H.R. 4167, the House will take a positive step forward toward correcting some of the most negative aspects associated with the boxing industry.

Mr. Speaker, Members in the House have long considered legislation to improve the sport of boxing. Early hearings and discussions of problems in the industry date back to the 1960's and since that time, various proposals have been promoted in an effort to address some of the more persistent and destructive problems with the sport.

I would like to recognize a number of my colleagues in the House, in particular, Representatives BILL RICHARDSON, RALPH HALL, and MAJOR OWENS, who have dedicated significant time and energy over the years in support of legislation to regulate the boxing industry. Their leadership on this issue has helped educate and motivate members on both sides of the aisle, enabling us to at last reach agreement on legislation at this time. While the bill before us today is perhaps more minimal in scope than my colleagues would prefer, it does include a number of provisions that should satisfy some of their long-term interests in seeing improvements made by the boxing industry.

The purpose of this bill should not surprise many. Numerous problems associated with the sport of boxing are not new, and have proven persistent over many years. Observers of the industry have criticized it for a number of reasons including: inadequate health and safety standards for the athletes; industry corruption; exploitation of the fighters; organized crime influence; and blatant conflict of interest between regulatory and sanctioning bodies. But despite a considerable amount of congressional scrutiny and various legislative proposals, no specific Federal law dealing with professional boxing has been enacted. By passing H.R. 4167 today, the House can improve this record.

Mr. Speaker, as I stated earlier, the bill before us was crafted with bipartisan cooperation in both bodies. It is a good bill that addresses many of the most distressing problems in the sport of boxing. In particular, H.R. 4167 includes a provision which will put an end to conflicts of interest between regulatory and sanctioning bodies in the industry. In addition, the bill includes minimum health and safety requirements to better protect boxers and expands the State oversight role of the industry.

Mr. Speaker, we could probably go further in our efforts to regulate the boxing industry and clean up more problems which surely exist in some quarters of the sport. However, I believe this legislation will yield some positive changes in the industry and the House should be proud to adopt it. As a cosponsor of the bill and ranking minority member of the Commerce, Trade, and Hazardous Materials Subcommittee, I urge my colleagues to support the measure.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I recognize the gentleman from Montana [Mr. WILLIAMS] for his strong work in this area for a number of years, working to get a bill passed. I think we are just about there. We would not have been there without the efforts of the gentleman from Montana.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield such time as he may consume to my good friend, the gentleman from Montana [Mr. WILLIAMS].

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend, the gentleman from Ohio, chairman of the Subcommittee on Commerce, Trade, and Hazardous Materials of the Committee on Commerce, for his kindness in yielding time to me. If he should need more time, and I am controlling 10 minutes, I will yield it back to him, but for now I will use his time.

Mr. Speaker, I want to begin by thanking my Republican colleagues, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. OXLEY], the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. BLILEY], and over on the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GOODLING], and the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. BALLENGER], for their kindness in bringing this bill forward and allowing me to be the prime sponsor of it.

Without their generosity, Mr. Speaker, it may have been that I would not have been able to gain this recognition, deserved or not, for 18 years of work on this issue.

Mr. Speaker, it was not 18 years but 35 years ago that the first proposal to reform the sport of boxing was introduced. It was done so by then Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee. That legislation was aimed at trying to prevent what Senator Kefauver then believed was mob control of the sport. His legislation would have set up a commission under the Department of Justice to investigate fights. That legislation was not passed, and since that time there have been many attempts to resurrect the issue and reform the ''sweet science.''

The issue lay dormant until early in the 1970's, when then Congressman Van Derling wanted to regulate television's influence on the sport under the Federal Communications Commission. Later, former Congressman Ed Beard wanted to establish a Federal boxing commission. None of these efforts were successful.

Then I and some others came on the scene in 1979, and with the House Committee on Labor held several days of hearings on the safety of the sport and possible avenues of reform, and we approached it as a matter of protecting workers in their workplace. The workers are fighters. Their workplace is the ring.

Those hearings opened 18 years of discussion and more than a dozen bills aimed at the setting of minimum health and safety standards for boxing. But even those efforts, until tonight, fell short, primarily for two reasons. One was the difficult job of reassuring folks in the sport of boxing that minimum standards are indeed in the fighter's best interest, and the second reason was in setting just the right balance between State commissions and any Federal assistance.

The bill before us today is the product of all those years of congressional and public discussion and debate. Because of continual scandal and increasing fan disillusionment—and I am a fan—the sport has long ago, I think, been convinced that minimum health and safety standards are necessary if boxing is to prosper and fighters are to be protected.

This legislation before us tonight leaves the regulation of boxing with the State commissions, and it sets a basic code of conduct and minimum health and safety standards to assist the State commissions in the protection of fighters in their workplace, the ring.

One of the most important provisions in this legislation is the establishment of a boxer passport system. This provision will essentially prevent a fighter who is knocked out in one State and then changes his name and fights under the false name in another State the next night, even though the boxer himself is physically at risk. A passport system will stop that terrible practice.

I must say I think that potentially the weakest provision in the bill is the definition of how a State boxing commission should be organized. The legislation allows States to privatize their commissions. We may find that that move toward privatized commissions is a mistake. However, I also believe that the conflict of interest provisions of the bill will mean that there will be little chance for boxing ranking organizations or promoters to capture control of these privatized commissions.

This legislation gives the States the chance to bring the sport of boxing under control, and I am certain that the existing State commissions are up to the task. The legislation is, in fact, simply an attempt by the Congress of the United States to provide for those athletes who labor in the ring the basic worker protections that the United States provides for all other workers in their workplace. I urge my colleagues to support it.

Finally, I again want to thank Chairman OXLEY and my colleagues and friends on the Republican side for their generosity in allowing H.R. 4167, the bill which I have sponsored along with Chairman OXLEY and Congressman MANTON, to come before us tonight.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to rise today in support of H.R. 4167. I have worked on this issue for 18 years and I want to thank my colleagues on the Economic Opportunities and Commerce Committees for their work and assistance on this legislation and I urge your support for my bill.

It was 35 years ago that the first proposal to reform the sport of boxing was introduced by then Senator Estes Kefauver. This legislation was aimed at the stopping of mob control of the sport and set up a commission under the Department of Justice to investigate any illegal fights. That legislation was not passed and since that time there has been many attempts to resurrect this issue and reform the ''sweet science.''

In the 1970's Congressman Van Derling wanted to regulate television's influence on the sport under the Federal Communication Commission and Congressman Beard wanted to establish a Federal boxing commission under the Department of Labor. None of these efforts was successful and in 1979 our House Labor Committee held several days of hearings on the safety of the sport and possible avenues of reform. These hearings opened 18 years of discussion and more than a dozen bills aimed at the setting of minimum health and safety standards for boxers. These bills all fell short primarily for two reasons: one was the difficult job of reassuring folks in the sport of boxing that minimum standards are in the sport's best interest, and the second reason was in setting just the right balance between State commissions and any Federal assistance.

The bill before us today is the product of all those years of discussion and debate. Because of continual scandal and increasing fan disillusionment, the sport and its fans have long ago been convinced that minimum health and safety standards were absolutely necessary if the sport was to prosper and fighters be protected, and during those years the State boxing commissions have their own standards and professional organizations. This legislation leaves the regulation of boxing with the State commissions, and it sets a basic code of conduct and minimum health and safety standards to assist those commissions in the protection of fighters in their workplace—the ring.

One of the most important provisions in this legislation is the establishment of the boxer passport system. This provision will essentially stop a fighter from being knocked out in one State and then changing names and fighting in another State even though they are physically at risk. This legislation sets basic safety standards for any fight, and it also carries a provision that will have the appropriate Federal agencies conduct a study of what minimum health and safety provisions should include and also how the sport might provide a basic pension system. This study will be presented to the next Congress to consider strengthening the mandatory requirements of the bill.

The weakest provision in the bill is the definition of how a State boxing commission should be organized. This legislation allows States to privatize their commissions. We may find that the move toward privatized commissions is a mistake. However, I also believe that the conflict of interest provisions of the bill will mean that there will be little chance for boxing ranking organizations or promoters to capture control of key commissions—even under privatization. I want to commend my colleagues on the Commerce Committee for their effort on this provision. I believe that as the State commissions are strengthened then there will be less reason for States to consider privatization.

This legislation gives the States the chance to bring the sport of boxing under control and I am certain that the existing commissions will be up to the task, with our assistance. If we do not take this action today, or if the States do not live up to the challenge, then I believe we will see the continued downward spiral of both the sport and fan confidence.

This legislation is, in fact, simply an attempt to provide for folks who labor in the ring the basic worker protections we provide for almost all other workers. The decentralized nature of the sport has promoted minimum regulation because those States that enforce strict standards simply lose future fights. This flaw has denied fighters basic protections and the result has been needless injury and death.

The House of Representatives has passed reforms one other time—only to have the bill die in the Senate. Senator MCCAIN has worked tirelessly on this legislation and is in agreement with the House's bipartisan proposal. Let's not deny fighters these reforms; they are long overdue.

Mr. MANTON. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, in closing, let me just again thank the gentleman from Montana for his leadership. As all of you know, this is PAT WILLIAMS' last term, he is retiring, will be leaving Congress after a distinguished number of years here. This is in many ways a tribute to PAT WILLIAMS and his dedicated service here in the Congress. I wanted to point that out to the Members and for the record.

Also, to thank the gentleman from New York, Mr. MANTON, my ranking member; also the gentleman from Virginia, Mr. BLILEY, the chairman; the gentleman from Michigan, Mr. DINGELL, as well, the ranking member; Senator MCCAIN who had worked so feverishly on this bill; and last, the gentleman from New Mexico, BILL RICHARDSON, who has had an interest in this issue and was one of those I had mentioned that wanted to go further with this legislation but was kind enough to work on a compromise with an understanding that we would work together in the next Congress on some other legislation dealing with the boxing issue.

Mr. Speaker, I ask for a favorable consideration of the bill, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds.

I would thank our friend and colleague, Senator MCCAIN, who I think, as everyone interested in this bill knows, started the process in this Congress in the Senate and has worked tirelessly, even though a Senator, to help get this bill to the floor of the House tonight. I do not think we would have gotten there without Senator MCCAIN and we are very grateful to him.

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the Professional Boxing Safety Act of 1996. This legislation establishes minimum health and safety requirements for professional boxers and will improve the ability of State authorized boxing commissions to properly oversee professional boxing matches.

Currently, State athletic commissions have differing policies with regard to boxing. In one State, boxers, promoters, and managers may be required to meet certain standards, while another State may have no requirements or safety and health standards at all. The bill which we are considering today will make it easier for States to share information on suspensions of boxers and will help to ensure that all boxing matches are properly supervised by the appropriate State officials.

I would like to acknowledge the personal interest and hard work of the sponsors of the bill, Representative PAT WILLIAMS and Representative MICHAEL OXLEY. As a colleague of mine on the Economic and Educational Opportunities Committee, PAT WILLIAMS' effort over the years with regard to issues in the sport of boxing has helped to focus attention on the seriousness of the problems which exist in the sport and which, hopefully, will be reduced as a result of this legislation. I also appreciate the efforts of the athletic commission in my State of Pennsylvania and their assistance in improving the bill.

H.R. 4167 is identical to H.R. 1186, as reported by the Committee on Commerce on September 18, 1996. H.R. 1186 was introduced by Representative MICHAEL OXLEY on March 9, 1995 and referred to the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities, and in addition, to the Committee on Commerce, which ordered the bill favorably reported by voice vote. Given the impending adjournment and since I support the Commerce Committee reported bill, I saw no reason to slow the legislative process, thus the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities did not report H.R. 1186 and I intend no prejudice to jurisdiction by these events.

H.R. 4167 is being considered today in lieu of H.R. 1186 and the legislative history which accompanies H.R. 1186 should be deemed to be part of the legislative history of H.R. 4167. The jurisdiction of the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities and the Committee on Commerce should not be prejudiced by these events.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 4167, the Professional Boxing Safety Act of 1996. But, I want to express some serious reservations that I have with this piece of legislation.

Let me start out by saying thank you to the many people that have worked on professional boxing legislation this year and in the past: Senator MCCAIN; Senators ROTH of Delaware; Bryan of Nevada; DORGAN of North Dakota; PAT WILLIAMS; MAJOR OWENS; TOM MANTON; and Jim Florio.

I would especially like to thank Chairman BLILEY, MIKE OXLEY, and Ranking Member JOHN DINGELL for their work in shepherding this bill through a reluctant Commerce Committee. Finally, I would like to thank Gary Galemore of the Congressional Research Service who has crafted various boxing bill's since 1977.

Since my initial election to the House in 1983, I have associated myself with Congressional efforts to enact meaningful reform that adequately addresses the serious problems that plague the professional boxing world.

Although these efforts were initiated by Senator Estes Kefauver in the 1960s, Congress has been unable to enact meaningful reform. Numerous hearings and investigations have uncovered a world of improprieties that range from the influence of organized crime to atrocious health adn safety conditions for professional boxers.

Consider a sport that is heavily influenced by the likes of Don King, a convicted felon who could not testify before congressional committees because he was under a perennial FBI investigation.

The most notable discovery of these investigations is the existence of a haphazard patchwork of state rules governing the sport of boxing. This non-system of health and safety standards endangers the lives of thousands of young men who pursue boxing careers as a form of employment.

Consider a sport that will not allow Tommy Morrison to fight in New York because he has tested HIV positive, ye Morrison can go to another State that has no testing requirements and fight.

Boxing enthusiasts both in Congress and in the industry have agreed that legislation should require some form of Federal oversight to properly implement health and safety standards.

Let me make some points to my colleagues who argue that Congress has no role in the affairs of boxing. The provisions of the McCain-Oxley bill fit comfortably under the broad reach of the Commerce Clause. The interstate character of the industry has been recognized by the Supreme Count in connection with anti-trust regulation. The Court held that ''the promotion of professional championship boxing contests on a multistate basis, coupled with sale of rights to televise, broadcast, and film the contests for interstate transmission'' constitutes interstate commerce.

RESERVATIONS WITH THE MC CAIN-OXLEY BILL

Because I believe the McCain-Oxley bill is a good first step—particularly the inclusion of the Dingell amendment—I shall support it. However, I believe the bill comes up short in critical areas. I am afraid that without some degree of Federal oversight the unsavory elements of boxing will retain their influence with state boxing commissions and continue to work their will.

Simply put the bill does not address the main problem with boxing standards: lack of enforcement.

The bill's reliance on U.S. Attorneys to enforce the health and safety provisions is an extraordinary leap of faith on the part of this Congress. However, I commend the bill's authors for their efforts to include provisions designed to increase the interaction of state boxing officials and local law enforcement.

Without specific enforcement mechanisms designed to administer the legislation's new standards, we are forced to rely on state boxing commissions to police the sport. If we have learned anything since Estes Kefauver first began investigating boxing, it is that state boxing commissions—with several notable exceptions like New York and Nevada—are incapable, unwilling, or deliberately choosing not to enforce their own rules.

While I recognize the political constraints of enacting boxing legislation, I still feel that we will need to provide some legitimizing entity that allows honorable boxing interests to take the reins and lead the boxing industry to eventual self-regulation. We need to motivate the industry to clean up its own house.

I have maintained all along that this is the bill that Don King supports because it will put to rest the annual congressional review of the boxing industry. But I have retained assurances from Senator MCCAIN that Congress will not abandon this issue. We intend to monitor the effectiveness of this bill and if necessary will craft further legislation to right the wrongs that plague the boxing industry.

I have received assurances that my concerns will receive scrutiny either from a General Accounting Office [GAO] study, a President Commission on boxing, or both.

I encourage my colleagues to join me in issuing a challenge to the State Boxing Commissioners: Clean up the sport, or Congress will.

Mr. Speaker, I am supporting the McCain-Oxley legislation because it makes headway in two important areas.

First, this bill takes the important step of creating minimal Federal health and safety standards. This will send an important signal to the boxing industry that certain standards have to be met in order to conduct a match. Most importantly, this will set precedent in getting Congress involved in a serious matter that has for too long been overlooked.

Second, the bill includes a provision crafted by Ranking Member Dingell that will prohibit the numerous conflicts of interest that permeate the relationship of regulators and those regulated. I sincerely believe that this provision will go a long way in cleaning up the less-than-reputable business relationships that have damaged the integrity of the sport.

I am supporting this measure because I love the sport of boxing. Let me again say that this is the best bill that Congress can enact. But you can be sure that—unless real reform becomes apparent to Congress—this is not the last round of this fight.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, the House Commerce Committee has a long history of investigating problems in professional boxing. Since 1965, the committee has held numerous hearings and considered a broad array of legislation in this area. Over the years, persistent allegations of serious improprieties have plagued professional boxing, including: First, inadequate health and safety protections for boxers; second, organized crime influence; third, boxer exploitation; fourth, fan deception, such as mismatches and fixed contests; fifth, blatant conflicts of interest between regulators and those who promote and arrange matches; sixth, market monopolization; seventh, the industry's inability to police itself; and eighth, the inadequacy of existing regulation at the State and local levels. Despite a variety of efforts, no law has been enacted to date.

During the past few weeks, Representative MANTON and I have worked with Chairmen BLILEY and OXLEY, Representative WILLIAMS, Senators MCCAIN and BRYAN, and with others, to seek a consensus on this legislation. Last week, the Commerce Committee reported the same bill we are considering today by voice vote. I believe this compromise represents a positive step forward in trying to address some of the most egregious problems in the boxing industry.

In particular, I support the bill because it includes a provision that prohibits State boxing regulators from contracting with, belonging to, or receiving compensation from the boxing organizations they are charged with regulating. This should help address conflicts of interest between State regulators and the industry. It will not clean up all problems in the industry. But it is a positive step. It will lend credibility to State regulatory activities and prohibit incestuous relationships that too many State officials have developed with the boxing industry.

There are those who argue the bill does not go far enough and others who argue it goes too far. On balance, I believe the bill represents a sound bipartisan compromise that will strengthen State regulatory activities and promote improved health and safety standards.

I want to single out two Members for their contributions and leadership in this area. First, I commend our colleague, Mr. RICHARDSON. Over the years, he has authored several bills to improve oversight and regulation of the boxing industry. I understand his concerns that this bill does not go as far as he would prefer. Despite his misgivings, Mr. RICHARDSON has continued to be a constructive force in forging this bipartisan compromise. His efforts are greatly appreciated.

Second, I commend my good friend from Montana [Mr. WILLIAMS], the sponsor of this legislation. He has made many lasting contributions to the debate in this particular area. Unfortunately, he has announced his retirement at the end of this Congress. All of us will miss the leadership he has exhibited during his distinguished tenure in this body on this bill and, more importantly, on many other issues of national concern.

I urge all my colleagues to support this bipartisan legislation and yield back the time of my balance.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BURTON of Indiana). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. OXLEY] that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4167.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

JOINT EXPLANATORY STATEMENT OF THE COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE

The managers on the part of the House and the Senate at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the bill (S. 640), to provide for the conservation and development of water and related resources, to authorize the Secretary of the Army to construct various projects for improvements to rivers and harbors of the United States, and for other purposes, submit the following joint statement to the House and the Senate in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the managers and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The House amendment struck all of the Senate bill after the enacting clause and inserted a substitute text.

The Senate recedes from its disagreement to the amendment of the House with an amendment that is a substitute for the Senate bill and the House amendment. The differences between the Senate bill, the House amendment, and the substitute agreed to in conference are noted below, except for clerical corrections, conforming changes made necessary by agreements reached by the conferees, and minor drafting and clerical changes.

TITLE II—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 201 COST SHARING FOR DREDGED MATERIAL DISPOSAL AREAS

House §201, Senate §336—Senate Recedes with an amendment to Subsections (d) and (g).

This section assures a consistent approach to the Federal and non-Federal responsibilities for providing dredged material disposal areas. By requiring the same cost sharing for disposal activities, whether they involve open water discharge or discharge into confined sites or similar methods, non-Federal project sponsors will have greater certainty regarding their cost sharing responsibilities during project development. Importantly, this section will result in benefits to the aquatic environment by reducing inordinate pressure for open water disposal, which may be less costly but may, in some cases, not be preferable from an environmental point of view.

To address situations in which projects involving dredged material disposal facilities could be inadvertently disadvantaged by the provisions of this section, the section includes a provision that assures that no increase in non-Federal costs will result from its application. Among the projects that will not have their non-Federal share increased are the modification or enlargement of existing confined dredged material disposal facilities at Norfolk Harbor, Virginia; Cleveland Harbor, Ohio and Green Bay Harbor, Wisconsin.

SEC. 202 FLOOD CONTROL POLICY

House §202, no comparable Senate section—Senate recedes with an amendment.

The conferees have included several provisions in section 202 which modify the flood control program of the Corps of Engineers, reflecting an evolution in national flood control policy. The conferees have deleted the provision in the House bill to allow additional review of the proposal without prejudice to its substance. The conferees expect the Corps to continue to consider nonstructural alternatives as required by existing law, and encourage the Corps to improve its efforts at considering nonstructural alternatives in its project study and formulation. Such consideration should include watershed management, wetlands restoration, elevation, and relocation. The Corps is also encouraged to explore alternatives which may be implemented by others, beyond the authority of the Corps. Examples of such alternatives include changes in zoning or development patterns by local officials. Because the Corps has no authority to implement such recommendations, such options are generally not explored or displayed in Corps study documents. However, such alternatives could, in some cases, result in a more effective flood protection program at reduced cost to both Federal and non-Federal interests.

Such alternatives are consistent with current approaches to flood control and recent congressional actions related to reducing Federal expenditures for flooding. For example, Congress enacted the Hazard Mitigation and Flood Damage Reduction Act of 1993, in direct response to the disastrous flooding in the Midwest in 1993. This law allows for increased use of relocation in response to flooding. It would be prudent for the Corps to also increase its review of nonstructural alternatives prior to flooding.

The conferees on the part of the House have receded to the Senate and deleted subsection 202(f) of the House bill. Subsection (f) would have amended section 73 of the Water Resources Development Act of 1974 to place a greater emphasis on including proposals for nonstructural alternatives to reduce or prevent flood damages in the surveying, planning or design of projects for flood protection.

202(a) Flood Control Cost Sharing.—House §202, Senate §337—Senate recedes with an amendment.

202(b) Ability to Pay.—House §202(b)—Senate recedes with an amendment.

The continuing problem of non-Federal project sponsors' ability to provide the required cost sharing for flood control projects has been addressed by this legislation. First enacted in the Water Resources Development act (WRDA) of 1986 and modified in WRDAs of 1990 and 1992, the Corps of Engineers has implemented congressional direction concerning ability-to-pay in a manner that has resulted in little assistance to financially distressed communities in need of relief from flooding. Section 202 addresses this problem with specific guidance to the Secretary. It is essential that prudent, yet meaningful ability-to-pay procedures to implemented. This is especially important in light of the increase in the non-Federal share of project costs for future project authorizations that is provided for in section 202. The Secretary's progress in implementing this section.

202(c) Flood Plain Management Plans.—House §202(c), no comparable Senate section—Senate recedes with an amendment.

202(d) Nonstructural Flood Control Policy.—House §202(d), no comparable Senate section—Senate recedes.

202(g) Vegetation Management Guidelines.—No comparable House of Senate section.

202(h) Risk-Based Analysis Methodology.—Senate §317, no comparable House section—House recedes with an amendment.

SEC. 203 COST SHARING FOR FEASIBILITY STUDIES

House §203, Senate §314—Senate recedes with an amendment.

This section addresses the chronic problem of excessive, unpredictable cost increases that non-Federal sponsors incur in participating with the Corps in feasibility studies. The provision allows that, except in limited circumstances, study costs in excess of the amount specified in the feasibility cost-sharing agreement may be repaid by the non-Federal study sponsor after the project is authorized for construction. The Corps is expected to improve its procedures for preparing study cost estimates and to work with non-Federal study sponsors as full partners in the development and conduct of studies.

It has been brought to the attention of the conference committee that the Corps is administratively shortening the period allowed for reconnaissance studies and is requiring its field offices to complete such studies for $100,000. While the Corps' desire to expedite the planning process is admirable, it is believed that there are potential shortcomings in this approach. First, it may reduce the amount of information available to potential non-Federal feasibility study sponsors on the likelihood of feasible and acceptable project alternatives. Second, it potentially increases the amount of time, effort and funds that will be required in the cost-shared feasbility study. Third, the policy may not be flexible enough to address those water resources issues that are complex or geographically broad. Implementing any policy that has a high likelihood of increasing non-Federal costs, but whose effect on shortening the overall study process is speculative, would not serve the long-term infrastructure needs of the Nation. The Corps is to address these concerns as it implements the policy.

House §215, Senate §303—House recedes with an amendment to Subsections (a), (b) and (c).

This section reflects a comprehensive initiative for improving the safety of the Nation's dams with a flexible, non-regulatory approach to dam safety issues. By providing financial incentives for training, research, and data collection and by facilitating intergovernmental coordination and the exchange of information, state and local governments and non-governmental entities will be better equipped to address dam safety issues. This section does not affect Federal responsibilities relating to the construction or operation of dams, or to the regulation, permitting or licensing of dams, by the Corps of Engineers, the Bureau of Reclamation, the Tennessee Valley Authority, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, or other Federal agencies.

SEC. 227 SHORE PROTECTION

House §228, Senate §334—Senate recedes with amendments to Subsections (b) and (c).

This section addresses recent policy decisions made by the Corps to reduce its role in the implementation of projects designed to reduce shoreline erosion damages. Such projects are important to preserving economic vitality of the Nation's coastal areas. These projects provide essential protection against devastating storms and often yield substantial benefits to recreation as well. Shore protection projects are subject to the same technical, environmental and economic analysis as other types of water resources projects. While budget realities are of great concern, the Corps' role in such projects should be arbitrarily end. The Corps is to continue to pursue feasible projects on an equal footing with other water resources projects.

SEC. 228 CONDITIONS FOR PROJECT DEAUTHORIZATIONS

House §229, Senate §208—House recedes with an amendment.

SEC. 229 SUPPORT OF ARMY CIVIL WORKS PROGRAM

House §230, Senate §310—Senate recedes with an amendment.

The conferees on the part of the House have receded to the Senate on House amendment section 581, Huntington, West Virginia. That section would have authorized the Secretary to enter into a cooperative agreement with Marshall University to provide technical assistance to the Center for Environmental, Geotechnical and Applied Sciences. The new authority for the Secretary contained in section 229, Support of Army Civil Works Program, is sufficient to allow the Secretary to enter into the agreement contemplated by House section 581. Therefore, the Secretary is directed to pursue an appropriate cooperative agreement with Marshall University under section 229 as expeditiously as practicable.

SEC. 237 HOPPER DREDGES

House §517, no comparable Senate section—Senate recedes with an amendment.

This section would establish a program to increase the Corps use of private dredging equipment by placing the federal dredge Wheeler in a ready reserve status. In implementing the program, the Secretary would be required to develop and implement procedures to ensure that private hopper dredging capacity is available to meet routine and time-sensitive dredging needs. Although the managers expect the private dredging industry to be able to meet many navigation needs, because the Wheeler will be in ready reserve status, the procedures should allow for the Wheeler to be placed into service within a few days of a need arising. Should an emergency situation arise in any region, the program would allow for the Wheeler to be transferred from ready reserve status and to be placed into service in a few days, rather than waiting for as much as two weeks, or longer, for one of the remaining Federal dredges to be transferred to the area.

The Secretary would evaluate the results of the program periodically by reporting to the appropriate Congressional Committees on the impact of the program on private industry and Corps hopper dredge costs, responsiveness, and capacity.

Over the past ten years, the port communities in the Pacific Northwest and the Middle Atlantic have been heavily dependent on the Corps hopper dredges, the Yaquina, the Essayons, and the McFarland, respectively. These vessels are being used to meet the navigation dredging needs of their respective areas. As a consequence, these port communities have expressed concern that the implementation of a program to increase the reliance on private industry dredges could have an adverse effect on navigation. To reassure these areas, the managers have included language directing the Secretary not to reduce the availability and utilization of Federal hopper dredge vessels on the Pacific and Atlantic coasts of the United States to meet the navigation dredging needs.

The conference agreement combines these three sections into new section 516. In combining these sections, the managers have sought to avoid duplication in the provisions, but not to reduce the effectiveness of the provisions.

SEC. 528 EVERGLADES AND SOUTH FLORIDA ECOSYSTEM RESTORATION

Senate §207, no comparable House section—House recedes with an amendment.

This section, and related sections authorizing Canal 51 and Canal 111 activities, authorizes the restoration, preservation, and protection of the South Florida ecosystem. The provision requires the Secretary, in consultation with the South Florida Ecosystem Restoration Task Force (Task Force), to develop a comprehensive plan involving Army Corps water resources projects for the purpose of Everglades restoration.

Successful collaboration among the Army, other Federal agencies, the State of Florida, and Indian tribes has occurred in recent years on this effort and is expected to continue after the date of enactment of this Act. To ensure successful implementation of the restoration effort, the Secretary is urged to involve the Task Force and the South Florida Water Management District in the development of the Comprehensive Plan.

This section clarifies that the Central and Southern Florida Project, as authorized in Section 203 of the Flood Control Act of 1948 (62 Stat. 1176) must incorporate features to provide for the protection of water quality as a means of achieving the original project purpose of preservation of fish and wildlife resources. The Secretary is authorized to develop specific water quality related project features which are essential to Everglades restoration. In such cases, the provision authorizes Federal funding at a level not to exceed fifty percent of the overall project costs.

This section authorizes an appropriation of $75 million over three fiscal years for the construction of projects determined by the Secretary to be critical to the restoration of the Everglades. The Secretary shall not expend more than $25 million for any one project under this authority. In carrying out the authority provided by this section, the Secretary shall give priority to the following five projects or studies: (1) Levee 28 modifications; (2) Florida Keys carrying capacity; (3) melaleuca control in the Everglades Restoration Area; (4) East Coast Canal Divide Structures; and (5) Tamiami Trail Culverts.

Customary and traditional uses of affected public lands, including access and transportation, shall continue to be permitted where appropriate, and in accordance with management plans of the respective Federal and State management agencies.

Over the past decades, various State and local governments have developed land use plans within the boundaries of the Everglades Restoration Area. The Secretary is directed to take these efforts into consideration as the Comprehensive Plan is developed. In addition, the Legislature of the State of Florida has recognized the importance of the Lake Belt Area of Dade County for the provision of a long-term domestic supply of aggregates, cement, and road base material. The Secretary is directed to take into consideration the Lake Belt Plan and its objectives, as defined by the State Legislature, during development of the Comprehensive Plan.

In carrying out the activities authorized by this section, the Secretary is directed, to the extent feasible and appropriate, to integrate previously authorized restoration activities. In doing so, the Secretary shall employ sound scientific principles while seeking innovative and adaptive methods of management.

The Secretary has appropriately sought consensus at the Federal, State and local levels in developing proposed project modifications for Canal 51 and Canal 111. The Secretary is directed to continue such solicitation for comment and consensus among interested and affected parties before proceeding to the design and implementation of project modifications authorized in this section.

This section clarifies that the Federal cost-sharing does not apply to water quality features constructed pursuant to the settlement agreement in United States v. South Florida Water Management District, No. 88–1886-Civ-Hoeveler (S.D.Fla.). Further, it is not intended that Federal cost-sharing apply to the water quality features required under the appendices of the settlement agreement. Nothing included in this section is meant to interfere with or supersede any pending or future judicial proceedings or agreements related to these features.

Recognizing the comprehensive program authorized by this section and the substantial Federal and non-Federal financial commitment it authorizes, it is expected that the Secretary be judicious in making commitments regarding use of the Secretary's other environmental authorities in this area. Such authorities include the ''1135'' program and the new aquatic ecosystem restoration program established in this legislation. These programs are intended to address environmental improvement projects nationwide and should not be used to supplement the projects and activities authorized by this section.

Coordination

The Conferees are aware of groundwater contamination at the Sierra Army Depot, migration of this contamination into the Honey Valley Groundwater Basin, and the impact of such contamination on a proposed project to transfer water to the Reno-Sparks Metropolitan Area. The Secretary is to instruct the appropriate Army Headquarters officials to meet with affected parties and to determine fair compensation to those who have, in good faith, invested in this project but have been damaged by this unfortunate contamination problem.

The managers on the part of the House have receded to the Senate on House amendment section 585, the National Center for Nanofabrication and Molecular Self-Assembly. That section would have authorized the Secretary to provide assistance for the center in Evanston, Illinois.

This assistance could better be provided through the Director of the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences than through the Secretary of the Army. The proponents of the center are encouraged to work with the Director to receive any necessary or appropriate assistance. Similarly, the Director is encouraged to explore ways of providing any needed assistance.

LEAKING UNDERGROUND STORAGE TANK TRUST FUND AMENDMENTS ACT OF 1996

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 3391) to amend the Solid Waste Disposal Act to require at least 85 percent of funds appropriated to the Environmental Protection Agency from the Leaking Underground Storage Tank Trust Fund to be distributed to States for cooperative agreements for undertaking corrective action and for enforcement of subtitle I of such Act, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. 3391

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Leaking Underground Storage Tank Trust Fund Amendments Act of 1996''.

SEC. 2. LEAKING UNDERGROUND STORAGE TANKS.

(a) TRUST FUND DISTRIBUTION.—Section 9004 of the Solid Waste Disposal Act (42 U.S.C. 6991c) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

''(f) TRUST FUND DISTRIBUTION TO STATES.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—(A) The Administrator shall distribute to States at least 85 percent of the funds appropriated to the Environmental Protection Agency from the Leaking Underground Storage Tank Trust Fund (in subsection referred to as the 'Trust Fund') each fiscal year for the reasonable costs under cooperative agreements entered into with the Administrator for the following:

''(i) States' actions under section 9003(h)(7)(A).

''(ii) Necessary administrative expenses directly related to corrective action and compensation programs under section 9004(c)(1).

''(iii) Enforcement of a State or local program approved under this section or enforcement of this subtitle or similar State or local provisions by a State or local government.

''(iv) State and local corrective actions pursuant to regulations promulgated under section 9003(c)(4).

''(v) Corrective action and compensation programs under section 9004(c)(1) for releases from underground storage tanks regulated under this subtitle in any instance, as determined by the State, in which the financial resources of an owner or operator, excluding resources provided by programs under section 9004(c)(1), are not adequate to pay for the cost of a corrective action without significantly impairing the ability of the owner or operator to continue in business.

''(B) Funds provided by the Administrator under subparagraph (A) may not be used by States for purposes of providing financial assistance to an owner or operator in meeting the requirements respecting underground storage tanks contained in section 280.21 of title 40 of the Code of Federal Regulations (as in effect on the date of the enactment of this subsection) or similar requirements in State programs approved under this section or similar State or local provisions.

''(2) ALLOCATION.—

''(A) PROCESS.—In the case of a State that the Administrator has entered into a cooperative agreement with under section 9003(h)(7)(A), the Administrator shall distribute funds from the Trust Fund to the State using the allocation process developed by the Administrator for such cooperative agreements.

''(B) REVISIONS TO PROCESS.—The Administrator may revise such allocation process only after—

''(i) consulting with State agencies responsible for overseeing corrective action for releases from underground storage tanks and with representatives of owners and operators; and

''(ii) taking into consideration, at a minimum, the total revenue received from each State into the Trust Fund, the number of confirmed releases from leaking underground storage tanks in each State, the number of notified petroleum storage tanks in each State, and the percent of the population of each State using groundwater for any beneficial purpose.

''(3) RECIPIENTS.—Distributions from the Trust Fund under this subsection shall be made directly to the State agency entering into a cooperative agreement or enforcing the State program.

''(4) COST RECOVERY PROHIBITION.—Funds provided to States from the Trust Fund to owners or operators for programs under section 9004(c)(1) for releases from underground storage tanks are not subject to cost recovery by the Administrator under section 9003(h)(6).''.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 9508(c)(1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by inserting before the period at the end the following: ''and to carry out section 9004(f) of such Act''.

(c) TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS.—Subtitle I of the Solid Waste Disposal Act (42 U.S.C. 6991 et seq.) is amended as follows:

(1) Section 9001(3)(A) (42 U.S.C. 6991(3)(A)) is amended by striking out ''sustances'' and inserting in lieu thereof ''substances''.

(2) Section 9003(f)(1) (42 U.S.C. 6991b(f)(1)) is amended by striking out ''subsection (c) and (d)'' and inserting in lieu thereof ''subsections (c) and (d)''.

(3) Section 9004(a) (42 U.S.C. 6991c(a)) is amended by striking out ''in 9001(2)(A)'' and inserting in lieu thereof ''in section 9001(2)(A)''.

(4) Section 9005 (42 U.S.C. 6991d) is amended—

(C) in subsection (b)(4), by striking out ''Evironmental'' and inserting in lieu thereof ''Environmental''.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. OXLEY] and the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. STUPAK] each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. OXLEY].

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. OXLEY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, this legislation improves the Underground Storage Tank program, a program under which States are already well protecting human health and environment from petroleum and other tank leaks. With Federal financial assistance, States have secured cleanup of about 140,000 sites.

In 1986, Congress created the leaking underground storage tank trust fund, paid for with a one-tenth of 1 cent tax on gasoline. The fund is used to enforce cleanup requirements; conduct cleanups when there is no solvent responsible party, when there is an emergency, or when the responsible party refuses to cooperate; and take cost recovery actions. Only 36 percent of the funds collected since 1987—$600 million out of $1.7 billion—have been spent for the program.

EPA gives most of its appropriation to States under cooperative agreements, which spell out exactly what the States will use the money for each year.

H.R. 3391 does two key things.

First, it requires EPA to give at least 85 percent of its appropriation to the States each year. Requiring EPA to give States 85 percent of its appropriation will ensure that the money is going where the tanks are, and where the cleanup work is actually done. EPA already gives an average of 86 percent per year to the States, so 85 percent is no stretch.

Second, the bill authorizes three new uses of the fund, which gives the States more flexibility to make their programs more effective. It allows States to put the money into their financial assurance funds, where they would be used for tank cleanups in cases of financial hardship. It allows the States to use the money to enforce Federal requirements that underground tanks be brought up to minimum leak detection and prevention standards by 1998. And it allows States to use the Federal money to administer their State assurance funds.

Up to 75 percent of tank owners and operators have not yet come into compliance, even though the regs are 8 years old. We need to help the States meet the financial burdens of the potentially huge enforcement task that is coming down the pike in the next 2 years.

The bill also requires EPA to keep using its current formula for allocating LUST dollars among the States, and prohibits EPA from cost recovering from owners and operators any money given to States for corrective actions under State assurance programs. Finally, it prohibits States from using the money to help someone comply with the 1998 tank requirements, so tax dollars won't be used to put people who have already complied at a competitive disadvantage.

This bill will help make the underground storage tank program even more effective and will help the environment by guaranteeing money will get out to the States, and by giving the States the flexibility to put the money to use in new ways.

I want to add that the requirement that 85 percent of the money be given to the States may help make the case with the appropriators that more money should be spent from the trust fund over the next couple of years to help meet the rising enforcement needs. If we assure that more money means more environmental protection, not more money spent on administrative overhead, there is a better case for increased funding, and I think the 85 percent provision helps make that case.

This legislation is supported by the Association of State and Territorial Solid Waste Management Officials, the Petroleum Marketers Association of America, the Society of Independent Gasoline Marketers of America, the National Association of Convenience Stores, and the National Coalition of Petroleum Retailers. I would like to thank all of these groups for their input.

I want to congratulate Chairman SCHAEFER for authoring the bill and thank members for making this a bipartisan success, passing by voice vote at the subcommittee and the full committee.

Mr. Speaker, I also would like to thank the gentleman from New York [Mr. MANTON], my ranking member, and the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. STUPAK], for their leadership on this very important issue.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MANTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. MANTON asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MANTON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 3391, the Leaking Underground Storage Tank Amendment Act. By adopting this bill, the House will make some incremental improvement to the distribution and utilization of Federal leaking underground storage tank trust fund money by the States.

I would like to commend my colleagues, Chairman OXLEY and SCHAEFER and Mr. STUPAK, for their hard work on this measure and for working closely with other members of the Commerce Committee to gain strong bipartisan support of the bill. Their efforts greatly facilitated negotiations regarding this legislation and I believe members of the committee agree that its provisions do meet the needs expressed by stakeholders in this issue.

Mr. Speaker, EPA reports that currently there are approximately 300,000 faulty underground storage tanks, confirming the widespread impact of this problem. In an effort to address this problem, H.R. 3391 amends the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act to offer States more Federal assistance in helping to cleanup the leaking tanks.

Primarily, this legislation establishes a dedicated funding source from EPA to the States and expands the allowable uses of Federal funds.

One of these new uses includes enforcement of underground storage tank standards as directed under local, State, or Federal programs. Using the LUST trust funds for this new enforcement activity, in addition to existing uses under the program, should perhaps take top priority over other applications of the funds, in my opinion. I should also add, that I am pleased that this bill limits the use of Federal funds for cleanup purposes by the States to owners and operators of leaking tanks who do not have the financial resources to address the problem themselves. In these times of limited Federal dollars, it is important that we direct funds in ways that will do the most good.

Again, I want to thank Chairman OXLEY and Mr. SCHAEFER for working to address the concerns raised by the minority on the Commerce Committee. This bill should enable States to better distribute the limited resources that they have for leaking underground storage tanks, and I urge my colleagues to support the measure.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. SCHAEFER], the author of the legislation who is the chairman of the Subcommittee on Energy and Power.

(Mr. SCHAEFER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SCHAEFER. I thank the gentleman from Ohio for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, last spring, Congressman BART STUPAK and I introduced H.R. 3391, the Leaking Underground Storage Tank Trust Fund Amendments Act of 1996. The bill's objectives are to give States more financial stability in operating their underground storage tank programs and greater flexibility to address unique environmental problems, particularly in rural America. H.R. 3391 has substantial bipartisan cosponsorship and diverse private sector support.

Among the bill's supporters:

The Association of State and Territorial Solid Waste Management Officials;

The National School Boards Association;

The Petroleum Marketers Association of America;

The National Association of Convenience Stores;

The Society of Independent Gasoline Marketers of America;

The Service Station Dealers of America; and

The National Automobile Dealers Association.

Prior to introduction and as the bill moved forward, we solicited and received suggestions on how best to achieve our objectives—program flexibility and stability. EPA, Members from both parties, State regulators and industry all made meaningful contributions to H.R. 3391. As a result, the final product we have before us today meets our initial goals, with a strong emphasis on quicker cleanups and stricter enforcement.

The so-called LUST Program was first enacted in 1984. The trust fund followed in 1986. The current LUST statute allows States to spend the Federal LUST trust fund money in a limited number of instances—mainly for corrective actions where an owner is unable or unwilling to clean up a leak.

Along with the corrective action standards for leaking tanks, the LUST statute also requires owners and operators of underground storage tanks to meet certain standards. The deadline for compliance with these tank standards is 1998. When implemented, the tank standards will provide an important preventative protection against many future leaks. Federal LUST trust fund money cannot currently be used for this enforcement.

The LUST Program has largely been a success. The regulated industry and the EPA tank office share a good working relationship. However, over the next few years the nature of the program will change dramatically. EPA has stated it envisions States becoming the primary enforcers for the tank standards and supervising corrective action where leaks have occurred. In fact, EPA maintains its Federal tank office will be phased out. H.R. 3391 helps to make that transition.

I support this progression. However, if we expect States to carry out more duties, it is critical that they be given more freedom to use LUST trust fund money where most needed.

Finally, EPA has traditionally dedicated about 85 percent of its annual LUST trust fund appropriation to States. But, as State responsibilities increase, we need to give them peace of mind that this tradition will continue. H.R. 3391 gives this financial stability.

I want to thank all those involved in crafting this bill. The process has embodied the spirit of bipartisan compromise. Our final product increases enforcement and enhances site cleanups with the broad-based support of the regulated industry. The State-centered model setup by EPA is reinforced with a stronger Federal financial commitment.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this sound environmental proposal, and I want to thank the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. OXLEY] for moving this through his subcommittee and through the full committee, and the gentleman from New York [Mr. MANTON] and certainly the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. STUPAK] for helping out tremendously in getting the final language into this legislation. I would certainly want to encourage the passage of this bill.

Mr. MANTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. STUPAK].

Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to rise in support of H.R. 3391, the Schaefer-Stupak Leaking Underground Storage Tank Amendments Act. This bill will provide the States and the Federal Government the flexibility they need to continue the cleanup of leaking underground storage tanks all across this country.

First, I want to thank Chairmen TOM BLILEY and MIKE OXLEY, ranking members JOHN DINGELL and TOM MANTON, for all the support this bill has received in subcommittee and the full committee to bring it before the House today.

Most of all, I would like to thank Energy and Power chairman, Mr. SCHAEFER, for his determination to reach a strong bipartisan consensus on this very important bill. I very much appreciate his efforts to work with me on this measure.

The Leaking Underground Storage Tank Program is one of the most important and least known environmental programs run by the Federal Government and the States. The 1994 report to Congress of the National Water Quality Inventory states that leaking underground storage tanks are the most frequent cause of groundwater contamination. Unfortunately, the Committee on Appropriations does not feel our Nation's ground water is such a high priority. Last year the Committee on Appropriations cut the President's request by 40 percent. This year, the Committee on Appropriations once again cut the President's request by more than 33 percent.

The Committee on Appropriations' actions are even more frustrating because the Leaking Underground Storage tank Program is funded through a tax collected on petroleum products. Currently, the leaking underground storage tank, or LUST, trust fund, has a $1 billion surplus.

I will continue to join with my colleagues, especially the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. SCHAEFER], in the fight to increase the appropriation to this program.

This program came to my attention based upon concerns by my constituents, especially up in Trenary, MI, when I discovered that my State's Leaking Underground Storage Tank Program became insolvent due to improper management and improper funding. In Michigan, the fund is not accepting new claims, and cleanups on leaking tanks have all but ceased.

Although I believe that this legislation being discussed today is a very important step in cleaning up leaking tanks, it is my hope that States, and Michigan in particular, will renew their commitment to this program.

Beyond any doubt, H.R. 3391 will make improvements to the program. The improvements will increase the amount of funding available for contaminated sites, increase the amount of money for State enforcement, and guarantee that money the Congress appropriates for this program is received by the States.

This legislation does not completely turn this program over to the States. We have maintained a strong role for the EPA in this legislation by preserving the current cooperative agreement process between the States and the Federal Government. This bill will uphold the Federal role in the LUST Program and strengthens the Federal-State partnership that has been so successful since the program's inception.

Mr. Speaker, I once again want to thank the leadership of the Committee on Commerce and this House for expediting this legislation offered by the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. SCHAEFER] and myself. It remains our intent to encourage a more flexible use of Federal resources while continuing to hold polluters responsible for their waste.

Mr. MANTON. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. NORWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 3391, The Leaking Underground Storage Tank Trust Fund Amendments. As you may know, I am a cosponsor of this legislation. This bill is designed to ensure that 85 percent of the funds in the Federal Underground Storage Tank Trust Fund are allocated to the States via cooperative agreements.

While I am fully supportive of this legislation, I do want to clarify one point in order to prevent any potential confusion down the road. My constituents have been concerned that the prohibition on the use of Federal funds in State financial assistance programs is not misinterpreted.

Under existing law, use of Federal funds for the purpose of providing financial assistance to tank owners and operators is not a specifically authorized use of the fund. This is an area that Washington has thankfully stayed out of, leaving the issue of what type of financial assistance programs to design to the States. I wish to emphasize that the prohibition is simply designed to maintain the historic balance of State and Federal concerns, and there is no suggestion, either express or implied, that States should not set up financial assistance programs.

Mr. Speaker, this is a good bill, and I urge all of my colleagues to support H.R. 3391.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, this Member rises in support of H.R. 3391, the Leaking Underground Storage Tank Amendments Act. As a cosponsor of the legislation, this Member would like to commend the distinguished gentleman from Colorado [Mr. SCHAEFER] and the distinguished gentleman from Michigan [Mr. STUPAK] for introducing this bill and working for its enactment.

Across the Nation, leaking underground storage tanks present a hazard which must be addressed. Unfortunately, less than half of the identified leaking tanks have been remedied. In addition, there are likely thousands of other unidentified leaking tanks which require action.

This legislation improves the current situation by distributing more money from the existing trust fund to the States where it belongs. The trust fund was established by Congress in 1986 and currently contains about $1 billion. Although the trust fund is intended to provide assistance in the cleanup of underground storage tanks, far too much of the money in the trust fund has been used to offset general Federal spending.

This Member certainly believes that the money in the trust fund should for used for the purposes for which it was originally intended; money simply accumulating in the trust fund obviously does not address the current needs. The large number of remaining leaking underground storage tank sites to be addressed is evidence that the States certainly could use this money which is currently accumulating in the trust fund. This bill would assist States in more efficiently receiving and disbursing money from the trust fund. It would also give the States increased flexibility in the use of money from the trust fund.

This Member urges his colleagues to support H.R. 3391.

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. OXLEY] that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3391, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4167 and H.R. 3391, as amended.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 3502 of title 5, United States Code, as amended by section 1034 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1996 (Public Law 104–106; 110 Stat. 430), is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(g)(1) A position occupied by a preference eligible shall not be placed in a single-position competitive level if the preference eligible is qualified to perform the essential functions of any other position at the same grade (or occupational level) in the competitive area. In such cases, the preference eligible shall be entitled to be placed in another competitive level for which such preference eligible is qualified. If the preference eligible is qualified for more than one competitive level, such preference eligible shall be placed in the competitive level containing the most positions.

''(2) For purposes of paragraph (1)—

''(A) a preference eligible shall be considered qualified to perform the essential functions of a position if, by reason of experience, training, or education (and, in the case of a disabled veteran, with reasonable accommodation), a reasonable person could conclude that the preference eligible would be able to perform those functions successfully within a period of 150 days; and

''(B) a preference eligible shall not be considered unqualified solely because such preference eligible does not meet the minimum qualification requirements relating to previous experience in a specified grade (or occupational level), if any, that are established for such position by the Office of Personnel Management or the agency.

''(h) In connection with any reduction in force, a preference eligible whose current or most recent performance rating is at least fully successful (or the equivalent) shall have, in addition to such assignment rights as are prescribed by regulation, the right, in lieu of separation, to be assigned to any position within the agency conducting the reduction in force—

''(1) for which such preference eligible is qualified under subsection (g)(2)—

''(A) that is within the preference eligible's commuting area and at the same grade (or occupational level) as the position from which the preference eligible was released, and that is then occupied by an individual, other than another preference eligible, who was placed in such position (whether by appointment or otherwise) within 6 months before the reduction in force if, within 12 months prior to the date on which such individual was so placed in such position, such individual had been employed in the same competitive area as the preference eligible; or

''(B) that is within the preference eligible's competitive area and that is then occupied by an individual, other than another preference eligible, who was placed in such position (whether by appointment or otherwise) within 6 months before the reduction in force; or

''(2) for which such preference eligible is qualified that is within the preference eligible's competitive area and that is not more than 3 grades (or pay levels) below that of the position from which the preference eligible was released, except that, in the case of a preference eligible with a compensable service-connected disability of 30 percent or more, this paragraph shall be applied by substituting '5 grades' for '3 grades'.

In the event that a preference eligible is entitled to assignment to more than 1 position under this subsection, the agency shall assign the preference eligible to any such position requiring no reduction (or, if there is no such position, the least reduction) in basic pay. A position shall not, with respect to a preference eligible, be considered to satisfy the requirements of paragraph (1) or (2), as applicable, if it does not last for at least 12 months following the date on which such preference eligible is assigned to such position under this subsection.

''(i) A preference eligible may challenge the classification of any position to which the preference eligible asserts assignment rights (as provided by, or prescribed by regulations described in, subsection (h)) in an action before the Merit Systems Protection Board.

''(j)(1) Not later than 3 months after the date of the enactment of this subsection, each Executive agency shall establish an agencywide priority placement program to facilitate employment placement for employees who—

''(A)(i) are scheduled to be separated from service due to a reduction in force under—

''(I) regulations prescribed under this section; or

''(II) procedures established under section 3595; or

''(ii) are separated from service due to such a reduction in force; and

''(B)(i) have received a rating of at least fully successful (or the equivalent) as the last performance rating of record used for retention purposes; or

''(ii) occupy positions excluded from a performance appraisal system by law, regulation, or administrative action taken by the Office of Personnel Management.

''(2)(A) Each agencywide priority placement program under this subsection shall include provisions under which a vacant position shall not (except as provided in this paragraph or any other statute providing the right of reemployment to any individual) be filled by the appointment or transfer of any individual from outside of that agency (other than an individual described in subparagraph (B)) if—

''(i) there is then available any individual described in subparagraph (B) who is qualified for the position; and

''(ii) the position—

''(I) is at the same grade or pay level (or the equivalent) or not more than 3 grades (or grade intervals) below that of the position last held by such individual before placement in the new position;

''(II) is within the same commuting area as the individual's last-held position (as referred to in subclause (I)) or residence; and

''(III) has the same type of work schedule (whether full-time, part-time, or intermittent) as the position last held by the individual.

''(B) For purposes of an agencywide priority placement program, an individual shall be considered to be described in this subparagraph if such individual—

''(i)(I) is an employee of such agency who is scheduled to be separated, as described in paragraph (1)(A)(i); or

''(II) is an individual who became a former employee of such agency as a result of a separation, as described in paragraph (1)(A)(ii), excluding any individual who separated voluntarily under subsection (f); and

''(ii) satisfies clause (i) or (ii) of paragraph (1)(B).

''(3)(A) If after a reduction in force the agency has no positions of any type within the local commuting areas specified in this subsection, the individual may designate a different local commuting area where the agency has continuing positions in order to exercise reemployment rights under this subsection. An agency may determine that such designations are not in the interest of the Government for the purpose of paying relocation expenses under subchapter II of chapter 57.

''(B) At its option, an agency may administratively extend reemployment rights under this subsection to include other local commuting areas.

''(4)(A) In selecting employees for positions under this subsection, the agency shall place qualified present and former employees in retention order by veterans' preference subgroup and tenure group.

''(B) An agency may not pass over a qualified present or former employee to select an individual in a lower veterans' preference subgroup within the tenure group, or in a lower tenure group.

''(C) Within a subgroup, the agency may select a qualified present or former employee without regard to the individual's total creditable service.

''(5) An individual is eligible for reemployment priority under this subsection for 2 years from the effective date of the reduction in force from which the individual will be, or has been, separated under this section or section 3595, as the case may be.

''(6) An individual loses eligibility for reemployment priority under this subsection when the individual—

''(A) requests removal in writing;

''(B) accepts or declines a bona fide offer under this subsection or fails to accept such an offer within the period of time allowed for such acceptance, or

''(C) separates from the agency before being separated under this section or section 3595, as the case may be.

A present or former employee who declines a position with a representative rate (or equivalent) that is less than the rate of the position from which the individual was separated under this section retains eligibility for positions with a higher representative rate up to the rate of the individual's last position.

''(7) Whenever more than one individual is qualified for a position under this subsection, the agency shall select the most highly qualified individual, subject to paragraph (4).

''(8) The Office of Personnel Management shall issue regulations to implement this subsection.''.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the amendments made by this section shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act.

(2) EXCEPTION.—The amendments made by this section shall take effect with respect to the Department of Defense at the end of the 1-year period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subchapter I of chapter 33 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

''§ 3330a. Administrative redress

''(a)(1) Any preference eligible or other individual described in section 3304(f)(1) who alleges that an agency has violated such individual's rights under any statute or regulation relating to veterans' preference, or any right afforded such individual by section 3304(f), may file a complaint with the Secretary of Labor.

''(2) A complaint under this subsection must be filed within 60 days after the date of the alleged violation, and the Secretary shall process such complaint in accordance with sections 4322 (a) through (e)(1) and 4326 of title 38.

''(b)(1) If the Secretary of Labor is unable to resolve the complaint within 60 days after the date on which it is filed, the complainant may elect to appeal the alleged violation to the Merit Systems Protection Board in accordance with such procedures as the Merit Systems Protection Board shall prescribe, except that in no event may any such appeal be brought—

''(A) before the 61st day after the date on which the complaint is filed under subsection (a); or

''(B) later than 15 days after the date on which the complainant receives notification from the Secretary of Labor under section 4322(e)(1) of title 38.

''(2) An appeal under this subsection may not be brought unless—

''(A) the complainant first provides written notification to the Secretary of Labor of such complainant's intention to bring such appeal; and

''(B) appropriate evidence of compliance with subparagraph (A) is included (in such form and manner as the Merit Systems Protection Board may prescribe) with the notice of appeal under this subsection.

''(3) Upon receiving notification under paragraph (2)(A), the Secretary of Labor shall not continue to investigate or further attempt to resolve the complaint to which such notification relates.

''(c) This section shall not be construed to prohibit a preference eligible from appealing directly to the Merit Systems Protection Board from any action which is appealable to the Board under any other law, rule, or regulation, in lieu of administrative redress under this section.

''§ 3330b. Judicial redress

''(a) In lieu of continuing the administrative redress procedure provided under section 3330a(b), a preference eligible or other individual described in section 3304(f)(1) may elect, in accordance with this section, to terminate those administrative proceedings and file an action with the appropriate United States district court not later than 60 days after the date of the election.

''(b) An election under this section may not be made—

''(1) before the 121st day after the date on which the appeal is filed with the Merit Systems Protection Board under section 3330a(b); or

''(2) after the Merit Systems Protection Board has issued a judicially reviewable decision on the merits of the appeal.

''(c) An election under this section shall be made, in writing, in such form and manner as the Merit Systems Protection Board shall by regulation prescribe. The election shall be effective as of the date on which it is received, and the administrative proceeding to which it relates shall terminate immediately upon the receipt of such election.

''§ 3330c. Remedy

''(a) If the Merit Systems Protection Board (in a proceeding under section 3330a) or a court (in a proceeding under section 3330b) determines that an agency has violated a right described in section 3330a, the Board or court (as the case may be) shall order the agency to comply with such provisions and award compensation for any loss of wages or benefits suffered by the individual by reason of the violation involved. If the Board or court determines that such violation was willful, it shall award an amount equal to backpay as liquidated damages.

''(b) A preference eligible or other individual described in section 3304(f)(1) who prevails in an action under section 3330a or 3330b shall be awarded reasonable attorney fees, expert witness fees, and other litigation expenses.''.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MICA] and the gentleman from American Samoa [Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA] each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MICA].

Mr. MICA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the bill before us contains actually three bills that have already passed the other body, S. 868, S. 1080, and S. 1488. The Senate passed two of these bills by unanimous consent, and the third by voice vote. In addition, title II of this bill is virtually identical to H.R. 3586, which the House passed by voice vote on July 30, 1996.

Title I of this bill is identical in all material respects to S. 868, the Federal Employee Emergency Leave Transfer Act of 1995. This title authorizes the establishment of a special leave bank for Federal employees in the event of a presidentially declared emergency. The tragedy at Oklahoma City is an example of the situations in which these special leave banks may be established. Mr. Speaker, this bill provides for a humane and a just opportunity for our Federal employees to help one another.

Title II of the bill, Mr. Speaker, is essentially the same as the Veterans Preference Employment Opportunity Act of 1996. This measure, H.R. 3586, is legislation that I introduced, and we passed the earlier version of this bill by voice vote in July. Title II creates an effective redress system for our veterans. It strengthens veterans protections in the case of a reduction in force, and it extends additional economic opportunities to our veterans. In addition, the bill extends veterans preference to certain jobs in the legislative branch, in the judicial branch, and at the White House.

In our handling of this matter, we found that sometimes our veterans are the first fired and the last hired, and this bill moves to correct that situation.

We have slightly modified the language of H.R. 3586 in an effort to respond to concerns raised by the American Postal Workers Union after we passed our original bill from the House. The APWU's concern is that the language of the original bill might have interfered with the operation of job bidding procedures in their collective-bargaining agreements. It was not our intention, Mr. Speaker, to interfere with the Postal Union collective bargaining agreements, and we hope that our changes have in fact clarified this matter.

In addition, the Department of Defense has been given more time to comply with the rif provisions of the bill and another modification they requested.

In title III, Mr. Speaker, our provisions make the Thrift Savings Plan even more attractive to our Federal employees. They establish two new investment funds for Federal employees, an international stock index fund and a small capitalization stock index fund. In addition, these provisions will make it easier for Federal employees to borrow their own money from the Thrift Savings Plan and provide for a onetime permanent withdrawal at age 59½ or when they experience a particular financial hardship.

Title III also contains an improvement to the Thrift Savings Plan that was not in S. 1080. Under this bill, employees who come to work for the Government will be able to deposit the funds from their private 401(k) plans into our Thrift Savings Plan. This is an additional rollover authority, which should make Government employment more attractive to many in the private sector.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, title IV of this bill incorporates the provisions of S. 1488. That bill converts certain accepted service positions in the U.S. Fire Administration to competitive service positions. It also authorizes the Fire Administration to appoint new faculty members to competitive service positions.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased that we have had the cooperation of the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. MORAN], the ranking member, and the gentlewoman from Maryland [Mrs. MORELLA] a leader on our Civil Service Subcommittee that I am so pleased to have the opportunity to chair. I also want to recognize the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. DAVIS] for his fine work and contributions, and also, not a member of the subcommittee or committee, but the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WOLF] who is a strong advocate on behalf of our Federal employees and workers.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, due to a conflict in scheduling and because of a prior commitment in his congressional district, the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. MORAN] who is also the senior Democrat of the subcommittee, has requested that I assist him in managing this bill before the House. In doing so, Mr. Speaker, and on behalf of the gentleman from Virginia and Members from this side of the aisle, I am pleased to rise in support of Senate bill 868 and the managers' amendment offered by the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MICA]. Senate bill 868 is a simple bill first proposed by the Office of Personnel Management after the tragic bombing in Oklahoma City.

It makes it easier for Federal employees to donate unused annual leave to their counterparts who have been adversely impacted by a disaster or national emergency. This bill passed the Senate unanimously last October and recently passed the Government Reform and Oversight Committee on voice vote.

To this legislation, Mr. MICA is offering a manager's amendment that incorporates other important provisions. The first makes important reforms to the Thrift Savings Plan and enables employees to participate in the plan earlier and to invest their funds in two new plans. The Thrift Savings Plan is a very successful retirement plan that enables Federal employees to save for their retirement. The provisions in this legislation will also provide Federal employees the same flexibilities enjoyed by their private sector counterparts who participate in 401(k) plans. This provision also allows Federal employees to borrow against their accounts for any reason.

The second provision is the Veterans Employment Opportunities and Improvement Act. This legislation has passed the House by voice vote and makes some positive reforms in the application of our veterans' preference laws. By attaching this provision to S. 868, the majority expects that we will be able to engage the Senate in a conference on this legislation and break the current deadlock.

Finally, the manager's amendment incorporates a provision that was introduced by Senator SARBANES and passed the Senate by voice vote. This is more a technical provision and will help remedy a situation that affects only a limited number of employees. I support the effort to enact this correction.

Again, I support this legislation and the manager's amendment. I hope it will have my colleagues support as well.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MICA. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Maryland, [Mrs. MORELLA], who I am pleased to say is a very strong advocate on behalf of our Federal employees, someone who shares a caring and compassion for them, and one of the most productive members of the Subcommittee on Civil Service.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman who chairs our Subcommittee on Civil Service not only for the fine words but the leadership he has shown during this very challenging time for Federal employees and Federal agencies. I value that very much.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of S. 868, legislation that will help our dedicated Federal employees in a variety of ways. Civil servants are facing hard times, and they are understandably apprehensive about the future.

Although I would have liked to consider several pieces of legislation that I have introduced to help Federal employees meet the challenges of the changing workplace, this bill is a step in the right direction. I am proud to have drafted portions of this legislation to improve the lives of our Federal employees. Tomorrow, as part of civil service reform, we will consider additional proposals that I have drafted to help civil servants.

S. 868 contains legislation I introduced, H.R. 2306, the Federal Thrift Savings Plan Enhancement Act. These provisions will bolster a critical component of Federal employees' retirement benefits—the Thrift Savings Plan—at no cost to taxpayers.

The Thrift Savings Plan [TSP] is a retirement savings and investment plan for Federal and postal employees. It offers the same type of savings and tax benefits that many private corporations offer their employees under 401(k) plans. The TSP is critical for all Federal employees, but it is particularly important for those employees hired in the last decade who, under the Federal Employees Retirement System, receive smaller civil service benefits and need to invest more money to enhance their retirement income.

Unlike many private plans, the TSP limits employees to three investment funds: the Government Securities Investment (G) Fund, the Common Stock Index Investment (C) Fund, and the Fixed Income Investment (F) Fund. Eighty two percent of the largest corporations now offer four or more investment options in their defined contribution plans, and 50 percent offer five or more options. As the number of funds offered increases, small-cap and international funds are among the most popular additions. H.R. 2306 would give Federal workers two new investment options under the Thrift Savings Plan: a Small Capitalization Stock Index Investment Fund and International Stock Index Fund. These funds will provide Federal employees with a long-term investment strategy comparable to private pension plans. Adding two new options to Federal employees' retirement investment portfolios will potentially increase their investment earnings for retirement, and it will empower Federal workers to take a more active and personal responsibility for their retirement.

This legislation will also permit Federal employees to begin to withdraw money from the TSP at age 59½, even if they continue to work and invest in the plan. The money withdrawn would be taxable, but it would not be subject to any early-retirement penalty. Under the current rules, an employee cannot withdraw money before retiring. The legislation also significantly improves borrowing provisions to allow employees to borrow money from their own accounts as long as they repay it.

Federal employees face uncertainty caused by Federal downsizing and the recent Government shutdowns. Over 2 million Federal employees also worry about their retirement, and this legislation would bolster a critical component of their retirement benefits.

Unfortunately, this legislation does not include a critical provision in my TSP bill—the provision to allow employees to invest up to the $9,500 IRS limit of their own to the TSP. Currently, FERS employees can put in up to 10 percent of their salary with a Government match of up to 5 percent, and CSRS employees can invest up to 5 percent of their salary. I will continue to pursue legislation to increase this amount to the IRS limit separately.

This legislation also contains a provision important to firefighters in my district. When the Federal Emergency Management Agency was formed 20 years ago, it placed a number of its employees with specific fire-fighting expertise in the National Fire Academy under ''excepted'' service status. After the NFA has filled their vacancies, new hires were obtained through a competitive civil service hiring system. Today, 91 of the NFA's 99 employees are under the general schedule and 8 remain in excepted status. These eight employees are subject to significant limitations within the U.S. Fire Administration, and they are legally barred from competing for management positions. This provision would convert the eight remaining excepted service positions at the U.S. Fire Administration to competitive service status to remedy this unfair situation. The Office of Personnel Management supports this provision, and CBO has indicated that there would be no cost for this conversion.

This bill also contains the veterans' preference provisions passed by the House in July. These provisions were developed pursuant to a hearing held in the Civil Service Subcommittee last April. We learned that simply giving veterans augmented scores and certain due process protections does not necessarily give them the rightful additional assistance in obtaining and retaining civilian employment with the Federal Government that they deserve.

Testimony from veterans associations and from veterans such as John Fales, the author of the Sgt. Shaft column in the Washington Times, illustrated the need for this protection. Mr. Fales shared some of the hundreds of letters he has received that describe the challenges faced by veterans employed by the Federal Government.

The Veterans Employment Opportunities Act of 1996 would strengthen, and, in the case of hiring, broaden the applicability of veterans' preference laws. H.R. 3586 would provide increased protection during reductions-in-force, establishes an enhanced redress system, and applies veterans' preference to nonpolitical positions at both the White House and in the legislative branch, as well to as many positions in the judicial branch. It also extends veterans' preference when Rif's occur in the Federal Aviation Administration, and it will allow veterans claiming they were denied preference to take their case to Federal court for the first time. I am sensitive to the differing circumstances of the postal service, and I will work to address their concerns in conference.

In the event of a disaster or emergency, this legislation would allow Federal employees in any agency to donate their unused annual leave to Federal employees adversely affected. It is too bad that we have to pass legislation to allow Federal employees to help one another in such times of need, but I commend the many Federal employees who will put the needs of others before themselves and help those in need by donating their annual leave. This small change to the law is particularly important in the wake of such tragedies such as Oklahoma City, and I strongly urge its passage.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly urge the passage of S. 868, and again I thank the gentleman for the time that he has given me to comment on what I think is an important bill. I also want to commend the ranking member of our subcommittee, the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. MORAN].

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume to concur in the remarks made earlier by the gentlewoman from Maryland. She certainly has been a great advocate of our work force in the civil service, and I am sure that because the legislation is not exactly a perfect one that, hopefully, in the next Congress, some of the sentiments and concerns she has expressed earlier will be taken seriously.

Mr. Speaker, I also want to recognize the contributions of the members of the subcommittee, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. HOLDEN], the gentleman from Vermont [Mr. SANDERS], and the gentlewoman from Illinois [Mrs. COLLINS] absolutely the senior Democrat, the ranking member of the full committee, for the tremendous contributions that she has rendered for our government in all these years that she has served in this capacity as a member of the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. MICA. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON], who is one of the strongest advocates in the Congress on behalf of veterans and also has the honor and distinction of serving as chairman of our Committee on Rules.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Florida, JOHN MICA. Quite often I mistake JOHN and sometimes I call him Dan, and that is because 18 years ago Dan Mica, his brother, and I came to this Congress. His brother was a Democrat on the other side of the aisle but an outstanding Member of this body who served with me on the Committee on International Relations, as he did with the Speaker, at that time.

Mr. Speaker, I wanted to stand up here for a moment just to praise JOHN MICA, his subcommittee, and the members of this subcommittee, like the gentlewoman from Maryland, CONNIE MORELLA, and certainly my good friend, the gentleman from American Samoa, Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA, for the good job they always do.

Quite often Federal employees come under undue criticism. Yet, the vast majority of them are good people, they are conscientious, they are polite, they are courteous, and they do their job. I just want to commend the gentleman for the job he is doing on this piece of legislation, because in the long run that is what it is meant to do. It is meant to help Federal employees to do their job.

I want to concentrate briefly on the veterans preference benefits that are here. Mr. MICA has been very active in legislation along this line. The gentleman and I have worked together on many pieces of legislation just in the last 18 months dealing with it.

One of the provisions, as CONNIE MORELLA was alluding to earlier, was the provision that for the first time establishes an effective user-friendly redress system for veterans who believe their rights have been violated. This is very, very important. This will speed up that entire process so that they can have due process.

Another provision removes artificial barriers that often bar service men and women from competing for Federal jobs. These individuals should be able to compete for jobs for which they qualify just like any other Federal employee.

Thirdly, it extends veterans preference to certain jobs in this legislative branch, where the gentleman and I serve, in the judiciary branch, and in the White House as well.

Members might ask, why are veterans given these particular preferences? Whether you serve for 20 years in the military, whether you serve for 4 years or 2 years, let us just say you serve for 4 years and you were an 18-year-old when you went in the military, and at the same time your peer did not go in the military as he went on to college. And he graduates then from college 4 years before you do. He enters the job market 4 years before you do. All of that, that 4-year loss, when you are working at a substantially lesser benefit, when there are no benefits really in the military because you are not going to stay long enough to gain retirement benefits, that loss to you compared to your peer amounts to about $68,000 over a 4-year period.

A young man or young woman entering the military, when he or she gets out, they are always going to be $68,000 poorer than the peer that did not have the opportunity to serve. So that is really what veterans preference is all about. It is a way of allowing them to catch up, which is why we have the peacetime GI bill. That is why this piece of legislation is so terribly important.

I want to commend the gentleman from Florida, Mr. JOHN MICA, for the good job that he and that the members of his committee have done. Let us get it passed. Let us get it sent to the President and get his signature on it.

Mr. MICA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I would like to conclude my remarks on this legislation and just take a moment, as we finish our comments, to thank the gentleman from American Samoa for his assistance tonight in moving this legislation forward. Also to thank the ranking member of our subcommittee, the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. MORAN] who is not able to be with us but who has provided great leadership on this and other civil service issues, and particularly the gentlewoman from Maryland [Mrs. MORELLA], as part of this legislation and, in fact, as part of her initiatives, continuing efforts on behalf of our civil servants whom she holds so dearly, both their service and their contribution to our Federal Government. I thank her. I thank the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. DAVIS] of our subcommittee and also, as I mentioned, the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. WOLF], who is not on the committee, who has contributed to this and other productive civil service legislation; also the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON] for his tremendous interest and efforts on behalf of our veterans. His service goes on and on in their behalf and on behalf of the Congress. The gentleman from Indiana [Mr. BUYER] who is not with us tonight but chairs one of the veterans subcommittees, also contributed greatly.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, by combining title II with three Senate bills we are, in fact, giving the other body a very convenient way of addressing veterans preference in the few remaining legislative days that we have left in this session.

Mr. Speaker, the bill before us today and tonight is, in fact, a good one. It authorizes emergency leave for our Federal employees. It strengthens our veterans preference. It improves the thrift savings plan and makes desirable modifications to the employment status of employees at the Fire Administration.

This legislation tonight and bills that we hope to pass in tomorrow's session can go a long way toward making it a better Federal workplace and a better Federal work force.

I urge my colleagues to vote for these measures and for this bill.

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MICA. I yield to the gentleman from American Samoa.

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, I would be remiss if I did not also express the gentleman from Virginia's sentiments in expressing to the gentleman from Florida, as chairman of the subcommittee, for the outstanding job that he has done and the spirit of bipartisanship that we were able to work out the differences in bringing us to the floor at this point in time. I want to note that for the RECORD to the gentleman from Florida for the tremendous job that he has done in bringing this legislation to fruition.

Mr. MICA. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman.

Again, I urge passage of this and, finally, thank the staff on both sides of the aisle for their tremendous contributions.

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to rise in support of S. 868 and the manager's amendment offered by Representative MICA.

S. 868 is a simple bill first proposed by the Office of Personnel Management after the tragic bombing in Oklahoma City. It makes it easier for federal employees to donate unused annual leave to their counterparts who have been adversely impacted by a disaster or national emergency. This bill passed the Senate unanimously last October and recently passed the Government Reform and Oversight Committee on voice vote.

To this legislation, Mr. MICA is offering a manager's amendment that incorporates other important provisions. The first makes important reforms to the Thrift Savings Plan and enables employees to participate in the plan earlier and to invest their funds in two new plans.

The Thrift Savings Plan is a very successful retirement plan that enables federal employees to save for their retirement. The provisions in this legislation will also provide federal employees the same flexibiliies enjoyed by their private sector counterparts who participate in 401(k) plans. This provision also allows federal employees to borrow against their accounts for any reason.

The second provision is the Veterans Employment Opportunities and Improvement Act. This legislation has passed the House by voice vote and makes some positive reforms in the application of our Veterans' preference laws. By attaching this provision to S. 868, the majority expects that we will be able to engage the Senate in a conference on this legislation and break the current deadlock.

Finally, the manager's amendment incorporates a provision that was introduced by Senator SARBANES and passed the Senate by voice vote. This is more a technical provision and will help remedy a situation that affects only a limited number of employees. I support the effort to enact this correction.

Again, I support this legislation and the manager's amendment. I hope it will have my colleagues' support as well.

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Speaker, I want to congratulate and thank Chairman MICA and his subcommittee for their magnificent efforts on this very important piece of legislation and for their dogged determination to shepherd this bill through the legislative process.

I had the honor of testifying before Mr. MICA's subcommittee, and I am doubly pleased that some of the points I brought out during the hearing are in the bill. I wish to stress that the most important provision—that of an administrative and judicial method for veterans to pursue their employment claims—is not an expansion of veterans preference, but a necessary provision to ensure just protection of their rights as veterans.

And to those who feel that veterans don't need the protections being provided to them in this bill, let me just quote an internal memo from Postmaster General Marvin Runyon to his Board of Governors. Mr. Runyon states that veterans preference will, ''have a detrimental impact on the Postal Service,'' it would ''tie our hands,'' and it would, ''be costly and make our personnel decisions more difficult and onerous.'' Finally, recognizing the average American's support for veterans he says, ''this is a difficult issue to oppose publicly, especially in an election year.''

The Postmaster almost got it right, but I would offer this. I would say that it is an issue that should never be opposed—election year or not—because veterans preference must remain the cornerstone of federal employment, simply because it is the right thing to do.

Veterans preference knows neither color nor gender, nor ethnic origin, whether the veteran is a Christian, Jew, Muslim or atheist. It is based on what is becoming a novel idea in this country—a willingness to sacrifice one's life for the good of the nation. I challenge anyone to point out a more appropriate group of citizens to receive some small advantage in securing and maintaining federal employment.

This bill will do much to reverse what I call a growing anti-veteran culture among bureaucrats. There is no doubt that women and minorities have suffered employment discrimination in both the federal and private sector. But let me stress that our military forces have been in the forefront of promoting women and minorities among the ranks, and it is time for federal hiring managers to put veterans first.

I am also pleased that S. 868 will apply veterans preference to non-political employees of the Congress, the White House, and the Judiciary Branch. The only thing special here is the nation's commitment to a very special class of person—veterans. The approach taken in the bill to these principles is reasonable and is not unduly restrictive.

Mr. Chairman, let me close by noting that a little over 50 years ago, we were just winding up the bloody Pacific Campaign. A few years later, our forces were fighting and dying to maintain democracy's foothold on the Korean Peninsula. Slightly less than 30 years ago, our forces distinguished themselves in turning back the Tet Offensive. And just five years ago, the men and women of this nation struck like lightning against Saddam Hussein. In less than 60 years those wearing the nation's uniform have earned this small benefit at the cost of nearly 520,000 deaths. This is a benefit that costs the government nothing while honoring what is truly national service.

I strongly urge my colleagues to join all the major veterans service organizations in their support of this bill and to vote in favor of S. 868.

Mr. MICA. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. WICKER). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Florida, [Mr. MICA] that the House suspend the rules and pass the Senate bill, S. 868, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the Senate bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. MICA. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks on S. 868, the Senate bill just passed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

CLARION RIVER NATIONAL WILD AND SCENIC RIVERS DESIGNATION

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 3568) to designate 51.7 miles of the Clarion River, located in Pennsylvania, as a component of the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 3568

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That section 3(a) of the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act (16 U.S.C. 1274(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

''( ) CLARION RIVER, PENNSYLVANIA.—The 51.7-mile segment of the main stem of the Clarion River from the Allegheny National Forest/State Game Lands Number 44 boundary, located approximately 0.7 miles downstream from the Ridgway Borough limit, to an unnamed tributary in the backwaters of Piney Dam approximately 0.6 miles downstream from Blyson Run, to be administered by the Secretary of Agriculture in the following classifications:

''(A) The approximately 8.6-mile segment of the main stem from the Allegheny National Forest/State Game Lands Number 44 boundary, located approximately 0.7 miles downstream from the Ridgway Borough limit, to Portland Mills, as a recreational river.

''(B) The approximately 8-mile segment of the main stem from Portland Mills to the Allegheny National Forest boundary, located approximately 0.8 miles downstream from Irwin Run, as a scenic river.

''(C) The approximately 26-mile segment of the main stem from the Allegheny National Forest boundary, located approximately 0.8 miles downstream from Irwin Run, to the State Game Lands 283 boundary, located approximately 0.9 miles downstream from the Cooksburg bridge, as a recreational river.

''(D) The approximately 9.1-mile segment of the main stem from the State Game Lands 283 boundary, located approximately 0.9 miles downstream from the Cooksburg bridge, to an unnamed tributary at the backwaters of Piney Dam, located approximately 0.6 miles downstream from Blyson Run, as a scenic river.''.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Utah [Mr. HANSEN] and the gentleman from American Samoa [Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA] each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Utah [Mr. HANSEN].

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. HANSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, this is a good bill, introduced by our colleague Mr. CLINGER, which provides for the designation of 51.7 miles of the Clarion River in Pennsylvania under the Wild and Scenic River Act. About 60 percent of the river courses through Forest Service and State game lands, and the balance is abutted by private property owners. The Forest Service has studied this river pursuant to a directive by Congress several years ago. The Forest Service found strong local support for designation of the river, as attested to by a proclamation issued by Gov. Tom Ridge designating June 1996 as Clarion River Month.

The administration fully supports this legislation and I am aware of no objections to it, therefore, I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 3568.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, H.R. 3568 would designate 51.7 miles of the Clarion River in Pennsylvania, as a component of the national wild and scenic rivers system. I would note for the RECORD that we are being asked to proceed to designate the Clarion River despite the fact that the wild and scenic river study that this House authorized in the 102d Congress has not been completed. However, we had favorable testimony on this proposal from the administration, the bill's sponsor, and the local community. That being the case we will not object H.R. 3568, and I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER], the author of the legislation.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Speaker, it is an honor to stand here today and to rise in support of H.R. 3568—a bill to designate 51.7 miles of the Clarion River—located in Pennsylvania—as part of the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System.

This effort started 4 years ago when the Clarion River became eligible for study by direction of Public Law 102–271 which conveyed a wild and scenic designation upon the Allegheny River.

In March of this year, the Forest Service determined after lengthy analysis that 51.7 miles of the Clarion River contain outstanding scenic and recreational values of regional significance. Mr. Speaker, while I do not share the professional expertise of those who made this determination, I can attest to the fact that the eligible corridor is indeed a natural and beautiful environmental treasure.

The Clarion River corridor is located in the unglaciated Allegheny plateau, is free flowing and relatively slow moving. For that reason, more than 130,000 people have floated on the Clarion River in 1995. In fact, one of my staff members had the opportunity to float the river this summer during celebration of Pennsylvania Rivers Month during which the Clarion River was recognized.

Apart from the Clarion River's recreational value—which winds its way through the Allegheny National Forest—its hallmark is its beauty and serenity. I strongly believe that such a unique natural resource-especially in the eastern United States—should be preserved and protected for the enjoyment of this and future generations.

And judging from the communication that I have had with the residents of the area over the past 4 years, they overwhelmingly agree. During hearings on H.R. 3568 before Chairman HANSEN's Subcommittee on National Parks, Forests, and Lands, we heard positive testimony from two residents of the Clarion area—one private landowner and one travel and tourism representative.

The testimony of Ms. Kimberly Miller, a landowner herself and a self-described caretaker of the land, was especially important considering her property along the corridor has been in family ownership since 1883.

Another Pennsylvania resident came to the Capitol for the hearing last July to tell the subcommitttee about the economic benefit that will follow designation of the corridor. Mr. David Morris, executive director of a regional visitors bureau, stated that according to the U.S. Travel Data Center, more than $127 million are spent annually by visitors to the Clarion area. This translates into some 1,700 jobs and over $3 million in local tax receipts—jobs and revenue that might well be lost in the future if the extraordinary recreational values of the river became degraded.

Despite the many positive comments I received about H.R. 3568, and the outpouring of public support that fueled this effort from the start, that's not to say reservations have not been voiced, but the critics have been few and largely limited to those who oppose any designation under the act on philosophical grounds.

It has been my goal since the inception of this project to maintain an open dialog with any and all interested parties. Pending passage of this measure, drafting of the management plan for the river will be developed with the same goal in mind: to achieve consensus among local, State, and Federal agencies along with the interests of private citizens.

I believe it's important to note that H.R. 3568 does not contain any unfunded mandates; does not permit the Government to acquire land through condemnation since more than 50 percent of the land is publicly owned; and would merely require the continuation of a requirement to submit new permit applications for projects on public lands to be reviewed by the responsible State or Federal agency. This has already been the case since 1992.

Mr. Speaker, I want to very gratefully thank all of my Pennsylvania colleagues—Republican and Democrat—who lent their support to this effort, including 15 Pennsylvania House Members and both of our Members from the other body—who introduced companion legislation in the Senate. Their cosponsorship is testimony to the fact that preservation of our national resources is an issue that knows no boundaries—congressional or otherwise.

I believe the words spoken by one of my constituents best capture the sentiment and commitment by residents to see the successful conclusion of this effort, as part of our national infrastructure, this employer will not relocate for warmer weather or for less expensive labor as some other industries have done. The Clarion is part of us and is here as long as we are.

So, Mr. Speaker, in the waning days of the 104th Congress—which brings to a close my career as a Member of this House—it's a great opportunity to consider and pass this legislation which means so much to the people who have sent me back to Washington for the past 18 years. While I have been fortunate to guide many very important reform measures through the House this year, H.R. 3568 allowed me to work hand in hand with the citizens who are passionate about preserving our local resources for the benefit of fellow Pennsylvanians and all Americans.

With that, I want to thank Chairman YOUNG and Chairman HANSEN for their support over the past months in bringing this measure to the floor.

Mr. Speaker, I also express my appreciation to the gentleman from American Samoa for his willingness to also support the legislation.

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I certainly would like to commend the gentleman from Pennsylvania who is the chief sponsor of this legislation and am most appreciative of his comments. We do not have any additional speakers, but I want to say to the gentleman from Pennsylvania that hopefully sometime in the future I look forward to visiting the Clarion Wild River and perhaps even asking other Members.

I can say also to the gentleman from Pennsylvania, we have a very sensitive appreciation of what it means to try to pass legislation for not 1 year, not for 2 years, 3 years, but for 4 years. Sometimes our friends from downtown are not exactly very cooperative of some of the things that we here as Members have tried to do in formulating pieces of legislation.

With that, Mr. Speaker, I want to commend again the gentleman from Pennsylvania for bringing this piece of legislation to the floor and having the sense of bipartisanship and support of this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Utah [Mr. HANSEN] that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3568.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks on the bill just passed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BURTON of Indiana). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Utah?

There was no objection.

WEKIVA RIVER, SEMINOLE CREEK, AND ROCK SPRINGS RUN, FL, NATIONAL WILD AND SCENIC RIVERS SYSTEM STUDY

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill

(H.R. 3155) to amend the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act by designating the Wekiva River, Seminole Creek, and Rock Springs Run in the State of Florida for study and potential addition to the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 3155

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. ADDITIONAL DESIGNATION.

Section 5(a) of the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act (16 U.S.C. 1276(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

''( ) WEKIVA RIVER, FLORIDA.—(A) The entire river.

''(B) The Seminole Creek tributary.

''(C) The Rock Springs Run tributary.''.

SEC. 2. STUDY AND REPORT.

Section 5(b) of the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act (16 U.S.C. 1276(b)) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

''( ) The study of the Wekiva River and the tributaries designated in paragraph ( ) of subsection (a) shall be completed and the report transmitted to Congress not later than two years after the date of the enactment of this paragraph.''.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Utah [Mr. HANSEN] and the gentleman from American Samoa [Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA] each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Utah [Mr. HANSEN].

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. HANSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, this is a noncontroversial bill, introduced by our colleague, Mr. MCCOLLUM, which authorizes the administration to conduct a study to determine if the Wekiva River in Florida should be designated for protection under the Wild and Scenic River Act. The river has rich biological diversity, and is already protected under Florida State law. The State of Florida supports protection of this river so strongly that it has already acquired 20,000 acres for preservation purposes along its shores. This legislation will enhance efforts already undertaken at the State and local level.

The legislation is supported by the administration which has been listed on the National Park Service's nationwide river inventory for potential study.

The bill directs the administration to complete their study in 2 years. The administration normally takes 3 years to complete wild and scenic river studies, but in this case, where so much is known about the river, that length of time is unnecessary. I know of no objections to this legislation and encourage all Members to support it.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, H.R. 3155 amends the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act by designating the Wekiva River and its tributaries in the State of Florida for study and potential addition to the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System. The administration testified in favor of the measure and we also understand that there is local support for such a study. The information to be gained from such a study should be helpful in providing for the care and use of these river resources. As such we have no objection to H.R. 3155, and I ask my colleagues to support this legislation.

I want to commend the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM] for introducing this bill and again thank members of the Committee from both sides of the aisle for their support of this measure.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to add that this bill directs the administration to complete their study in 2 years. The administration normally takes 3 years to complete wild and scenic river studies, but in this case there is so much known about this river the length of time is unnecessary.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM], the sponsor of the bill.

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased that we are now considering H.R. 3155, a bill to designate the Wekiva River, Seminole Creek, and Rock Springs Run in central Florida for study and potential addition to the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System. Naturally, I think this is a good bill and would like to express my gratitude for the work done by the Committee on Resources and the Subcommittee on National Parks, Forests and Lands. I would like to personally thank my good friends and colleagues Chairman YOUNG and Chairman HANSEN, as well as their knowledgeable, helpful staff for their efforts.

The Wekiva River Basin provides historical, recreational, and educational opportunities for residents and visitors. The area is rich in natural resources, and once provided a home for prehistoric inhabitants. Eleven archaeologic sites associated with various Native American cultures have been identified. The location of the Wekiva River also allows for the study of a diverse ecosystem and hosts a variety of flora and fauna, including several threatened species such as the West Indian manatee, the American bald eagle, and the Florida black bear. The Wekiva River and Rock Springs Run are also host to over 300,000 visitors a year. The river and the springs which feed into the basin provide visitors with opportunities for canoeing, swimming, fishing, hiking, and horseback riding along nature trails.

I am sure that the Wekiva more than qualifies for the designation of a National Wild and Scenic River. As someone who literally lives down the street from the river, I can personally attest to its delicate beauty and value that should be preserved. The river and its major tributaries are already designated as Outstanding Florida Waters and a State Wild and Scenic River, and the State of Florida has identified the land around the Wekiva as a priority for preservation. A national designation, should it follow after the study, would prohibit Federal agencies from altering, or granting a permit to alter, the natural flow of the river. These protections would ensure that the river remains a source of enjoyment and education for future generations.

Additionally, a Federal designation would be consistent with State policy, which has already recognized the importance of this river. The Secretary of the Florida Department of Environmental Protection has said that passage of this legislation would be a ''great example of local, State, and Federal governments, environmental organizations, and community leaders partnering for increased protection of one Florida's greatest nature treasures.''

Mr. Speaker, my bill has bipartisan support, and I have received assurances that the appropriate State agencies will work with the Department of the Interior to help expedite this study as much as possible. I believe the time has come for the Federal Government to consider making one of central Florida's treasures, the Wekiva River, a National Wild and Scenic River. I urge an ''aye'' vote.

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MICA].

Mr. MICA. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished gentleman from Utah for yielding this time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to join my colleague, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM] as a cosponsor of this legislation, and I want to salute his leadership. Mr. MCCOLLUM had the opportunity to represent this area before I came to Congress, and now, as my colleagues heard, lives close to the Wekiva River, and he has taken this step which really will do two things: first, the scenic designation which is so important; and also a second step will be to allow us to review what is going on with this river to see that it can be preserved and restored if necessary, for future generations.

So this is a piece of legislation that has a great deal of meaning for the gentleman for Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM] and also myself. I am privileged to represent the 7th Congressional District of Florida, and that is the great growing area from Orlando to Daytona Beach which is just mushrooming since I was elected to Congress. We have two new cities in my district just in 3-plus years. So this area is being encroached upon by development and by other factors, and we do need to take a close look at what we are doing in this natural reserve and preserve area.

I am also pleased and want to thank particularly Secretary Babbitt, the gentleman from Ohio, Mr. REGULA, Senator MACK, and others who have assisted us in trying to connect the Ocala National Forest with the Wekiva Estate Park and acquire 18,000 acres along this area. This Congress has done more than anyone in the history that I know of, of the State or the Congress, in preserving that area which will connect the national forests with the State park and also with the scenic designation do a great deal in preserving an incredibly beautiful area for future generations.

So again I am pleased to join the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM]. I thank the gentleman for his leadership on this and others, and I urge my colleagues to pass this very productive legislation.

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MCCOLLUM] for his comments, and also as the chief sponsor of this piece of legislation. I am sure that the good residents of his district as well as the good people of Florida will benefit from this piece of legislation when it is passed.

Again in the spirit of bipartisanship on this committee I would like to thank him, and certainly also the gentleman from Florida [Mr. MICA] for his support, and again I ask my colleagues that we support this piece of legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Utah [Mr. HANSEN] that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3155, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks on the bill just passed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Utah?

There was no objection.

SNOQUALMIE NATIONAL FOREST BOUNDARY ADJUSTMENT ACT OF 1996

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 3497) to expand the boundary of the Snoqualmie National Forest, and for other purposes, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 3497

Be it enacted by the Senate and House Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Snoqualmie National Forest Boundary Adjustment Act of 1996''.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds the following:

(1) Certain private lands in the State of Washington presently owned by Weyerhaeuser Company and others are located adjacent to the Snoqualmie National Forest and are logical extensions of the forest.

(2) A boundary adjustment will facilitate a land exchange which involves approximately 7,200 acres of National Forest land and 33,000 acres of private land owned by Weyerhaeuser Company, of which 6,278 acres are outside the present Snoqualmie National Forest boundary.

(3) Weyerhaeuser Company and the Forest Service are prepared to exchange these lands, which will benefit both the United States and Weyerhaeuser by consolidating their respective land-ownership holdings and providing reduced costs for each party to implement their land management objectives, providing an opportunity to implement more effective ecosystem based management, providing increased recreation opportunities for the American public, providing enhanced fish and wildlife habitat protection, and supporting the ''Mountains-to-the Sound'' goal of a continuous greenway between the Cascade Mountains and Puget Sound.

SEC. 3. BOUNDARY MODIFICATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Agriculture is hereby directed to modify the boundary of the Snoqualmie National Forest to include and encompass 10,589.47 acres, more or less, as generally depicted on a map entitled ''Snoqualmie National Forest Proposed 1996 Boundary Modification'' dated July 1, 1996. Such map, together with a legal description of all lands included in the boundary adjustment, shall be on file and available for public inspection in the Office of the Chief of the Forest Service in Washington, District of Columbia.

(b) RULE FOR LAND AND WATER CONSERVATION FUND.—For the purposes of section 7 of the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965 (16 U.S.C. 460*l*–9), the boundary of the Snoqualmie National Forest, as modified pursuant to subsection (a), shall be considered to be the boundary of that National Forest as of January 1, 1965.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Utah [Mr. HANSEN] and the gentleman from American Samoa [Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA] each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Utah [Mr. HANSEN].

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. HANSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 3497, introduced by Ms. DUNN of Washington. This legislation modifies the boundary of the Snoqualmie National Forest to facilitate a land exchange. It is needed because approximately 6,300 acres of land that would be exchanged to the Government is outside the national forest boundary. H.R. 3497 is a bipartisan bill, introduced by the entire Washington delegation, and it has support from the administration and the public.

The land exchange has been 12 years in the making. It is the result of a collaborative effort between the Sierra Club's Checkerboard Project and the Weyerhaeuser Co. The Forest Service will exchange approximately 7,200 acres of national forest land for 33,000 acres of private lands owned by the Weyerhaeuser Co. The exchange is based on equal values of land and timber.

In addition to the trade, the agreement will result in a substantial donation of land from Weyerhaeuser to the Forest Service, including approximately 900 acres which will be added to the Alpine Lakes Wilderness.

Since 1991, surveys of the land and timber resources have been completed, and the biological, archaeological and wetland resources on the two ownerships have been thoroughly studied. In July, 1996, the Forest Service completed a draft environmental impact statement [EIS] for the land exchange and requested public comment on the proposal. Three public meetings were held to discuss the land exchange and the draft EIS. Once a final EIS and record of decision are completed, H.R. 3497 will provide the authority the Forest Service needs to acquire the lands that lie outside the current forest boundary.

I commend my colleague, Ms. DUNN, for her leadership on this excellent measure. The environment and the people of the Puget Sound region will benefit as a result. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation and vote with in favor of H.R. 3497.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, I am unaware of any problems with this legislation, H.R. 3497. The bill would alter the boundaries of a national forest in the State of Washington to facilitate a land exchange that appears to be in the public interest. I understand the bill has the support of the various interested parties and I have no obligation to the legislation.

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I have no requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, I have no requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Utah [Mr. HANSEN] that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3497, as amended.

The question was taken.

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 5 of rule I and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 3497, the bill just considered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. It there objection to the request of the gentleman from Utah?

There was no objection.

INDIAN ENVIRONMENTAL GENERAL ASSISTANCE PROGRAM ACT REAUTHORIZATION

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the Senate bill (S. 1834) to reauthorize the Indian Environmental General Assistance Program Act of 1992, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read as follows:

S. 1834

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. REAUTHORIZATION.

Section 502(h) of the Indian Environmental General Assistance Program Act of 1992 (42 U.S.C. 4368b(h)) is amended by striking ''$15,000,000'' and inserting ''such sums as may be necessary''.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Utah [Mr. HANSEN] and the gentleman from American Samoa [Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA] each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Utah [Mr. HANSEN].

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

S. 1834 would reauthorize the Indian Environmental General Assistance Program Act of 1992. That Act provides general assistance to Indian tribes so that they can address environmental issues on Indian lands.

Through the funding provided in this Act, Tribes are able to implement solid and hazardous waste programs on their own lands. In this way Tribes are able to fulfill self-government requirements by managing their own affairs using their own expertise and their own experience.

To date over 100 tribes have received grants under this act. At present tribes are developing environmental agreements which will identify environmental priorities and which will allow Tribes to implement programs for water quality, solid waste management, air quality, and pesticide management.

This is an important bill, Mr. Speaker. It authorizes such sums as may be necessary for what I understand is vital funding to Indian Tribes throughout our Nation.

□ 2215

I recommend a yes vote on H.R. 1834, and I reserve the balance of my time, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I nay consume.

(Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, S. 1834 simply amends the Indian Environmental General Assistance Program Act of 1992 to change the authorization of funds available under the program from the current level of $15 million to ''such sums as may be necessary''. Funding levels will still be subject to inclusion in an appropriations bill and submitted each year to Congress.

This program awards general assistance grants to Indian tribal Governments to enhance their ability to manage environmental programs on Indian lands. To date approximately 100 tribes have received multi media grants allowing them to develop and implement environmental protection procedures. However the need far outweighs the current limit on funding. $28 million is included in appropriations language for fiscal year 19997 for this program.

With the grant assistance from this program, Indian tribes have developed comprehensive environmental programs in the areas of solid and hazardous waste management, water and air quality, and pesticide management. The Penobsoct Indian Nation of Maine has established an award winning water resources program. This program had been nationally recognized as a model for State-Tribal-Federal cooperation. Some tribes have been able to clean up solid and hazardous waste sites on their land with the help of this program. Still other tribes have closed open-air dumps, established recycling programs, identified leaking underground storage tanks and potential superfund sites.

Mr. Speaker, the cost of this program is minimal compared to the return this nation, in cooperation with American Indian nations, gains. I urge my colleagues to support passage of this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. [Mr. BURTON of Indiana]. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Utah, Mr. HANSEN, that the House suspend the rules and pass the Senate bill, S. 1834.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the Senate bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on S. 1834, the Senate bill just passed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Utah?

There was no objection.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

HONORING RETIRING WOMEN MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Maryland [Mrs. MORELLA] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to give this special order honoring the women Members who will be retiring next year. I am saddened that so many talented women are planning to leave Congress, and I wanted to take this opportunity tonight to express our gratitude for their many contributions during their years of service.

I am going to proceed in order of years of service—first, PAT SCHROEDER, the dean of the women Members of Congress. PAT was elected in 1972, and became the first woman to serve on the House Armed Services Committee. During her service on that Committee, PAT has been the champion of women in the military and military families. She has also served on the Judiciary Committee for many years, where she led the fight to expand civil rights protections and reproductive rights for women.

For 1979 until 1995, PAT served as the co-chair, along with Senator OLYMPIA SNOWE, of the Congressional Caucus for Women's Issues. Under their leadership, Congress approved a number of landmark bills, including the Family and Medical Leave Act, the Violence Against Women Act, the Civil Rights Restoration Act, the National Institutes of Health Revitalization Act, which made great strides in bringing equity to women's health research, and so many other reforms benefiting women and children. I have been honored to be one of the two co-chairs, along with my colleague and good friend, NITA LOWEY, to succeed PAT and now-Senator OLYMPIA SNOWE.

PAT also served for many years as the chair of the former Select Committee on Children, Youth, and Families, and brought national attention to a number of issues facing children and families. She is currently serving as chair of the Women's Caucus Task Force on Children, Youth, and Families. I also had the pleasure of serving with her on the former Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, where she served as chair of the Civil Service Subcommittee, and I can also attest to her commitment to federally employed and retired women.

It is hard to imagine this House and the Women's Caucus without PAT SCHROEDER. She will be greatly missed.

CARDISS COLLINS is another distinguished senior woman in the House and the longest serving African-American woman in Congress. I have had the pleasure of serving with her on the Committee on Government Reform, and I have been impressed with her perseverance on that committee. She has been a strong advocate for women, families, the poor, and Federal workers and retirees.

During her service in Congress, CARDISS has worked to improve the health of women and minorities. She was the sponsor of legislation extending Medicare coverage for mammography screening and sponsored legislation that expanded Medicaid coverage for Pap smears. CARDISS sponsored legislation that established a permanent Office on Minority Health at NIH, and is the author of several laws addressing child abuse prevention and child safety.

CARDISS has been particularly active in fighting for gender equity in college athletics. Her advocacy of title IX led to her induction into the Women and Girls' Sports Hall of Fame in 1994. CARDISS' leadership on these issues has been instrumental, and she will be missed.

BARBARA VUCANOVICH has served in this body for seven terms, and is the first woman elected to a Federal office from Nevada and the first Nevadan to serve in a leadership position in the House; she was elected secretary of the Republican Conference earlier this year. She is the only Republican woman on the Appropriations Committee and she is the second woman in history to become an appropriations subcommittee chair.

BARBARA has made many contributions to equity in women's health research. As a breast cancer survivor, BARBARA has brought her own experience to the fight against breast cancer. In her work on the Appropriations Committee, she has been a champion of breast cancer research, both at the National Institutes of Health and the Department of Defense. She has been a vocal advocate for regular and affordable mammograms and is the sponsor of legislation to provide annual mammograms for older women under Medicare and Medicaid. BARBARA's efforts on behalf of women and families will be missed, and I know that she will continue her work for breast cancer prevention and research after she leaves Congress.

JAN MEYERS was first elected to the House in 1984, and is currently the Chair of the House Small Business Committee, the first Republican woman since 1954 to chair a House committee. Her expertise on small business issues has been invaluable, and she chairs the Women's Caucus Task Force on Entrepreneurship and Economic Equity. JAN has worked very hard to restore the home office deduction and she has focused on promoting tax incentives and regulatory relief for small businesses. She has also worked to expand access to capital for small businesses.

JAN has been a consistent and strong supporter of the rights of women, particularly the reproductive rights of women here in this country and abroad. She has served on the International Relations Committee, where she has pursued her commitment to raising the status of women in developing countries. Last year, JAN sponsored amendments to both the foreign aid authorization and appropriations bills to protect family planning funding so that women and their families can take control of decisions relating to the size of their families and the spacing of their children. I am saddened to see JAN go, and her strong support of women and families will be sorely missed.

BARBARA ROSE COLLINS was elected to Congress in 1990; she was the first African-American woman elected to the U.S. Congress from the State of Michigan. I have served with her on the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight, where she is the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Postal Service. During the 103d Congress, BARBARA-ROSE served as the Chair of the Subcommittee on Postal Operations. During her service in Congress, BARBARA-ROSE sponsored legislation to combat stalking and to increase breast cancer research. She also chaired the Congressional Caucus on Children, Youth, and Families in the 103d Congress. I know she will continue her work on behalf of women and families after she leaves this body.

BLANCHE LAMBERT LINCOLN became the first woman to represent the First District of Arkansas when she was elected in 1992. BLANCHE serves on the Commerce Committee, and helped form The Coalition, a group of conservative House Democrats who have sponsored a number of important legislative initiatives. The Coalition has worked with the Tuesday Group, a group of moderate Republicans, to which I belong, and I believe our groups have contributed a great deal to the compromises developed on a number of issues in this Congress. BLANCHE has also done a great deal to enhance rural development in her district. I congratulate her on the birth of her twin boys this summer, and I am sure that her departure from public service is only a temporary one?

ENID GREENE was elected in 1994, and was the first Republican freshman to be appointed to the House Rules Committee in 80 years. She serves on the Congressional Family Caucus, the House Small Business Survival Caucus, and the Executive Committee of the Republican Congressional Committee. ENID has been a strong advocate for lobbying and budget reform. She also has the distinction of being the first Republican Member of Congress to give birth while in office. I wish her well in the future.

Mr. Speaker, the departure of these many women Members is a great loss for this body. I will be working with these distinguished Members and my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to ensure that more women are assigned to important committee positions and that more women run for leadership posts in both parties. I salute these outstanding women members of Congress, and I look forward to continuing to work with them after they leave the House.

Mr. Speaker, I believe very firmly that every time a woman is elevated, all women are elevated, and society is richer for it.

RETIRING WOMEN MEMBERS OF CONGRESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Texas [Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of our seven retiring women Members of Congress, women who have diligently served their constituents and paved the road for many women ahead.

CARDISS COLLINS

First, I wish to recognize Congresswoman CARDISS COLLINS, the longest serving African-American woman in Congress. Congresswoman COLLINS has worked to improve the quality of health care for women and minorities.

She has authored legislation which expanded Medicare coverage for mammographies and Pap smears which detect cervical and uterine cancers.

In addition, the Congresswoman was the guiding force for legislation which established a permanent office on minority health within the National Institutes of Health.

Not only has Congresswoman COLLINS forged the way for women and women's issues, she has also made significant strides in other legislative areas.

As chair of the Subcommittee on Commerce, Consumer Protection, and Competitiveness, she enacted the Child Abuse Prevention Act and the Child Safety Protection Act.

The Congresswoman's efforts also led to the adoption of the Aviation Security Improvement Act.

Congresswoman COLLINS has been the first in many of her endeavors, including:

First woman and African-American to be Democratic whip-at-large;

And, first woman and African-American to serve as chair of two subcommittees: (1) the Government Operations Subcommittee on Manpower and Housing, and;

(2) Subcommittee on Commerce, Consumer Protection, and Competitiveness. And the list goes on.

Our working together in Congress has been great, but it does not surpass our social and personal relationship that has grown over the years.

I met CARDISS shortly after she came to the Hill, and I was one of her sponsors for membership in both Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc., and the Links Inc.—two organizations that are near and dear to my heart.

I have enjoyed sharing my family with her family. She knows that my door is always open to her, and vice versa. I have always been greeted with open arms and enjoyed her home-cooked meals * * * and there is nothing better than CARDISS COLLINS home-cooked rolls!

There is no doubt that I, along with your constituents and other Members of Congress will miss the wisdom and energy you brought to the House.

Congresswoman COLLINS, please know that we appreciate all that you have done and what you symbolize. I know that you have inspired other women to fulfill their leadership potential.

PATRICIA SCHROEDER

As the longest-serving woman in the House, Congresswoman SCHROEDER's outspoken and independent voice will be greatly missed by all of us.

Through the years, Congresswoman SCHROEDER has worked tirelessly and has demonstrated leadership in the areas of foreign and military policy, arms control and disarmament, as well as women's economic equity and health, and educational opportunity.

From 1979 until 1995, Congresswoman SCHROEDER cochaired the Congressional Caucus for Women's Issues.

Under her leadership, the Caucus launched an effort to improve women's health policies by submitting a comprehensive legislative package entitled the ''Women's Health Equity Act.'' During the 103d Congress, several bills from this act were signed into law.

On a more personal note, I was a part of your audience during your brief pursuit for the office of the Presidency.

I have no doubt that with all of the knowledge and leadership abilities that you possess, we will definitely see you again in the political arena.

Congresswoman SCHROEDER, tonight I join with my colleagues in commending you for your many hard fought battles on behalf of the women and children of the world.

BARBARA ROSE COLLINS

As a fellow Congressional Black Caucus member, I would also like to wish Congresswoman BARBARA ROSE COLLINS well in her retirement.

BLANCHE LAMBERT LINCOLN

Congratulations also to Congresswoman BLANCHE LAMBERT LINCOLN, my classmate from the neighboring State of Arkansas.

Congresswoman LINCOLN, you are a bright and rising star. Good luck as you take your sabbatical to share your time with your family.

Finally, though I have not had long acquaintances with the other retiring Members, I hear that there is life after office.

I hope that you will have positive and fruitful experiences whether you choose to focus on family or continue to serve the public.

Best wishes all.

REVIEW OF CONTRACT WITH AMERICA AND OTHER ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF 104TH CONGRESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BURTON of Indiana). Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WICKER] is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. WICKER. Mr. Speaker, this Friday marks a very significant day for me and many of my colleagues and, most importantly, for millions of Americans. This Friday, September 27, is the 2-year, is the 2-year anniversary of the signing of the Contract With America. When more than 300 Republicans gathered on the steps of the U.S. Capitol in 1994 to sign the Contract With America, it was not some kind of campaign gimmick. It was a commitment that we made, a signed contract with the people of the United States.

At this point the pages are bringing a copy of that contract to the well to place by my colleague, the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. GUTKNECHT].

We promised if we were elected to the majority 10 broad legislative proposals would be debated, discussed and voted on by the full House of Representatives. For years, many of these issues had been bottled up in committee, never making it to the floor, never seeing the light day, the positions of our elected officials never examined by public scrutiny.

We set out to change that by making a solemn promise to the people of America, not an empty promise. The American people deserve much more than that. That is why we put our promise in the form of a signed contract.

All too frequently in today's political arena, promises are made and then not kept. Representative government, our government, Mr. Speaker, is not well served when our elected officials say one thing at home on the campaign trail, but then take office and come up here to Washington and do something other than that which they promised. This dishonest practice undermines the very fabric of our government's integrity and further promotes the negative cynicism with which Americans view Congress.

The Contract With America was the first step in changing that negative perception of Congress. We put forth a positive agenda, an agenda that sought to help make this great country an even better place to live, work and raise our children.

Mr. Speaker, we campaigned on a positive agenda, and we were elected to a majority on that agenda. We changed the direction of debate in Washington through that agenda. No longer are people talking about a larger Federal role. The discussion and debate now in Washington, DC, is how we can make government more efficient, how we can make the Federal role small, and emphasize individual responsibility and State and local control. And, best of all, we kept our word to the American people.

At this point, I want to quote a story written by columnist David Broder, dated April 9, 1995. True words then and just as true today. David Broder said this: ''It is healthy for our politics and politicians, regardless of affiliation, when the public sees elected officials doing what they promised.''

Mr. Broder goes on to say, ''The greatest threat to our system of government is rampant cynicism. The best cure for cynicism is to demonstrate that campaigns and elections really matter,'' and Mr. Broder then says, ''The House Republicans have provided such a demonstration.''

For over 40 years, one party held the majority in this House of Representatives. As a result, we have high taxes. Almost 40 percent of a family's income goes to pay for government. We have mountains of bureaucratic regulations, bigger government, but we also have lower student test scores and a skyrocketing crime rate.

In 1994, Republicans summoned the courage to finally throw down the gauntlet and offer the people what they said they wanted and what they deserved, a balanced budget amendment, tax relief for families, safe neighborhoods for themselves and their children, an end to the lifelong dependency on welfare, a Congress which will be accountable to those people they serve. But in the history of American politics, there have been few occasions where something has been so misrepresented and so maligned as the Contract With America.

Our colleagues from the other side of the aisle have spent literally hundreds of hours on the floor attempting to destroy and to distort what the Contract With America means and what we stand for.

Just to provide you some examples, Mr. Speaker, a colleague of mine from the other side of the aisle took the floor the other day and said the Contract With America would have cut Medicare, a completely false statement. There is nothing whatsoever in the Contract With America about Medicare, much less cutting Medicare. That it would have cut environmental protection, cut education, all to give tax cuts to the wealthy. Four completely erroneous statements in the space of one sentence. It is enough to take your breath away, Mr. Speaker.

Another quote from the Boston Globe: ''Republicans' Contract With America failed to capture the hearts and minds of the average American family, especially that new breed, the Reagan Democrats.''

And then the would-be Speaker, our current minority leader, said earlier this year, ''This was supposed to be the Congress of the Republican contract and somewhere along the line we've got a lost contract there.''

I will tell you where the contract is, to my distinguished colleague from Missouri, the contract is 65 percent signed into law right now. Sixty-five percent of the items that we voted on in the Contract With America have not only been passed by this body, but have been passed by the U.S. Senate and signed into law by the Democrat President of the United States.

Under the Contract With America, the 104th Congress took the first steps toward transforming government, not only to provide a smaller, more efficient government but a better government. We passed legislation as part of the contract that moves power, money and authority from inside the Beltway to the States, communities and families.

Tonight, Mr. Speaker, I am joined by several of my freshman colleagues from all across the Nation, north, south, east and west, and we are here tonight to set the record straight.

First, contrary to the inflamed rhetoric of my Democratic colleagues and much of the news media, the Contract With America was largely successful. I know that my friend from Minnesota is chomping at the bit to get in his two cents' worth, and I at this point yield to the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. GUTKNECHT]. Certainly I know that he shares my frustration when we have 65 percent of the contract passed, 74 of the separate pieces of legislation were offered, and 48 of these are part of the law of the land.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. I would like to thank my colleague from Mississippi and I am delighted we have a good turnout tonight of some of our fellow freshmen. I would like to talk a little bit first of all about the revisionist history. I think it was Mark Twain who said, ''Truth is incontrovertible. Ignorance may deride it, jealousy may attack it, but in the end there it is.''

I think if the American people will take just a few minutes to examine what we promised 2 years ago tomorrow, and what this Congress actually delivered for the American people, I think they will come to the conclusion that first of all we meant what we said, we said what we meant, and that in the end I think their will has been done by this Congress. For the first time in 40 years, we have a Congress that not only has listened to the American people but has responded as well.

I don't want to take too much time tonight, but I do want to share a couple of observations and memories of those days, and those days that I remember, the most remarkable days of all, were those glorious days and the first was on September 27, 1994 when we signed the contract. It was a glorious day. In fact, if you recall, it was kind of cloudy early in the morning but as we approached the Capitol steps, and there were over 300 of us there, the sun began to shine and it was almost like it was providence or prophetic that the sun came out on America again and that there was going to come a day when the sun would shine here on this Capitol and inside this Capitol building as well.

The other day that I remember that was so glorious was election day. I don't know if ever I told this story or not, but when we were watching the returns back in Rochester, Minnesota, I think it was Dan Rather, he announced that it appeared that I was going to win the 1st Congressional District seat, a seat that had been held by the Democrats for 12 years, and in the next breath, he said, ''It now appears that the Republicans will have enough votes to control the United States House of Representatives and that NEWT GINGRICH will be the next Speaker of the House.''

Well, that was certainly a glorious day for me and I think for all of us here. But again I think it was a glorious day for all Americans. And then of course the other glorious day was the day that we were all sworn in and for the first time in 40 years the power of the United States House of Representatives changed hands.

I will never forget the very next day, DICK ARMEY, our majority leader, I was standing behind him and he was interviewed by a reporter, I think, from the New York Times, and the reporter asked our majority leader, the reporter asked, ''How does it feel now that the American people have given you this power?'' And he said something incredibly important then. He said, ''The American people haven't given us power. They loaned us power. They gave us responsibility.''

And so we began on the Contract With America and on that very first day, I remember 2 days before, I was called by the leadership and I was asked if I would take the leadership role on the adoption of the rule for the very first bill, H.R. 1, the Congressional Accountability Act. I sort of thought about it a minute and I said, Well, I'm not certain that I can handle that much responsibility on my very first day on the job but I said yes. And the interesting thing was that the leadership had enough confidence in this freshman class that they let us take the lead on the adoption of every rule of the first 10 items of changing the rules of the House the very first day on the job here in the House of Representatives.

We marched through it that night, we passed the Congressional Accountability Act, we passed the Congressional Audit Act, we made, as I say, the House live by the same laws as everybody else. We ended the idea that chairmen of committees could serve forever. We put term limits on chairmen. We opened up the committee process. We eliminated proxy voting. All of that happened on the very first day and what a glorious day it was. And it was as if almost that the dam had broken and we had begun to change the course of history.

And then we marched on down through the rest of the contract and again I was very proud of this House, because every day, I will never forget as well when we started the House sessions, we would read the Contract With America and it kept us on message, it kept us in focus, it kept us doing what we said we were going to do.

So it was a very positive time in American history and I was very proud to have played a part of it. I know we have got other freshman colleagues and I know they have got a lot of other observations, but I thank the gentleman from Mississippi for asking for this special order and I am thankful that I have had an opportunity to participate.

Mr. JONES. If the gentleman will yield, I really appreciate the opening remarks by the gentleman from Mississippi, my southern friend. But the gentleman from Minnesota talked about the first day and I think that is so important because again it was the beginning of the Contract With America. You mentioned the fact that chairmen were restricted on committees. I believe I am correct, please correct me if I am wrong, that a chairman will serve for 3 terms, meaning 6 years. The Speaker of the House would only serve for 4 terms, 8 years. And that was a drastic change in the operation of the House, because there had been chairmen that served for 15, for 18, for 20 years and Speakers that go back to John McCormack from Massachusetts who I think served for like 20 or 25 years.

So that very first day, as you well stated, was the beginning of listening to the American people, that we were going to change the way that the Congress, the House of Representatives, operated. I think that set the tone for a very successful 104th Congress. I just wanted to commend the gentleman on his comments.

Mr. WICKER. If I could simply add to that point made by my friend from North Carolina, it might seem to some Americans that perhaps those first day reforms were inside the Beltway, inside Congress reforms, but actually everything we have done with the Contract With America, everything we have stood for with the Contract With America has been to help the lives of individuals out there running their businesses, getting their kids off to school, and even those first day reforms affect the lives of local citizens all across the 50 States. When Congress agrees finally for the first time in the history of this Republic to abide by the laws that it has foisted off on the rest of the American public, I think everyone agrees that we are going to see better laws passed, that we are going to see more responsible regulations. When we as Congressmen now know that when a regulation is passed on that plumber in Tupelo, MS, that we have to abide by that same wage and hour law ourselves.

I yield to the gentlewoman from California.

Mrs. SEASTRAND. It was great to meet all of you 2 years ago on the steps of the Capitol. We were excited and I still am about what we accomplished in this 104th. I know we all came to Washington to try to move the money, the power, the influence out of this place, and rush it to the folks back at home, the ones that we represent.

But what was interesting, after signing the contract, I just want to remind people that what our promise was was that we were going to bring 10 items up for consideration on this floor, items that were gridlocked in committees, never saw the light of day. They were simple things, things that people back home wanted to have debated.

I would like to remind people what some of these are. We talked about changing the way this place was run, but let us take a look.

Many times people say, oh, well, you all thought of that in some back smoke filled rooms. No, these items were brought into being because the folks at home across America were interested. They wanted to see these items debated. Like the balanced budget amendment, line item veto, stopping violent criminals by having them really have death sentences for violent offenders, definitely saying if you do the crime, you are going to do the time. Welfare reform, protecting our children by giving parents greater control over education and forcing child support payments, getting tough on child pornography.

And they the issue of tax cuts for working families, to say that if you are going to have that American dream, we want to give you the ability to save some dollars, buy a home and send the kids to college. A strong national defense. By golly, if we are going to send our men and women across to different countries, they are going to serve under their Commander in Chief, our President of these United States, and to wear the red, white and blue, and not some symbol of the United Nations.

To raise senior citizens' earning limits, to say to our seniors, you are going to keep what you make. We want you to keep more of what you make. To roll back government regulations, so that in our districts across this Nation, those that are in a small business can make it. And they can hire perhaps one or two more people so we can have job opportunities for people.

Naturally, common sense legal reform, because we have those frivolous lawsuits, the overzealous lawyers. And, as I said, congressional term limits. These were items important to the American people.

Mr. Speaker, I just wanted to break in here and remind people, not only changing the rules, with term limits for chairmen and such, but we wanted to change and bring about things not discussed on this floor.

I would agree with the gentleman from Mississippi with revisionism in history, because here I pick up one of the newspapers from Capitol Hill, Wednesday, September 25, and here is the opening statement: On Friday, House Republicans will convene on the Capitol steps to celebrate a 2-year anniversary of a document that they no longer talk about and an agenda that was never fully enacted.

Well, you know, when I am at home, some of the people that oppose what we are trying to do will say it is a failed contract, and I chuckle. Every time I speak to the Rotary, to the Lions, the Kiwanis, meet with the League of Women Voters and such, I talk about balancing the budget, line item veto, welfare reform, seniors keeping more of what they earn. It is just interesting to me, because somehow, the message is out across this land that the contract has failed.

I am so pleased that you have brought that pie chart to show how even our Democrat colleagues supported the Contract With America, those items Americans wanted us to bring up. And I think we should take it as a compliment that at the Democratic National Convention, the President of these United States, Bill Clinton himself, took credit for many of the accomplishments. Whether it was tax cuts for small businesses, the line item veto, the Congressional Accountability Act that says Congress has to live under the same laws we all have to live under, unfunded mandate reform, the Personal Responsibility Act, the welfare reform bill, and long-term care insurance deductions. All of those were in the Contract with America.

I was pleased, I guess that if the best form of flattery, when someone takes your ideas and says that they are theirs, or they belong to the President.

So I am just pleased to join my colleagues from across this Nation, freshmen, very eager freshmen, when I first met you. And, you know what? You still are. We are going to be excited to come back and continue with many of these reforms that we worked on.

So, gentlemen, congratulations. I am going to see you again on the steps of the Capitol come this Friday, and we are going to have a great celebration. I do not know about you, I am going to tell it from the roof tops of Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo Counties in California and talk about our successes, our accomplishments here in this 104th. I think the people of this country are going to be proud of us, they are. They are always telling me to hang in there, and we are going to see them once again on November 5, telling us they are pleased with our accomplishments.

Mr. WICKER. The gentlewoman from California is not only one of the most principled and determined Members of our freshman class, but also, as you can see, she is one of the most articulate advocates for a common sense conservative point of view with the Contract With America.

We are joined by my colleague from Maryland, Mr. EHRLICH. Welcome to this conversation.

Mr. EHRLICH. I thank my good friend, the gentleman from Mississippi, and the gentlewoman from California. It has been great serving with you. I look forward to another 2 years.

The gentlewoman from California, the gentleman from Minnesota, and the gentleman from North Carolina have talked about this new opportunity agenda that was brought to Washington in 1994. But I was just standing here thinking about, this is substance. This is statute, this is regulation, this is law. This is what we get paid to do. And I submit, we will talk about this, and I think it is equally important to talk about the new mindset that this group brought to this town. I think that is of equal importance, and certainly as important as the substantive agenda that we have all talked about.

We come to this floor every day, and we hear, particularly Republican freshmen, characterized as extreme and dangerous, whatever adjective you can think of. And you know what? They are right. In this town, this new mindset is extreme and dangerous and unique and unprecedented.

Think about it. A group of folks all over the country who actually have a concrete set of principles that they actually believe in, actually lived in their own lives in the private sector, banding together on the steps of the Capitol and saying to the American people, if you elect us, we will bring these initiatives that we actually believe in to the floor of the House for a vote. Having these same folks get elected, come to this floor, and actually do it.

No misrepresentation, no politics as usual, not the old political con. Actually having people of principle come to this town and do exactly what they said they would do during the course of the campaign, real follow-up, promises made, promises kept, and that is extreme and dangerous and unprecedented and unique. And I submit that this town has not seen a group like this in many years.

The gentleman from North Carolina, my good friend, Mr. BURR, has a comment on my comments, and I welcome the gentleman. I will just close with this point: This opportunity agenda, and the gentlewoman from California just read portions of this opportunity agenda, I had my first debate the other week, and my opponent talked about the Contract With America and running from the Contract With America. Running from the Contract With America. These principles define not only this group, but the majority of Americans, a majority of Americans who work and have a stake in this country and in this country's future. That is this agenda, two-thirds signed into law already, 20 percent vetoed by this President. We have some problems. We have made a great start. We have a long way to go. It has been my pleasure to serve with you during these first 2 years.

The gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. BURR. I thank the gentleman for yielding. Mr. EHRLICH's comments remind me of a story shortly after finishing the Contract, when a journalist came up to me and said, ''Congressman, many people in this country consider you to be extremist and radical. What do you think about that?''

I think Roger was in the room with me when the question was asked. I leaned across the table, and I said to this journalist, ''If you think I am radical and extremist, you ought to see the people that elected me.'' And the reality is when we talk about the mind set change in Washington, what we are a reflection of is the people who sent us here. They sent us with a very clear message. And I am like Bob: The label of ''extremist'' and ''radical,'' that does not worry me, because I still carry the Contract. And I challenge any person who wants to debate policy to look at the Contract and tell me what is extreme, what is radical? What would you not attempt to achieve for the American people and/or families across this country? Because the reality is maybe we did not name this right.

Maybe it should have been ''The Common Sense Contract With America,'' because in fact that is what it reflects. As our dear colleague from California discussed, the reality is that this was not too tough to come up with. The reality is that these 10 points were probably items that all 87 Republican and Democrat freshmen came here with a conviction and a commitment stronger than anybody here to accomplish this task, to bring common sense to Washington.

Mr. JONES. If the gentleman would yield on that point, would you please remind us of how much during the President's speech at the Democratic National Convention, how much he tried to take credit on the issues that were in the Contract With America that we passed, and now he is trying to take credit for, that we the Republicans passed? Would you please remind me of that figure?

Mr. BURR. The gentleman has a good point, and I have always learned that math is calculated differently in Washington than it is in the rest of the country. But by North Carolina arithmetic, he hit on 7 of the 10 points of the contract that he highlighted as successes of this administration. I believe that in fact 58 percent on average of the Democrats in the House of Representatives supported Contract items.

Mr. WICKER. That fact is supported by the chart in the well there.

Mr. BURR. It is supported by the chart. And the reality of it is this was not a contract that had a political face. It did not have partisan leanings. When laid out and debated on the House floor, which every item was, 58 percent of the Democrats agreed with the common sense initiatives of the Contract With America. The realities are that when you look at the American people and you ask them about the importance of the issues that we discussed, we debated, and eventually we passed many of them, the reality is that the majority of Americans are in agreement with us.

So maybe if in fact we are extremist or radical, so is America. But I think we knew before we came that the American families were fed up with business as usual in Washington. And I think when you look back on the record, our good friend from Minnesota pointed out very clearly that on the first day, a historical event happened: Congress went to work. And as we stand here tonight, I do not think that we have had a break since then, it seems like.

But the reality is we have accomplished a lot, not only with the contract, but with very important environmental legislation, with health care reform, with issues and legislation that no other Congress in the past 6 to 8 years has been able to move through this body. In fact, the accomplishments of this Congress I think will be historical. Not by the standards of the Contract With America, but by the standards of what this country needed and the right policy that we promoted.

Mr. ENSIGN. If the gentleman will yield, let another Westerner jump in on this fun conversation you all are having here tonight, just to make a comment. Based on what the gentleman from Minnesota probably saw that day standing on the steps of the Capitol when the sun broke through coming from Minnesota, that might have been a rare sight. Coming from southern Nevada, we see it will about 365 days a year, so it probably was not as spectacular a new sight for me.

I am on the Committee on Ways and Means. I was one of the three freshmen appointed to the Committee on Ways and Means, because our leadership had confidence in this freshman class, actually the first Republican freshmen appointed since George Bush back in 1967. And I think that the freshmen have done well on the committee.

My two colleagues, JON CHRISTENSEN and PHIL ENGLISH, I think they have performed in an outstanding manner on the Committee on Ways and Means.

As a representative of the tax writing committee, which is the primary responsibility for the Committee on Ways and Means, let me enlighten all of you to not only some of the things that we brought up in the part of the Contract With America, but actually we have been talking about, actually items that have been signed into law. That is the bottom line. It is great to debate all these items, but it only affects people's lives once you can get them into law.

First of all, we had the small business tax relief. We increased the amount of money the businesses can deduct as far as depreciation is concerned, instead of depreciation, actually expensing them, up the $25,000 per year. Small business people around the country understand that means they will be able to buy more equipment to make their employees more productive, to be able to pay their employees more money.

We also have a spousal individual retirement account. If you have a spouse that is living at home right now, they are not allowed to have an individual retirement account, an IRA. Our legislation allows you, enacted into law, now for your spouse to get an IRA as well.

□ 2300

We also have long-term care incentives. Right now in America, senior citizens are deathly afraid that they are going to have to lose everything that they have to be able to go on Medicaid, to be able to get good long-term care, skilled nursing facility type care in this country. We are not putting in tax incentives to buy long-term care insurance, for one, but also to deduct long-term care expenses off of their tax return.

What this does is it keeps more people off of Medicaid, off of the taxpayers' backs, but also gives them more control over their lives.

We also raised the Social Security earnings limitation. We are raising it over a 6-year period to $30,000. Right now you get penalized if you are between 65 and 69 years of age, penalized for every dollar you earn over $11,280. You get penalized on your Social Security. That is unconscionable.

We are taking some of the people with the most experience and wisdom in our society and saying do not work, we want you to retire, and most of these people want to stay productive, and we are saying we are going to penalize you if you do. That is wrong and we repealed that.

The adoption tax credit. Everybody talks about abortion. They talk about all these other things and they say, why do you not encourage adoption? This Congress is now encouraging adoption by giving a $5,000 tax credit to offset adoption expenses for families that make up to $75,000 a year.

Now, there were a couple of items in the contract that were vetoed and it is unfortunate, too, because the average American family pays more in taxes than they do in food clothing and shelter combined.

Yes, the $500 per child tax credit was vetoed. Yes, the marriage penalty relief was vetoed. The American dream savings account was also vetoed. And also economic growth tax cuts, known as the capital gains tax reduction of 50 percent, was also vetoed, which would have been a huge boost to the economy and to economic growth in this country.

We are now in a global economy. We have to realize that when we are passing laws in this country. We need to make American business competitive once again. The cost of doing business, the cost of borrowing money, the cost of capital plays into how competitive American business is in a global economy.

We could have helped make American business more competitive by giving capital gains tax relief. And, by the way, of all of the taxes that we proposed, tax cuts that we proposed, they talk about it was for the rich. Between 70 to 80 percent of the tax relief we passed as part of the Contract With America were for families making less than $75,000 a year.

I do not know about my colleagues; districts, but in Las Vegas $75,000 a year is definitely not rich. And in Southern California most people cannot even afford to buy a house if they make $75,000 a year.

We saw working families struggling and we tried to help them and I was proud to be part of this freshman class that truly changed the scope of things.

Mr. JONES. If the gentleman from Nevada would yield for a moment.

Mr. ENSIGN. I would be happy to yield.

Mr. JONES. I have great respect for the gentleman from Texas, BILL ARCHER, who is chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, and I compliment you as well as the other committee members.

One of the contract items that was absolutely vital to the future of this Nation, and Mr. ARCHER was out in front on it as well as many other Members, was welfare reform. I saw him on talk show after talk show defending what we were trying to do to help citizens that were on welfare become productive working citizens.

I want to ask the gentleman this, and if he will respond, then I will stop. Mr. ENSIGN, is it not true that welfare has cost the American people, since the mid 1960's, the years of the Great Society, $5.3 trillion? And it is not also true that Bill Clinton, when elected as the President of the United States, for 2 years had a Democratic Senate and Democratic House and never a welfare reform bill introduced until the Republicans became the majority? Is that true or not?

Mr. ENSIGN. Not only is that true, I think that one of the reasons maybe people do not believe us up here is because we do not give credit when credit is due. I think we need to give President Clinton the credit for raising the minimum wage. He brought this Congress fighting, dragging and screaming and everything to raise the minimum wage. Now, we had to do that, but the only way we would do that is by giving small businesses tax relief along with that, so we improved the bill. But we should give him credit for raising the minimum wage.

The President does not deserve credit for welfare reform. He is taking credit for it but he does not deserve credit for welfare reform, because, frankly, it was this Congress that did welfare reform. We recognized that welfare was destroying families. Illegitimacy rates are incredibly increased and a big factor in that is welfare.

We tell a teenage mother, we say, if you get pregnant we will get you an apartment. You can move away from your parents, get you an apartment. You can have any man live with you except for the father of the child. Do not get a job. You cannot save anything. And, by the way, if you want more money, have more children out of wedlock. If that is not a morally bankrupt system, I do not know what is.

And this Congress, with all of us working on it together, finally did the most sweeping social policy change in 60 years of this country, and we now have a true welfare reform bill that this President now signed into law because he was forced to.

Mr. WICKER. Reclaiming my time for just a moment. As my colleagues can see, the gentleman from Nevada being on the Committee on Ways and Means is on a committee that has a wide range of jurisdiction, from all the tax measures that he mentioned on to welfare reform.

I am sure some of my colleagues will want to join in this debate on tax relief, because a great part of the Republican Contract With America is tax relief. But what the gentleman from Nevada has just outlined in the items that passed dealing with tax relief, the item on small business, we know that most jobs created in the United States today are created by small businesses, so that tax relief package is a job creation package. It is going to create jobs for people where they live out in the 50 States.

The gentleman mentioned the spousal IRA, which is very important to many, many women around this country. A tremendous achievement. Tax issues dealing with health, dealing with senior citizens, allowing them to retain more of their earnings, and then certainly the adoption tax credit.

I know the President mentioned on television how delighted the First Lady was when we passed the adoption tax credit and sent it to the President for his signature. And I am sure there are other people that want to talk about the issue of tax relief for the American people. And I would be happy to yield at this point to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. I thank the gentleman. I think sometimes our critics here in the House, and some of the folks in the media, sometimes have tended to say that, well, we cannot balance the budget and provide tax relief at the same time. And I think the beauty of the budget plan that was put together by the gentleman from Ohio, Mr. KASICH, and others, was that it demonstrated that if we do it over 7 years and we limit the growth in entitlements and make some cuts in domestic discretionary spending while we freeze defense spending that we can balance the budget in 7 years and allow American families to keep a little more of what they work for and what they earn.

Sometimes we do have to bring this all back. What does it mean? What does a balanced budget and reduced taxes mean to the working families of Minnesota? What does that really mean to them? Well, it means that more of the power is being returned to them.

As Senator PHIL GRAMM says, I know the family and I know the Federal Government and I know the difference. And every Sunday American families sit around their kitchen tables or their coffee tables and they clip 120 million coupons from their newspapers worth an average of 63 cents. That is how families balance their budget every single week.

Now, when is the last time my colleagues saw a Federal bureaucracy clipping coupons? As a matter of fact, what happens at the end of their budget cycle is they try to figure out how to spend every last penny so they will not be cut next year.

Let me just say that it ultimately means a balanced budget and tax relief for working families so that they can afford new homes and new cars, and so that there will be more jobs for the folks who need them. It means more security for our seniors and it ultimately means more opportunity for our kids.

I think, in the end, that is really what this debate is all about, it is about more accountability in Washington and more responsibility and authority and resources being returned to the American families. And that is where it should be, because they know how to balance the budget, they know how to get the job done.

It is not a decision about whether we are going to have more money for children or their nutrition or their education, it is a debate about who gets to do the spending, and we believe in families.

Mrs. SEASTRAND. If the gentleman will yield, he talked about those families sitting around the kitchen table trying to figure out how they are going to meet their expenses. I know they pinch pennies. I have been in that position, so I know what it is like to see how to make ends meet.

I thought it was interesting, I think all of my colleagues would agree with me, that very first day we were sworn in we were given our key to our office and we opened the office to see if we would have a desk and a phone connected, but I remember almost stumbling over a bucket. Do my colleagues remember that, a plastic bucket filled with ice cubes?

We did not have time to worry about that. I think someone threw the ice cubes in the sink and that was it. But what was amazing is that afternoon there was another bucket, and then there was this ritual for a week or 2 weeks. And I kept saying, what is this all about? Where is this coming from?

And it is interesting because that is what we came to, a place that was still delivering ice twice a day to each of our offices when we have refrigerators, our own little personal refrigerators, or we can run down to the cafeteria and get a Coke with ice in it. And many other times the ice just melted.

And what did we do? We went to work, this freshman class went to work to see how we could pinch pennies. Where is this coming from? Who is doing it? How much is it costing?

I thought it was amazing to find out that it took 14 people to produce that ice, deliver it twice a day, and it also meant that it was costing the taxpayers, those families around that kitchen table, $500,000 a year. Well, we put a stop to it, and that is $500,000. And in the scheme of trillions of dollars, I think there was that old Senator that said, you know, you take a dollar here and a dollar there, and you add it up and it winds up to be a lot of money.

But I want to point out that not only on that first day did we slash and cut different things here in this building, but I think that ice bucket is symbolic of what we have tried to do in this House.

We cut the number of committees, we reduced staffs and budgets by a third, we slashed Members' mail budgets by a third, we reduced administrative staff and operating budgets, we closed the in-house printing and folding services, we privatized mail and postal operations, we ended a lease on a warehouse that just—do my colleagues remember that—held obsolete furniture and equipment, and then we ended a lease on an unneeded parking lot, where we found out that many times lobbyists parked in, and we opened up another parking lot for the public so that they could come and use this parking and know that they could get to their House.

We also did some things like privatizing the beauty and the barber shop and the shoe shine operation, all of this adding up to millions of dollars. Again, pinching pennies, symbolic of that bucket of ice, the way families all across America have to pinch their pennies every month to make ends meet.

Mr. EHRLICH. If the gentlewoman will yield, I apologize for changing the course of this discussion somewhat back to the philosophical, but I have a question for everybody.

There are an awful lot of Americans watching us right now, and that is good and that is part of democracy and that is a wonderful part about being in this House. It is very important that folks across the country hear this discussion, and I know that my colleagues all have the same experience I do when I go back to my district.

I am fortunate. As my colleagues know, I get to go back almost every night, and that is not the case with the other folks in front of me, and I apologize for that. It is a great part of being from Maryland.

I hear one question repeated over and over again, and I want to hear my colleagues' opinions concerning how they would answer this question, and the question, in various forms, is: Well, BOB, I love the agenda the gentlewoman from California just articulated, I love the fact you have cleaned up the House, I love the fact you have cleaned up the process, I love the fact you all have principles and you have maintained those principles in the House of Representatives, I like this agenda, I like this opportunity in society that you want to create in this country, I really like welfare reform and capital gains and the whole nine yards, but why is the message not out there? Why do some people believe that these are actually tax cuts for the rich?

□ 2315

The gentleman from Mississippi earlier stated that slowing the growth in Medicare was not even part of the Contract With America. What is your answer?

Mr. BURR. Mr. Speaker, I referred to the fact earlier that I found when I got to Washington that they add and subtract differently here. Inside the beltway an increase of 3 percent a year is in fact a cut because it is less than somebody wanted. In fact, anything less than what you want in Washington is considered a cut.

I think that raises a question. The question gets back to what the gentleman from Minnesota raised earlier. That is, is it radical to believe that a family knows better how to spend their money than the Federal Government? I think that in fact the answer is, to this town it is radical to believe that Members would give up the power of more money, the power of more decisionmaking capabilities, more regulations, the perks of the office and that in fact it is inconsistent with much of the history of this institution.

In fact, in 2 short years we were able to turn that around.

Mr. EHRLICH. Mr. Speaker, I would just like to make him feel better. The President of the United States shares your concern and your frustration. Does everybody here remember the President's recent quote when confronted by the press with respect to the issue? The Republicans really do not want to cut Medicare at all, Mr. President. They want to slow the growth in exactly the same way you yourself advocated just 3 years ago.

And does anybody recall the President's answer? He understood the difference, but it is shorthand, it is Washington. You cannot really tell the American people what the truth is because you have to use shorthand because the attention span of the American people is only a few seconds. And it is the press's fault. The press uses the term cut. It is not really a cut, but we have to use it in this town because that is the way we do things in this town; that is, we do not take our time to explain ourselves to the American people.

I think that is what the President was saying. Does anybody remember that quote?

Mrs. SEASTRAND. I remember that quote. I might add, you are fortunate you can go home every night to Maryland. My trip is quite lengthy, 3,000 miles across this Nation to the central coast of California. But I do go home every weekend.

I know I have heard those same questions. You have done your work. We want you to hang in there, but why are you not getting the message out? As I stated earlier, I tried to yell this from the rooftop about what we have accomplished. Regarding the contract, we said 65 percent of it has now been signed into law.

But I will tell you one reason that I think adds to the situation of why our message has become more or less confused and foggy to some people. I am one of those freshman and I know there are several that joined us today that have been hit by big special interest groups from Washington, DC. I would just point out since April of last year, of April 1995, we just completed the contract. We are going into the budget discussion. And all of a sudden up on television in my district we had special interest ads bombarding me and bombarding me ever since then.

Over $600,000 have been spent in my little old district of outside money coming in trying to confuse the message and saying that I cut Medicare $270 billion, that I cut student loans, that I have given tax credits to the rich to take care of the rich. It is an outrage. I just would say that shame on those big special interest groups who claim that they speak for the working men and women. That is one of the areas that we have had to put up with because we came here, as I said, to move the power and the influence and the money out of this place back home.

And so because we did that, we supported the contract, we gave every issue, we wanted to give more power to the working families at home. Those big special interests here in Washington are very upset with you, with me and they are trying to gain that power back so that they can once again have their perks and their special powers here and to heck with the people at home.

So I think there are many reasons, but I think that is a big special reason in many of our instances where almost half of that freshman class is now being bombarded by millions and millions of dollars from those people that are upset with our trying to change the way we do business.

Mr. WICKER. The gentlewoman is absolutely correct. I think it is fair to say to my colleagues and for us to say to the American people that we need to remind ourselves that there was another party in control of this body for 40 straight years, a body that refused to bring up these items, these 10 commonsense items of the Contract With America.

Frankly, they are not too anxious to balance the budget. They are not too anxious to have tax cuts for the American people. And for 40 years, under their rule, Government got bigger, taxes got higher. And Government got more and more intrusive. We had less and less personal freedom, less and less local responsibility. Quite frankly, they want their majority back and they are willing to say things that are not accurate about what we have been doing.

I have an example just from this morning's Congress Daily where Senate Minority Leader TOM DASCHLE contended during a press briefing that despite the passage of welfare reform, health care, minimum wage, telecommunications, safe drinking water, farm and other legislation, ''by and large this has not been a very productive Congress.'' Senator DASCHLE went on to say, I believe this session is far short of what we have done in past Congresses. He added, because we spent almost all of our time stopping Senate Republicans from doing extreme things, I think extreme has been their favorite word for these last several months although as we have shown tonight, 58 percent of House Democrats voted for the Contract With America.

The article goes on to say, when reporters pressed him afterward to name another Congress that had passed major legislation and yet could be judged similarly unproductive, however, DASCHLE could not name one. I know there have to be several. I will get back to you on that, he said.

It is that sort of disinformation that we freshmen, we Republicans have had to come back for the duration of this Congress.

Mr. BURR. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will continue to yield, your last comment strikes me as something that we all heard before we got here. That was a Congress that said to the American people, I cannot answer that today, but I will get back with you later. The fact is that Mr. GUTKNECHT from Minnesota said earlier that the freshman class brought a new mindset to Washington. In fact, he was partially right. I think the correct answer is the American people sent a new mindset to Washington. In fact, why we see the situations of outside interests in California and 38 other districts around the country of large special interests and why they have an interest in that district is, in fact, the breakup of power in Washington, that there are people that feel that for 40 years they have built an empire that in 2 short years is beginning to crumble.

They will go to any lengths and spend any amount and say anything to change the trend of the American people taking back over their Congress. The reality is that, in fact, the most changes have happened in this 2-year period than probably in the 2-year period in the history of this institution. I, for one, have been proud to be a part of it.

Mr. WICKER. Mr. Speaker, I would simply call on my colleagues to add anything they might want to in the way of closing remarks for this special order.

Mr. EHRLICH. Mr. Speaker, if I went to this well every day and looked into that camera and said, folks, Mr. WICKER from Mississippi is wearing a blue tie today and I bought $100 million of ads and ran them across the country, and I did not care about telling the truth or shooting straight or having integrity but I loved those 30-second attack ads and every one of those attack ads said, Mr. WICKER is wearing a blue tie, do you know what? I bet you by election day, some people would believe that you were wearing a blue tie tonight, Mr. WICKER, and we all know that is a yellow tie.

Mr. WICKER. It is a yellow tie with very small elephants on it.

Mr. EHRLICH. In much the same way some people will believe tax cuts for working folks are tax cuts for the rich, in a very similar way some people will believe that slowing the growth in Medicare from 10 percent to 7 percent a year is a cut and on and on and on. I will close with this: I think the American people are a lot smarter than that.

Mr. WICKER. Before I yield to the gentlewoman from California, you have mentioned taxes and tax cuts. Let us remind ourselves, I think it is important to remind ourselves that President Clinton campaigned in 1992 on a middle class tax cut. Instead, he raised taxes on the American people the very next year. And the minority leader of this House got up before the Democrat convention in Chicago just a few weeks ago and said about that tax hike that the Democrats passed without a single Republican vote, what we did was right and our President did what was right, and I would do it again tomorrow and so would Bill Clinton.

When it comes to taxes, I am afraid that is the truth. They think tax increases are good and they would do it again tomorrow if they get a chance.

Mrs. SEASTRAND. Mr. Speaker, it is just interesting, I am pleased to participate with you this evening, but as we mentioned, we were trying and we still are trying to give power back to the folks at home, move that money and power and influence from Washington, DC to each and every one of our special places; for me, to California. And I think it is really something when you think that you gave your word, you kept your word, you kept your promises and you are called an extremist for doing so.

I would just say that for doing so, I have been punished more or less with having that outside money come in. I often tell people, if you try to go to Washington and try to change the way things were, then you see why nothing was done for 40 years. Because when you step out of the box from the way they did things, you are punished with those ads and misinformation.

I think the gentleman from Maryland is right. I am hoping that the good Americans across this Nation will be able to see through this and will again go to the polls and reelect those that are trying to work for them and give them back their Government.

Mr. BURR. Mr. speaker, I would simply say in closing that I know that my colleagues agree when I say that character does matter, that conviction does matter, that commitment does matter, that where there is, quite honestly, character, there is courage, that where there is conviction, there is hope, and where there is commitment, there are results.

And if I could sum up this freshman class in the 104th Congress, it would be that we have been courageous, that we have maintained a sense of hope for the future and hope for this country and hope for the families and that, in fact, we should be judged based upon the results, the results of 2 years, not a year and a half, like some want to judge us, but the full 2 years and the impact that we have made on changing how we represent the American people.

I am proud of the change, and I look forward to serving with each one of you in the 105th Congress so that we can continue with the progress that we made in the 104th Congress.

Mr. WICKER. Mr. Speaker, in the minute or two that I have remaining, I just want to remind my colleagues of why we are here this evening. For this Congress and for America, the historic Contract With America was a positive agenda to restore commonsense Government. The contract, in its intents and in its substance, has been distorted and criticized in recent months as a failure and for somehow being extreme.

Tonight we have documented that the contract has largely been a success, with almost two-thirds of its legislative items passed by Congress and signed into law by President Clinton. Further, we have shown that the contract was anything but extreme, with widespread public support, over 60 percent of the American people support all 10 items of the Contract With America. Much of the contract passed the House with significant bipartisan support, as I said, 58 percent of House Democrats voting for the Contract With America.

My colleagues have repeatedly shown tonight that the contract's legislation will have a real and positive effect on the lives of all Americans.

Mr. Speaker, at this point I want to thank my colleagues for participating in this special order.
